

Scenarios Introduction

This book contains the campaign and rules from the Forbidden Psalm Core Book and its sequel, In the Footsteps of the Mad Wizard, combined into one 24 Scenario campaign.

Play Scenarios 1 through 10 to complete Chapter One and see what the Mad Wizard has in store for you.

Then, travel across the wastes and rest your feet at the Hogs Head Inn before beginning your journey into the fallen city of Dawnblight, featured in Scenarios 11 through 24.

Once you have completed the campaign, try out more Scenarios in The Collection of Death.

How to read Scenarios

Goal - What you are here to do.

Reward - What the Mad Wizard is offering you.

Setup and Treasure - How to set up the board.

Deployment - Where you place models before the game starts.

Threats - What Monsters are present.

Solo Play - How to play the Scenario solo.

COOP - How to play the Scenario as friends.

End Game - How the game ends.

Sections marked with the RPG symbol are for use with RPGs and provide flavour text for your miniature games.

Campaign

If you are playing full campaign mode, after each Scenario take the following actions.

1. EARN MONEY

Each warband with at least 1 living member gets paid 10 Gold.

2. TRY NOT TO DIE

Roll DEATH SAVED (D6 Toughness test) for all models that were Downed at the end of the Scenario. On failure the model Dies. On success, roll an Injury (step 3 below). On a Critical they recover with no Injury.

3. ARE YOU HURTING YET

Roll on the Injury Table on page 88.

Injuries are permanent effects that stack and change models' Stats and abilities.

4. CAPITALISM

You can sell Items to the Mad Wizard or in the Hogs Head Inn. You earn half the value of the Item [Weapons, Items, and Armor] rounded down.

Manuscripts cannot be sold.

5. WHAT WILL YOU

Gain XP.

Each of the following is worth 1 XP for the warband:

- Killing a Monster.
- Collecting Loot.
- Completing a Scenario with at least one surviving member.
- Downing an enemy model.
- Surviving a Death Save.
- Each warband members who Died.

5.1 MAKE YOU STRONGER

Spend 5 XP to level up and do one of the following:

- Improve 1 warband member's Stat by 1. There is no maximum to Stats.
- Remove an Injury.
- Reroll a Flaw.
- Gain a new Feat [pick] for a warband member.
- Bring 1 warband member back from the Dead with a new Flaw [randomly roll].

6. FRESH BLOOD

Hire new crew members. At the end of the world there are plenty of hungry fools that will join a warband. If a warband has fewer than 5 members players can recruit new ones for free, creating them as before. New members come with no Equipment, so either repurpose from the Dead or buy them something new. If all 5 members of a warband are Dead, start from scratch! Between Scenarios, players can fire one warband member and replace them, but they take their Equipment with them.

7. A HOGS HEAD TO CALL OUR OWN

Spend 50 Gold to purchase 1 Hogs Head Inn room upgrade [Scenario 13, pg. 130].

8. SHARP IS CARING

Reallocate Equipment, including placing it in the party stash and buying new Equipment.

END OF CAMPAIGN SCORE

You can apply the following to give yourself a campaign score.

- +5 for each model that made it all the way through the campaign alive
- +1 for each Artefact found
- +10 for finding all lines of the Forbidden Psalm
- +10 for killing the Cath Palug

Injuries

1. Lasting Injury Roll for a new Flaw (in addition to any other Flaws you might have). Reroll duplicates.
2. Weak Immune System Model auto-fails tests against Diseased (pg. 22) and Poisoned (pg. 23).
3. Internal Bleeding If model is Downed in the next Scenario they auto-fail their Death Save (pg. 86).
4. Broken Bones -1 Agility.
5. Saddened -1 Presence.
6. Weak -1 Strength.
7. Malaise -1 Toughness (can be cured with Tincture).
8. Maimed -1 HP.
9. Lost Limb Can only use One-Handed Weapons and has 1 fewer Equipment slot.
10. Missing Eye Maximum range for ranged attacks and spells is reduced by 3 inches.
11. Afraid Auto-fails Morale during the next Scenario.
12. Concussed -1 to all rolls for the next Scenario only.
13. Sprained Ankle -1 Agility for the next Scenario only.
14. Bruised Eye -1 Presence for the next Scenario only.
15. Bruised Kicks -1 Toughness for the next Scenario only.
16. Disoriented Swap two Stats at random.
17. Forgetful Model immediately misplaces one random piece of Equipment or Weapon (permanently lost).
18. Only a Flesh Wound No Injury.
19. Learn through Failure Roll for one extra Feat (pg. 16).
20. What Doesn't Kill You Only Makes You Stronger Remove one Flaw from this warband member.

'I am Vriprix the Mad Wizard. If you are here for work we can talk, otherwise be gone, pests!!!'

The innkeeper told you to take the southern path past the decaying trees. Along the cold, barren road you walked, until up ahead, beyond the trees, stood a twisted castle. The innkeeper told you of the Wizard who lived here, a recluse who refused to show his face, but offered good coin for any tasks well completed.

You approach the large gate of the castle. The drawbridge is down, welcoming you, rusty chains draping off its sides.

Your knock echoes through the empty castle. After a moment you hear footsteps, and then a small window opens in the door. A single beady eye looks out, wide and frantic.

Chapter 1 Rules

Players may buy or sell Items, Weapons, and Equipment from the Mad Wizard or optionally risk dealing with the Merchant (pg. 92).

Do not use the Hogs Head Inn room until you reach Chapter 2.

Do not add a Pet to your warband until you reach Chapter 2.

Use the Chapter 1 Treasure and Relics Tables until you reach Chapter 2.

What're ya buyin'? What're ya sellin'?

Instead of selling to Vriprix you can sell to the Merchant, a shadowy figure who approaches you on your way back to Vriprix's castle.

The Merchant buys Items for 1 Gold more than Vriprix. Free Items cannot be sold. He has the following available for sale every time you visit him:

- 3 random Weapons
- 1 random Armor
- 1 random piece of Equipment
- 1 random Relic

He sells Items for 1 Gold less than listed price to a minimum of 1 Gold. The Relic costs 100 Gold.

However, Vriprix does not like the Merchant, so each time you visit the Merchant to trade, roll a D20. On a 1 you are caught by Vriprix and one of your models gains the Lost Limb Injury (pg. 88).

If you are caught a second time, Vriprix refuses to deal with you until a member of your warband is sent away! Replace that member with a new one. The Merchant then stops dealing with you.

CHAPTER 1 TREASURE TABLE

1. 1 Gold
2. 2 Gold
3. Pile of Bones (can be used as One-Handed Makeshift Weapon)
4. Human Skull (1 Gold when sold to Vriprix the Mad Wizard)
5. 3 Gold
6. 4 Gold
7. Live Snake (5 Gold when sold to Vriprix or can be turned into a potion with a Presence test after the Scenario)
8. 5 Gold
9. 2 Gold and a Blood-Stained Dagger
10. 6 Gold
11. 8 Gold
12. 1 random Weapon (pg. 19)
13. 1 random Armor (pg. 20)
14. 1 random Clean Scroll (pg. 26)
15. 1 random Unclean Scroll (pg. 28)
16. 10 Gold
17. 15 Gold
18. 1 random Relic (pg. 94)
19. One sentence from the Forbidden Psalm (when you have all 5 you can sell them to Vriprix for 1000 Gold)
20. Roll twice and take both results

Treasure Rolls

Scenarios indicate how and when to roll for Treasure.

Treasure Roll are DR10 Presence tests.

On failure the model cuts their hand on rusty nails and ~~takes 1 damage that ignores~~

Armor.

On success they roll on the Treasure Table relevant to the Scenario.

The model then, if they have Equipment slots free, picks up that Item. If they do not have slots free the Item is instead placed on the ground and can be picked up by another model.

Coins do not take up Equipment slots.

RELICS

Only one of each Relic can be found when playing a campaign. Reroll duplicates.

1. Boots of Unkindness
+1 damage.
2. Scroll of Forbidden Knowledge
+1 Presence, consumed on use.
3. Vampiric Tongue Shortsword
D6 damage. Wielder heals D6 damage when it wounds. If wielder ever dies, spawn a Blood Rage Vampire (pg. 54) and follow normal Monster rules.
4. Goggles of the Unseen
Wearer can see in the dark.
5. Clawed Gauntlets
Wearer cannot be disarmed.
6. Gem of the Anti-Mage
Wearer cannot cast spells or be targeted by spells.
7. Helm of Greed
Wearer auto-passes all Treasure Rolls, but must keep any Items for themselves.
8. Ring of the Mighty
+2 Strength, but can never wear Armor.
9. Pet Rock of the Wizard Melthraone
It's a rock that you can throw for [D4][Ranged][Strength]. It returns to the thrower's hand.
10. Crown of the Bloodied Thorns
Attacks dealt by the wearer cause Bleeding (pg. 22).
11. Wooden Duck
Model must always keep the Wooden Duck with them. If a model dies while holding the Duck, all other models on the board will try to pick it up.
12. Pillars of the Pandemic
Takes up no Equipment slot and is instead deployed by the controlling player at the start of the Scenario, anywhere on the map. Once placed it cannot be moved or picked up. The Pillar emits a sickness aura in a 6 inch bubble. Any model within 6 inches must make a Toughness test when they enter the aura and on failure become Diseased (pg. 22).

1. THE MAD WIZARD'S TEA

Vriprix does indeed have work for you. Not far from his castle you will find the ruins of an old house. Once vast, it spoke of its owners wealth and prestige, but they are long dead. Vriprix informs you that this task is quite straightforward. He wishes for you to get him some fungus from these ruins. The mold only grows on corpses. You get the sense you are not the first he has sent on this task, and maybe, if you are not careful, you won't be the last.

Goal

Find and return the Black-Spotted Fungus. To find Fungi, perform a Treasure Roll on a Corpse Marker. In addition to any Treasure gained, add one Black-Spotted Fungus, which takes up an Equipment slot. When successfully searched, remove the corpse.

Reward

Each Fungus is worth 2 Gold when returned to the Mad Wizard.

Setup and Treasure

Players take it in turns to place six Corpse Markers within 10 inches of the centre of the board and at least 3 inches from other Corpse Markers. Use normal terrain rules (pg. 82).

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

D4 Disembowelled Ghouls (pg. 63) appear on round 2, attracted by the noise. Players take turns placing Ghouls within the areas indicated on the diagram, rolling a D6 to determine which edge each Ghoul appears on. During the Monster activation phase, Disembowelled Ghouls move 2D6 inches towards the centre of the board unless they can see a model, in which case they follow normal Monster movement rules.

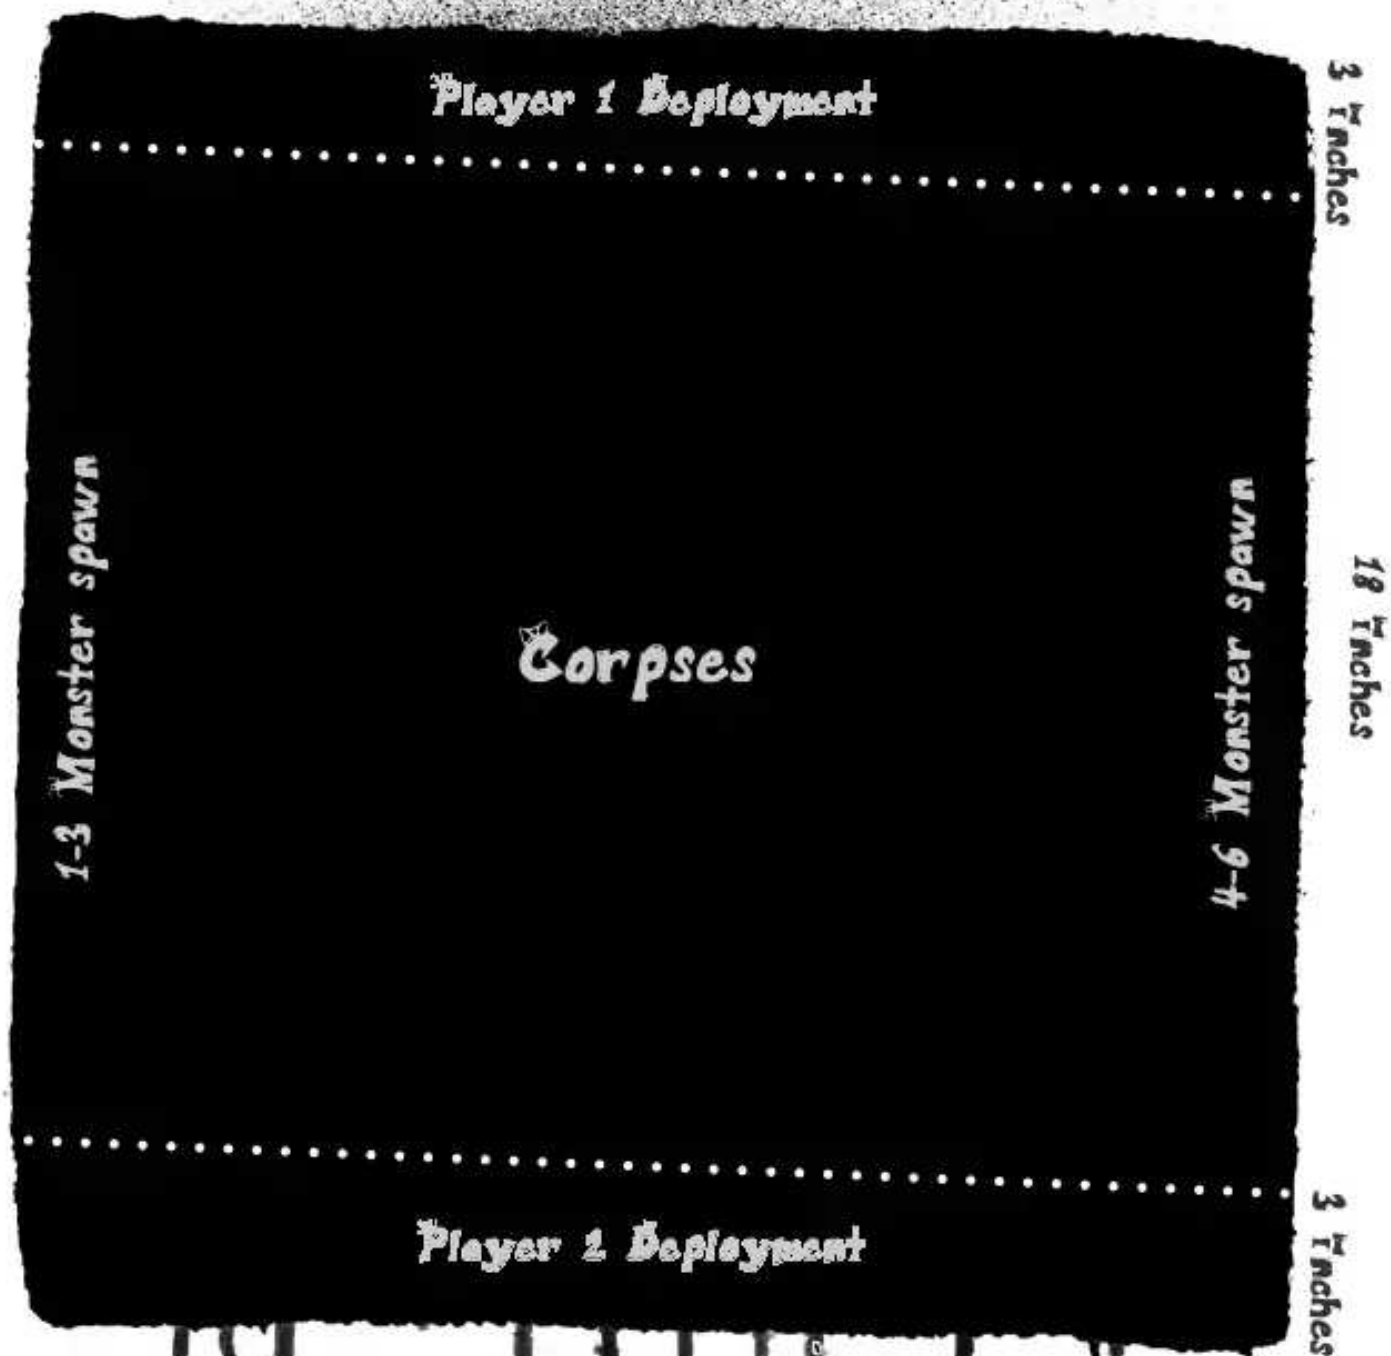

Solo Play

Disembowelled Ghouls do not appear until you search your first Corpse Marker! Every time you search, one Disembowelled Ghoul appears. If you search the sixth and final Corpse Marker, a Corpse Collector (pg. 61) appears!

COOP

As Solo Play, but two Disembowelled Ghouls appear each time a Corpse Marker is successfully searched.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

You see the ruins of what was once a manor house, its walls but crumbling fragments. From the overgrowth you hear the moans and groans of what can only be the dead.

When a PC interacts with a Black-Spotted Fungus, have them make a DR12 Toughness test to avoid infection. Infection slowly spreads throughout the PC's body, turning their flesh into mushrooms and moulds. Vriprix can make a tea that cures the infection with fungi recovered.

When PCs return to Vriprix read the following:

Vriprix extends a clawed hand through a small opening in the door and snatches the fungi from you. You hear him inhale deeply through the door. 'Mmmmm, so fresh, perfect for my tea.' He tosses the coin through the door in a small pouch, and just before he slams the hatch shut he says 'Come back tomorrow if you need more coin'.

2. MY HEART HAS JOINED THE THOUSAND

Vriprix tells you he has been watching them from his tower, the little critters of the world. They are plotting some great evil. He has seen it in their strange dances. They gather at midnight; go find out what they are doing and put an end to this madness!

Goal

Prevent the Animal Cult from calling forth the end of the world!

Reward

The world doesn't end! Vriprix pays 1 Gold per Animal Cultist corpse. A corpse can be picked up to be sold to Vriprix, but takes up an Equipment slot.

Setup and Treasure

Players take it in turns to deploy Animal Cultists (pg. 52) at least 3 inches from the player deployment area and at least 4 inches from another Animal Cultist.

Place ten Animal Cultists in this manner. Each player chooses two Animal Cultists who are carrying Treasure. When these Animal Cultists are killed they drop their Treasure, and it can be searched following the Treasure rules (pg. 93).

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

If there are ever fewer than five Animal Cultists on the board at the beginning of the Monster activation phase, D4 more are added. Remember, Animal Cultists move towards others to begin to perform a ritual (pg. 52).

On round 4, two Morka-Porka (pg. 70) arrive, drawn by the scent of blood.

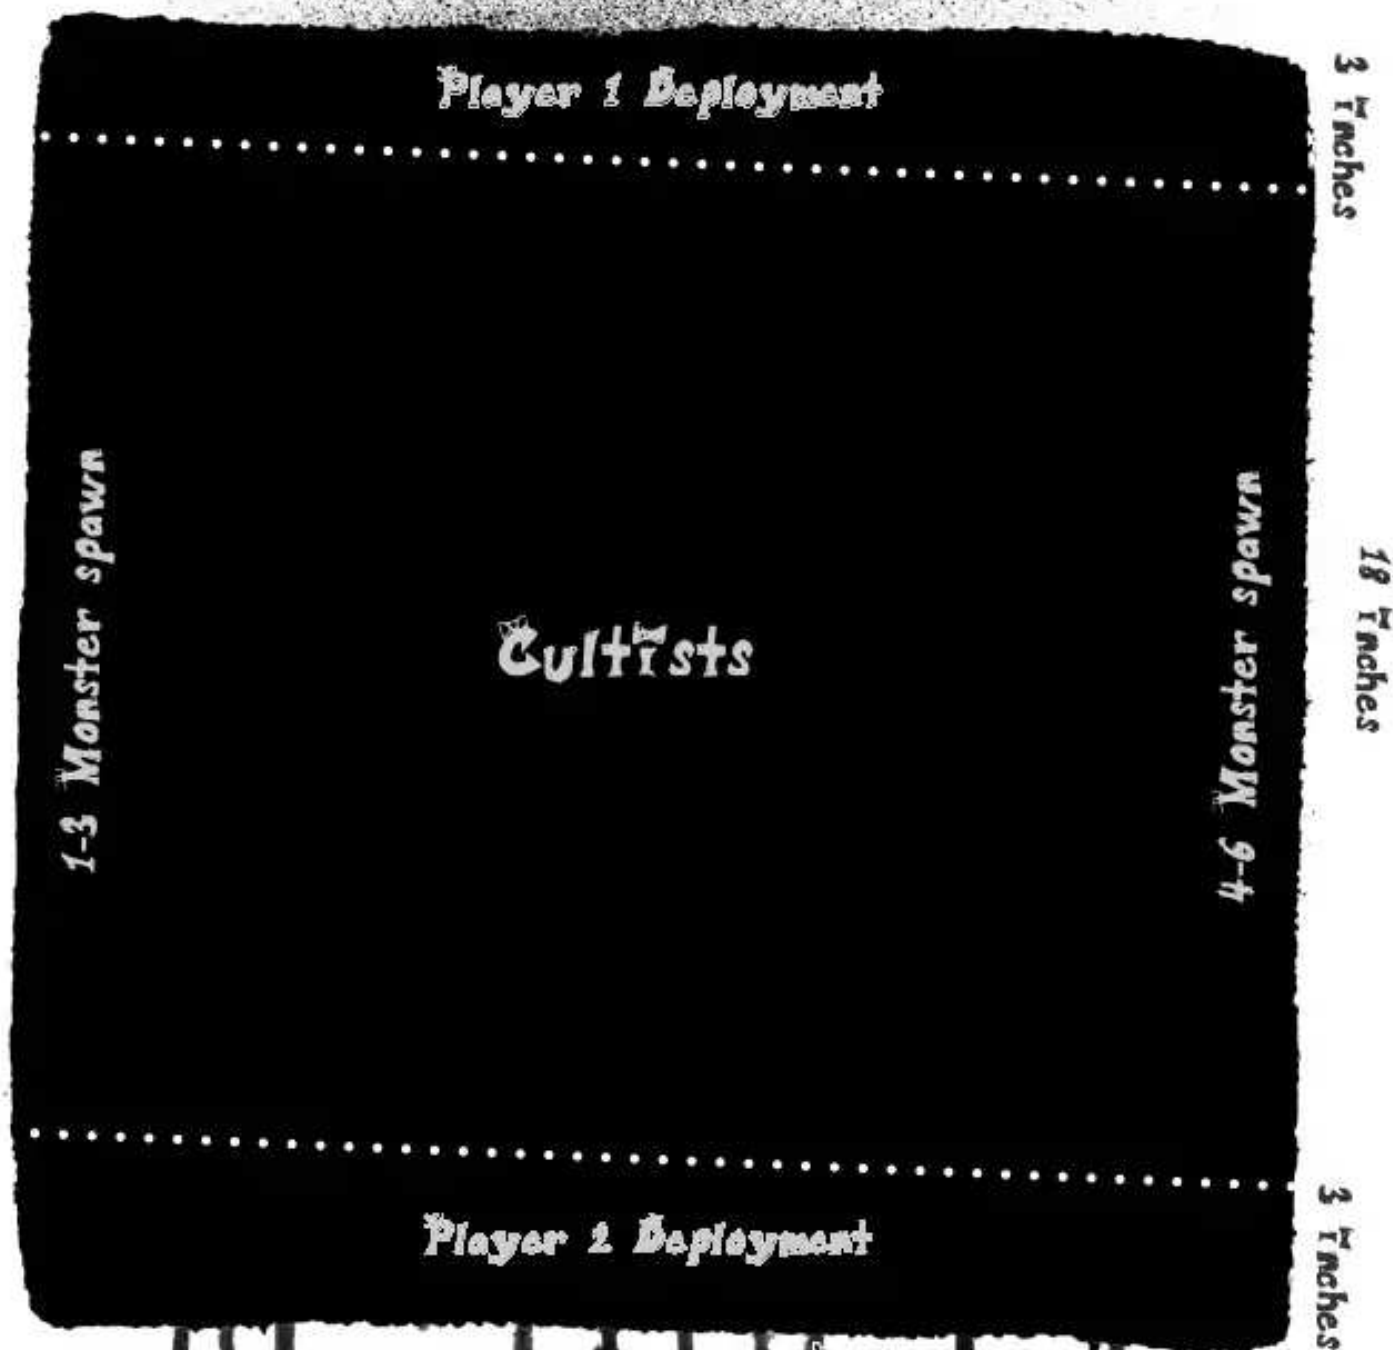

Solo Play

Deploy six Animal Cultists instead of ten, and one Morka-Porka on round 4 as above.

COOP

On round 4, three Morka-Porka arrive, drawn by the scent of blood.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

You hear the chattering of small animals in the woods. They dart past you into a clearing, chattering away. Suddenly their animal calls you begin to sound like words and chanting. It's hard to understand, but it sounds like 'All the world will be your enemy' and 'The field is covered in blood.'

With those words you realise that the Mad Wizard was right, that indeed these animals are up to something! You must put an end to it!

If the PCs fail to prevent the ritual, The Basilisk is called forth and the world ends.

When PCs return to Vriprix read the following:

The Wizard looks out at you, one single beady eye.

'So you put an end to the madness of animals, I take it, give them here.' He holds out a hand through a small opening.

'They will make a fine stew.'

RPG

3. DASHED HOPE

The bleak, foreboding coastline of Kergüs south of Alliáns is known for being a treacherous route for sailors. The razor-sharp rocks protruding from the shallows like glass in a wound and the thick, cataracted mists are bad enough without gossips of Sirens leading sailors to their doom. The boastful Captain Mikhail once attempted this route in order to deliver a prize to Blood-Countess Anthelia to win her favour and hand in marriage. Vriprix believes this prize to be a relic of arcane beauty and colour, enough to sustain the Countess's insatiable chromatic hunger. It would undoubtedly be of extraordinary value to Vriprix's studies, and he needs you to retrieve it with utmost haste. The Mad Wizard has many underlings at his disposal, and sometimes multiple groups are granted the same quest. Retrieve it before your rivals do!

Goal

Recover the Lambent Scroll.

Reward

You may return the Lambent Scroll to Vriprix for 5 Gold and a Clean Scroll or deliver it to Anthelia for with 10 Gold and choose 1 model to make a DR12 Presence test. Success: gain D6 XP. Failure: that model never returns from her court, but you still gain the Gold.

Setup and Treasure

Divide the board into three sections, a 6 inch band diagonally through the centre representing the shallow water, with the deep water of the Endless Sea to one side and the black sands of Kergüs on the other. Perhaps some sand berms form small islands in the water to break up the board. The whole area should be dotted with sharp rocks and rough terrain, even some jutting out of the water. Mikhail's ship, the Magnificent Bastard, lies in ruins across the coast and scraps of wood, sail, and other detritus provide good cover across the land and shallows.

Place six Markers representing cargo from the Bastard with two in the deeps, two in the shallows, and two on land. These should not be within 3 inch of each other or any board edges.

When searching for Treasure, roll on the Cargo Discoveries Table on the next spread.

Deployment

Models can be deployed within 6 inches of the board edge, up to 12 inches toward the land and 8 inches into the seaward side.

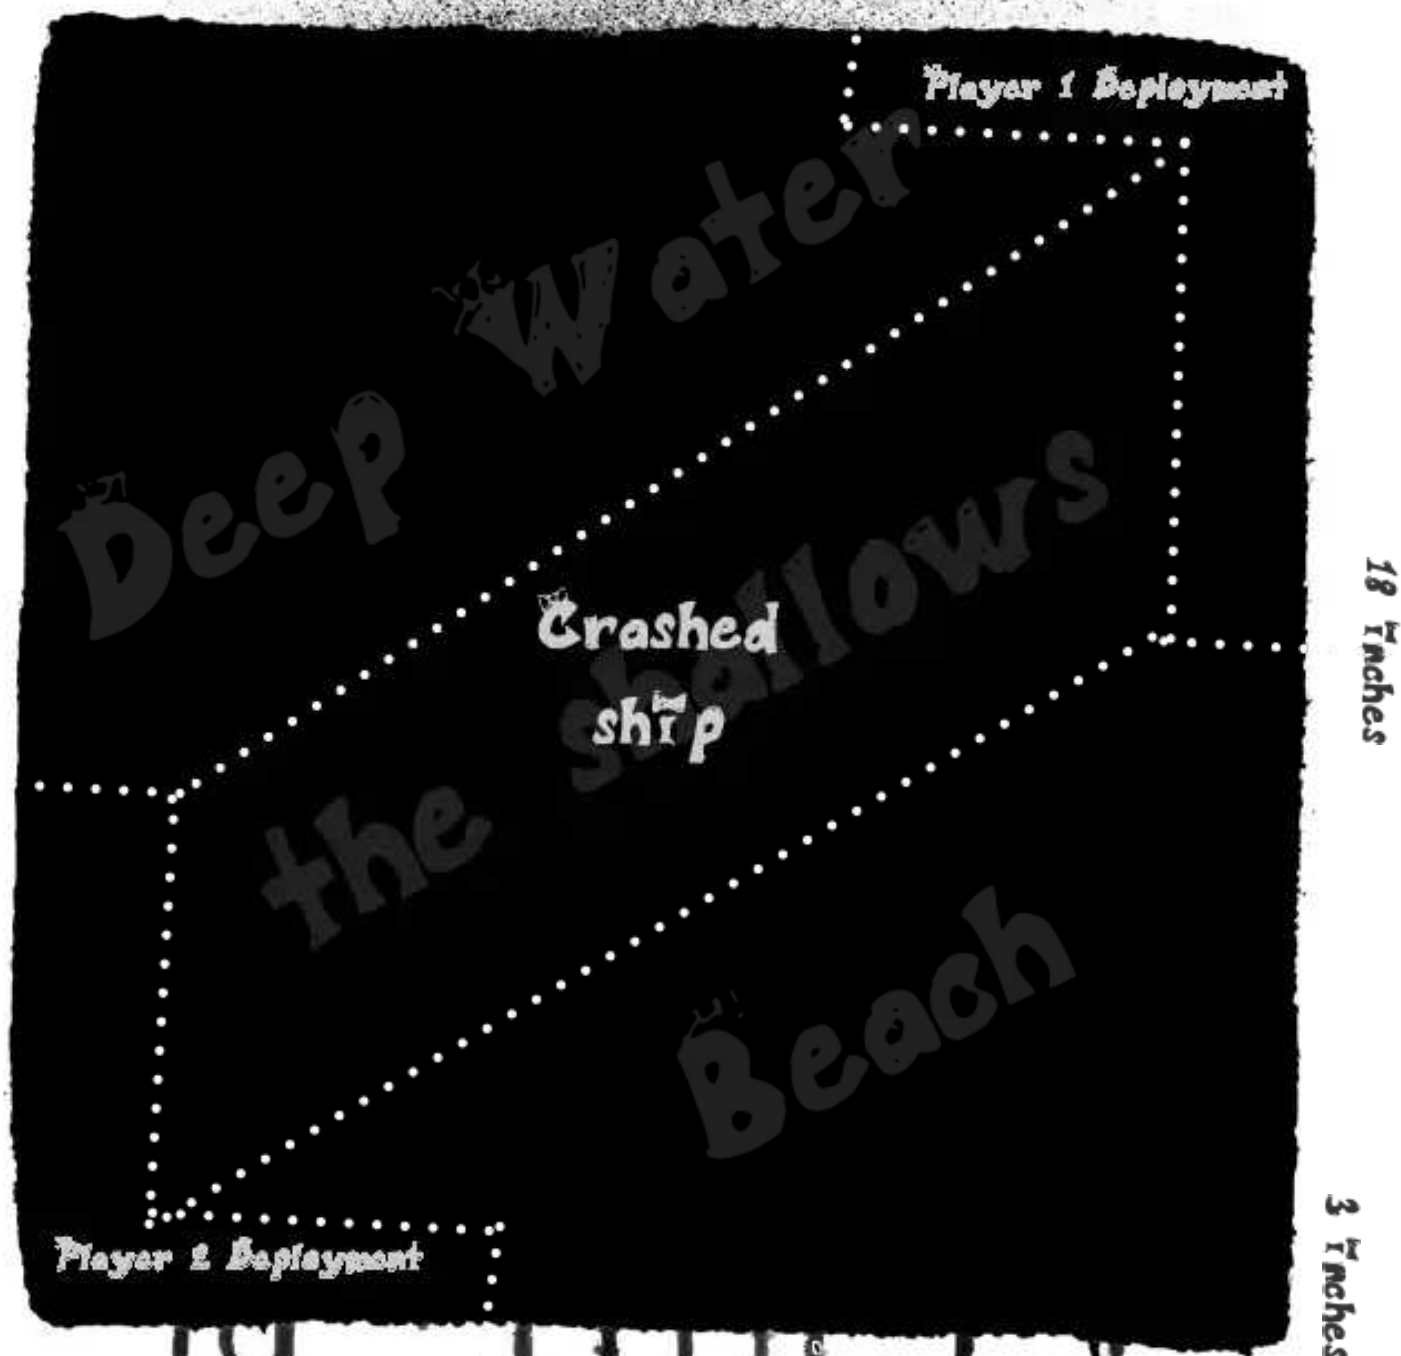

Game ends after the 6th round.

Threats

At the end of each round roll a D6. On 3+ a Siren (pg. 76) appears at the centre of a random board edge.

During the Game

A model may make a Presence test as an action to track the Sirens. The first model to successfully track them can secretly choose and note down which Marker contains the Siren's Nest (do not roll on the Table for this Marker).

When the PCs arrive read:

Broken wood and crates litter the beach. Cold, salty water washes the shore and stains the sands. Amongst the debris you see movement in the water and hear the call of something sinister.

Have the PCs ambushed by Sirens or have a character lured away by the Sirens' song. PCs might know that Sirens lure sailors to their doom. Dashing their brains on the rocks in mimicry of the ships which litter the beaches, the Sirens hungrily dig in. They always leave one or two alive as hosts for their young.

Once the PCs find the Scroll among the debris read:

You place your hand on the Scroll and feel a weakness set in, but your mind has never been more clear.

Depending on what PCs decide to do (keep the Lambent Scroll for themselves, give it to Vriprix, or take it to Anthelia), this could spur the next quest or a whole campaign heading to Blood-Countess Anthelia's courts.

Cargo Discoveries (D8)

Each result besides 1 is unique. If you roll a duplicate it counts as 1 instead. Unless discovered sooner, the last Marker to be explored always contains the Lambent Scroll.

1. Valuable Scraps. Takes up 1 Equipment slot. Can be sold for 1 Gold after the Scenario.
2. Rotten Food. A model with the Malnutrition Flaw (pg. 14) must spend their next turn stuffing their face, but ignores their Flaw for the rest of the Scenario.
3. Worthless junk.
4. Driftwood that can be used as a One-Handed Makeshift Weapon [D4] [Strength].
5. 1d3 Gold coins.
6. Captain Mikhail's Eyepatch. Provides glimpses into the future and a sense of overconfidence. Secretly tries to lead wearers to their death. Grants +1 on all tests. Whenever the wearer suffers a Fumble they lose D4 HP.
7. Siren's Nest. Replace the Marker with a Siren. It immediately attacks.
8. The Lambent Scroll. Counts as an Unclean Scroll. Contains symbols of unfathomable madness and indescribable colours. Holder gains +2 Presence but -2 to any test not related to Scrolls, magic, or forbidden lore. Attempting to read this Scroll will drive all but the most powerful mages utterly insane.

Solo Play

A Siren is already present on the board, place them next to a random Cargo Marker.

COOP

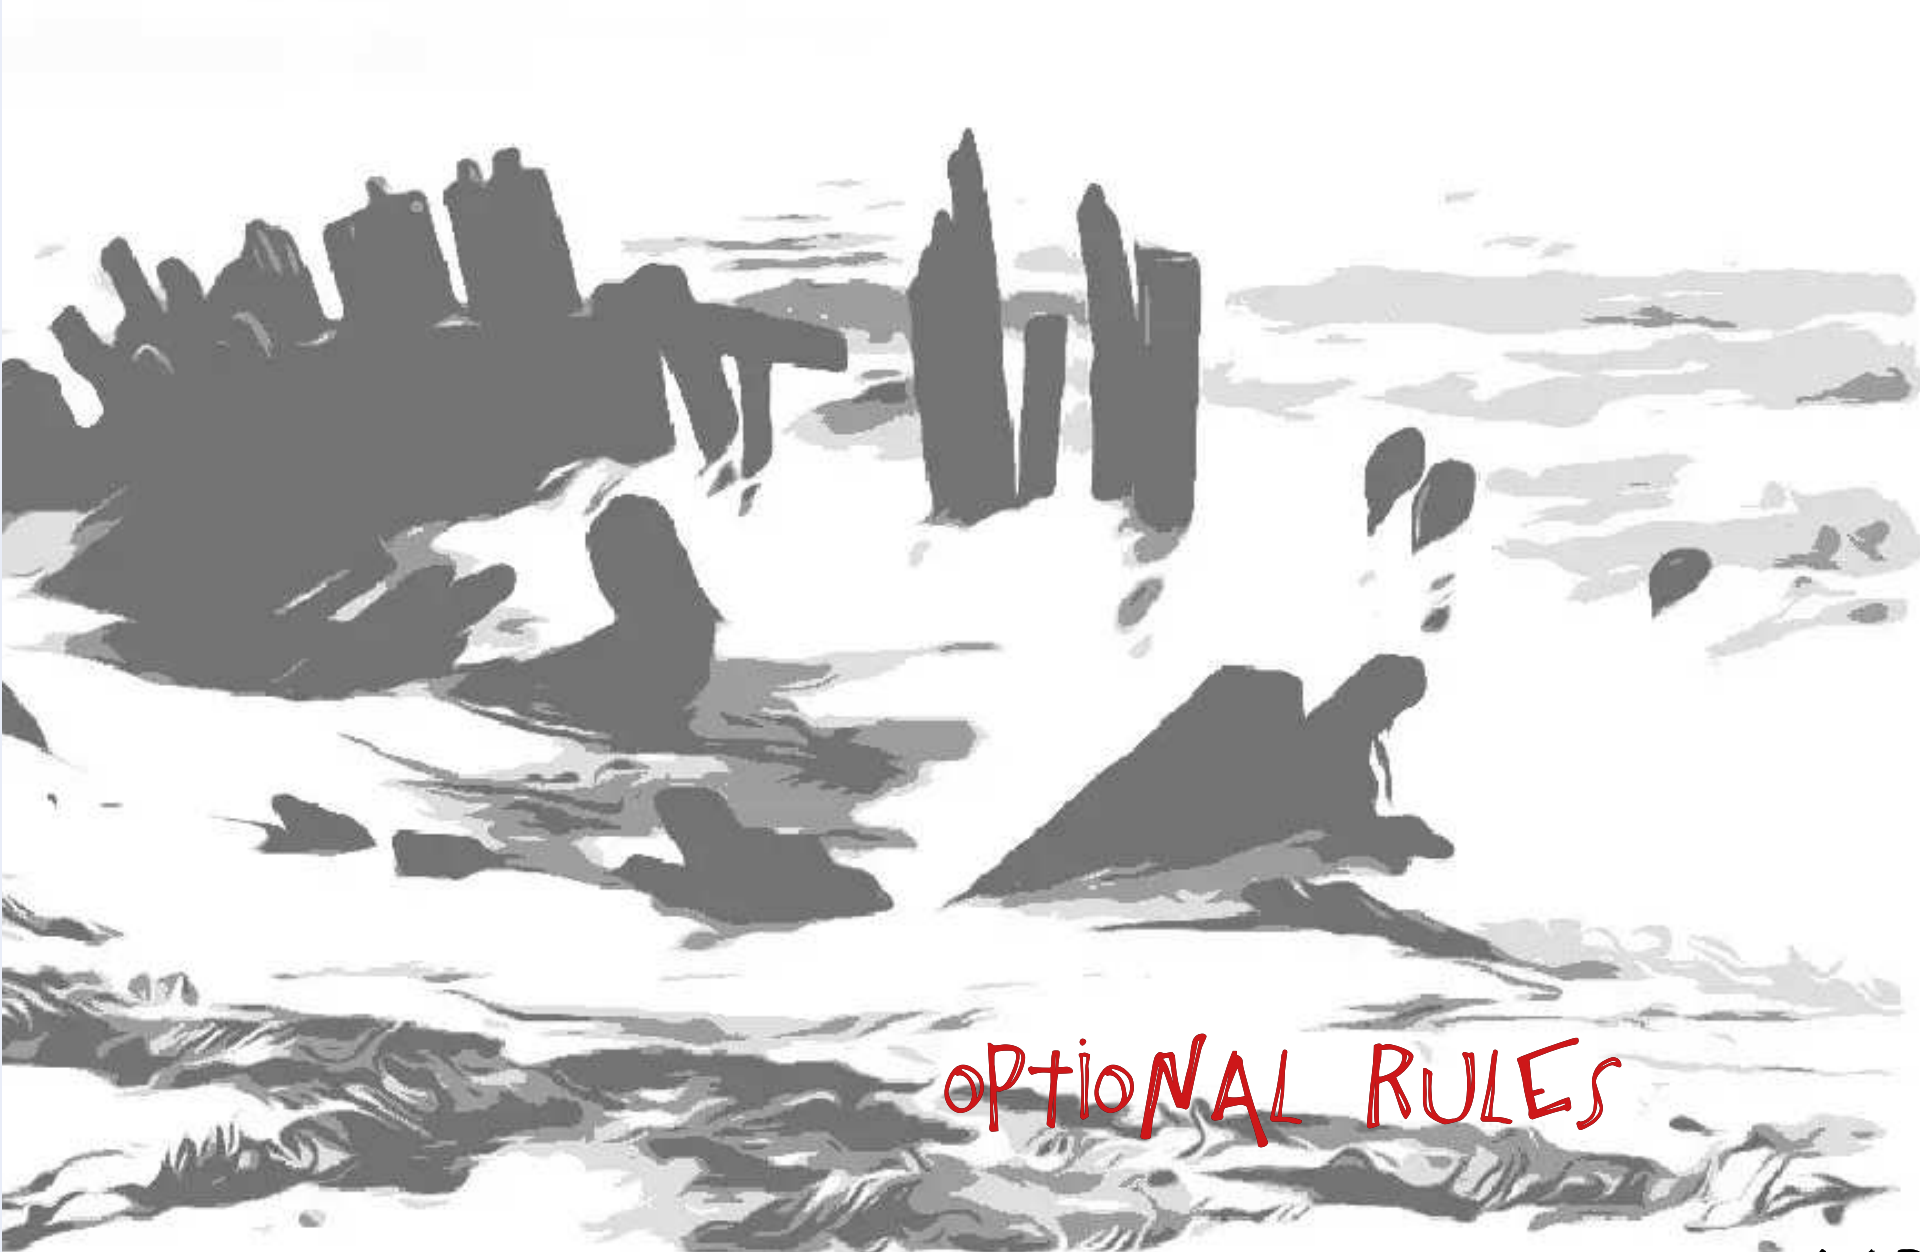

As Solo Play but place D3 Sirens.

Drowning

When a model moves in shallow water their movement is reduced by 1 to a minimum of 1.

Whenever a model moves in through deep water, their movement is reduced by 1 to a minimum of 1 and they must pass an Agility test or begin to drown. When activated, drowning models must pass a Toughness test or Die.

OPTIONAL RULES

4. THE AFANC POOL

Vriprix tells you of a small village that once contained a lake. The people of the village took from the small body of water without thought or care, eating all its fish and draining all its waters until little remained. Deep in the lake slumbered the great Afanc, a hideous beast, part beaver, part lizard, part demon. They awoke it and it devoured them. Vriprix would like you to see if this is true, and put an end to the beast if it is so.

Goal

Lure the Afanc (pg. 51) out of the water and bring it down.

Reward

Vriprix grants the warband that slays the Afanc one Relic from his hoard!
Roll 1 random Relic (pg. 94).

Setup and Treasure

In the centre of the board place a 10 inch diameter circle, representing the lake. This contains the Afanc who begins the Scenario underwater. To lure it out a model must be within 1 inch of the water and make a Presence test. On success the Afanc appears within 1 inch of that model and activates on the next Monster activation phase.

Additionally, the remains of those the Afanc has previously killed litter the lake's edges. Players take it in turns to place 2 Treasures each around the lakes edge, at least 3 inches from another Treasure. Searching the Treasure has a 50% chance of summoning the Afanc.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

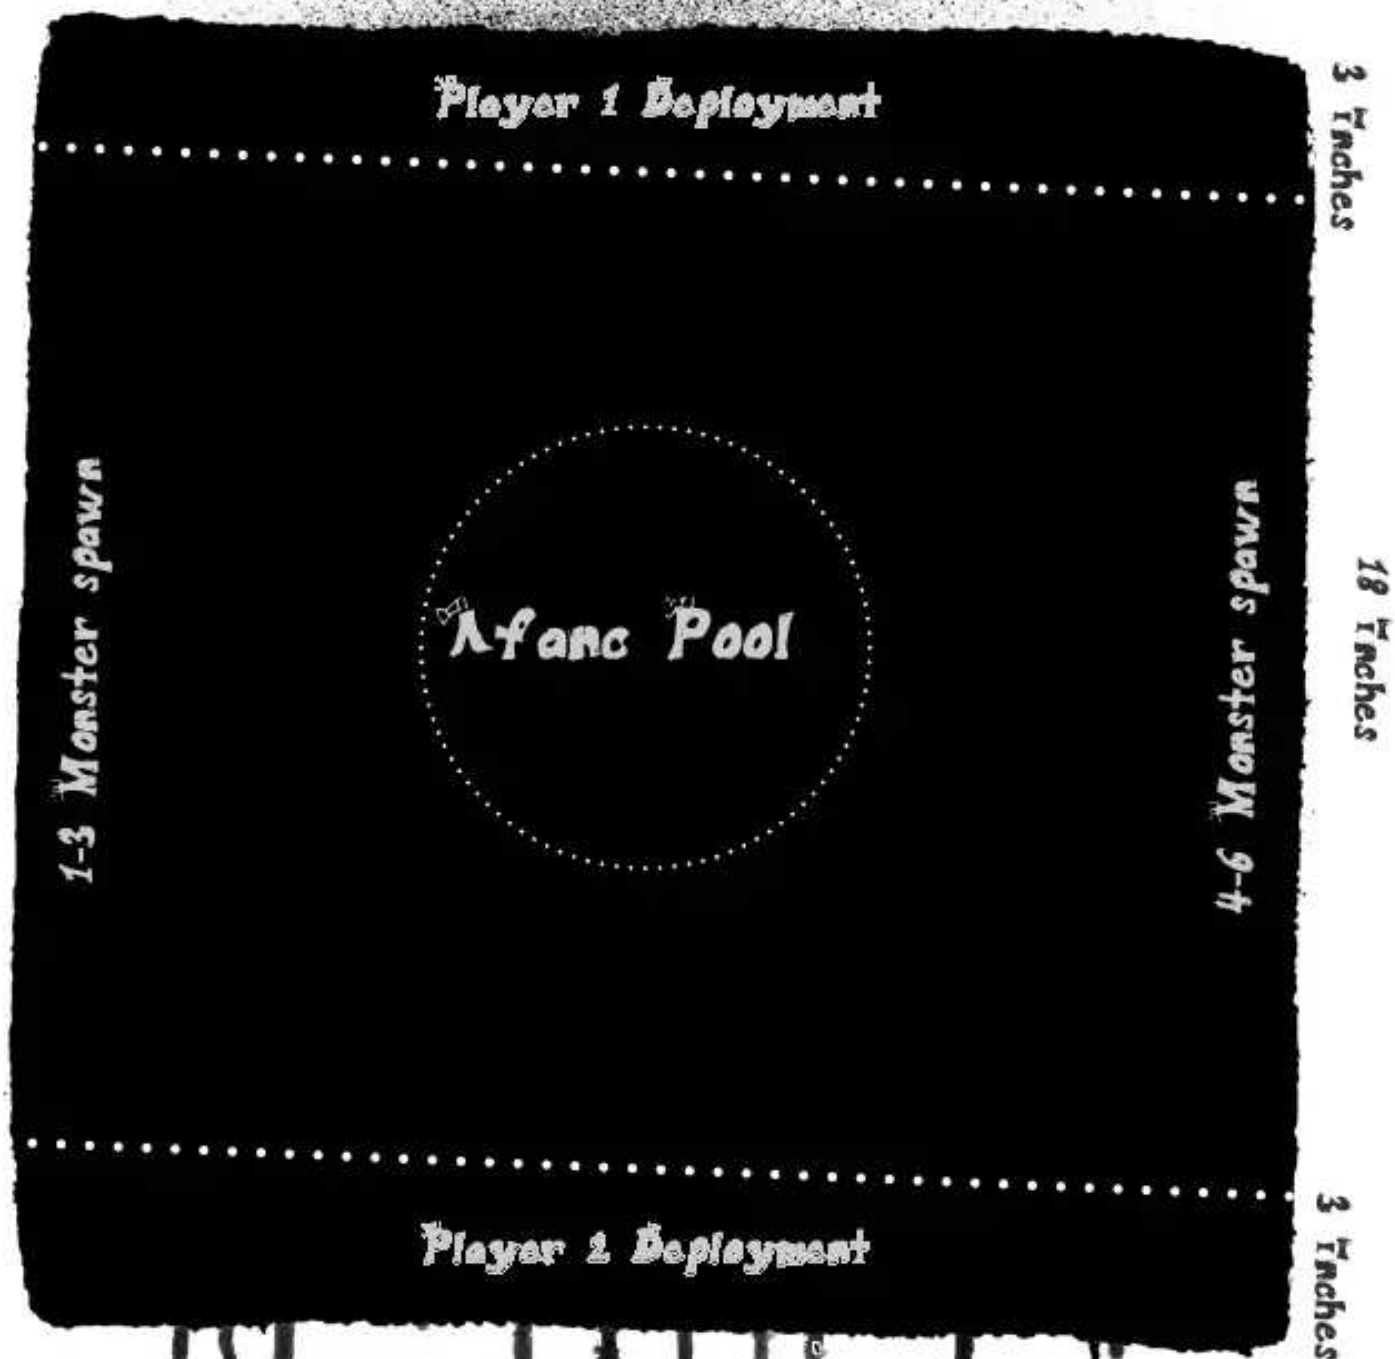

D4 Skeletons (pg. 78) are drawn by the sound when the Afanc makes its appearance. Place them in the Monster spawn area.

Solo Play

A smaller party does not attract the Skeletons.

~~Four~~ Four Skeletons spawn when the Afanc makes its appearance.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

Bleached white bones litter the ground, broken and twisted beyond recognition. Something large killed these people, and flung their remains to the ground. Huge footprints lead to a small opening of murky water that reveals no hint of the evil that lays within.

The Afanc rises from the water, and PCs must pass a Presence test to avoid being frightened.

When the Afanc appears read the following:

The water erupts and from the depths rises a creature most foul. Part crocodile, part beaver, and part demon, its red eyes glow and its jaw extends as it moves to attack you.

If the PCs are having an easy fight, have Skeletons appear and attack them. These are the vengeful remains of the dead villagers. Rage drives them to attack the living.

RPG

5. I AM THE REAL VRIPRIX

Vriprix seems even more nervous as he tasks you with his latest job. A Rival Wizard has been spotted, a Necromancer! Vriprix stresses that you should not let him speak, as he is likely to try and convince you of lies and slander. Kill him and all his belongings are yours, as well as a stack of coin.

Goal

Kill the Rival Wizard.

Reward

For killing his Rival, Vriprix awards you 10 Gold.

Setup and Treasure

Place a model to represent the Rival Wizard in the centre of the board. They are accompanied by four Skeletons (pg. 78) placed within 3 inches of the Wizard. Dead Skeletons can be searched for Treasure (pg. 93). The Wizard has two Scrolls and one Relic on his person.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

The Rival Wizard activates during the Monster activation phase but does not move unless in combat.

Rival Wizard

HP: 15 Morale: -

Staff: D4 Armor: 2

Special: If not in combat they target the nearest enemy model within 12 inches with the Scroll Flaming Hands of St Vilmarex (pg. 28).

When the last Skeleton falls, if the Wizard is not in combat, they cast the Scroll Bones, Them Damn Bones (pg. 28).

If in combat they will disengage and then cast a spell.

Skeletons are not hostile to them.

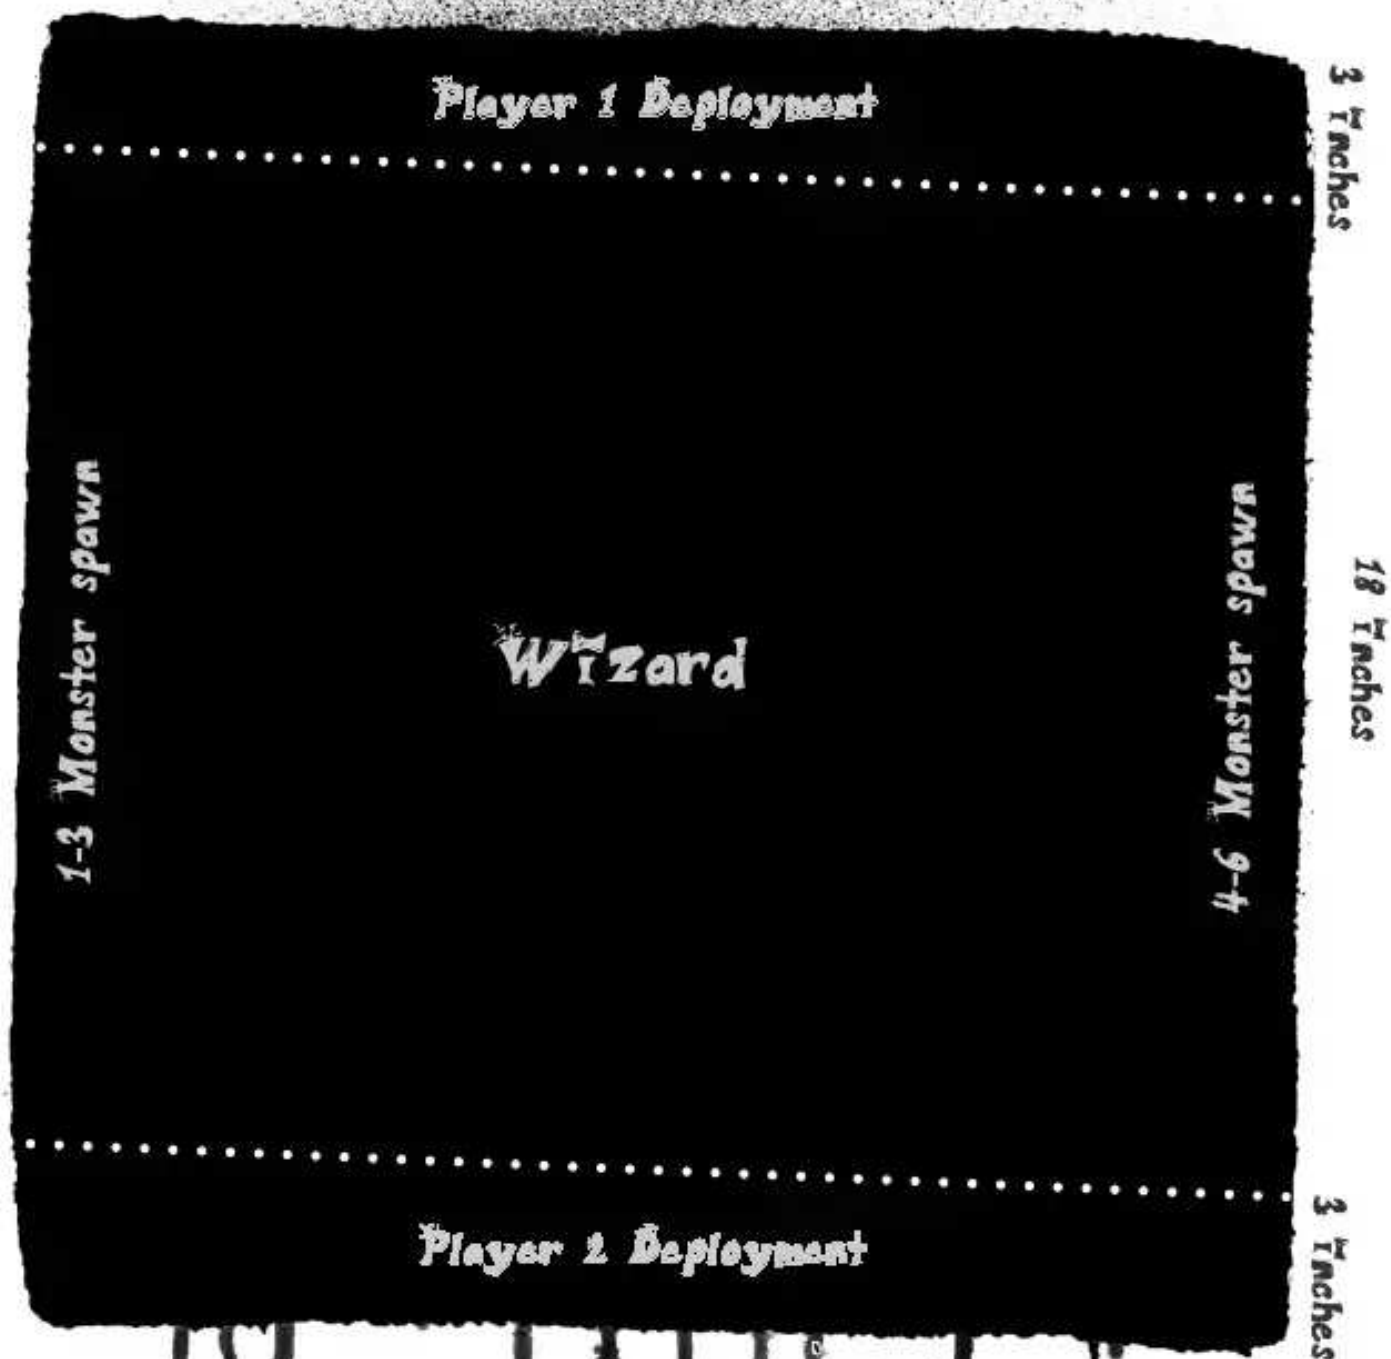

Solo Play

Only two Skeletons accompany the Wizard.

COOP

As Versus, but the Wizard has two Relics and six Skeletons.

Game ends after the 5th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

You walk into a clearing and an individual in long robes looks up at you, a pale face and dark eyes. They speak to the skeletons around them. 'Well it looks like we have company, I bet they are minions of that imposter. Kill them, my dears!'

The Wizard is as crazy as Vriprix, and equally paranoid, and so refuses to discuss matters and attacks PCs on sight. If the PCs succeed and kill the Wizard read the following:

With their dying breath they mutter to the sky 'So here then is the end of Vriprix the Great...'

6. CUT OFF HER HEAD AND TAKE OUT HER HEART

Something has been scratching at Vriprix's door. You can see the claw marks and blood stains in the wood. Vriprix opens the small slat once more and looks out at you. 'Curse you, I was trying to sleep, those blasted beasts keep me up all night scratching at my door. They are after my sweet fluids!'

Vriprix tells you to go kill the things keeping him up at night. He saw them heading towards the crypts in the old graveyard.

Goal

Find and kill the Blood Rage Vampires before they awaken!

Reward

Each Blood Rage Vampire killed is worth 10 Gold.

Setup and Treasure

Set up the board as shown in the diagram. Place three pieces of terrain to represent crypts. These should be at least 3 inches by 2 inches. Place them across the centre of the board every 8 inches.

Models can interact with a crypt by passing a Strength test to open it and see what is inside. Roll a D6 on the following table. Each option can only be taken once, duplicate rolls are rerolled.

1-2 - Crypt contains Treasure (pg. 93).

3-4 - Crypt contains one Blood Rage Vampire (pg. 54) that spawns and moves within 1 inch of the model that opened the crypt.

5-6 Crypt contains one Blood Rage Vampire that spawns and moves base to base with the model that opened the crypt.

If any Blood Rage Vampire is killed it can be searched for Treasure.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Any models still on the board after the 7th round are overwhelmed by the Blood Rage Vampires rising from the ground and are immediately killed!

Solo Play

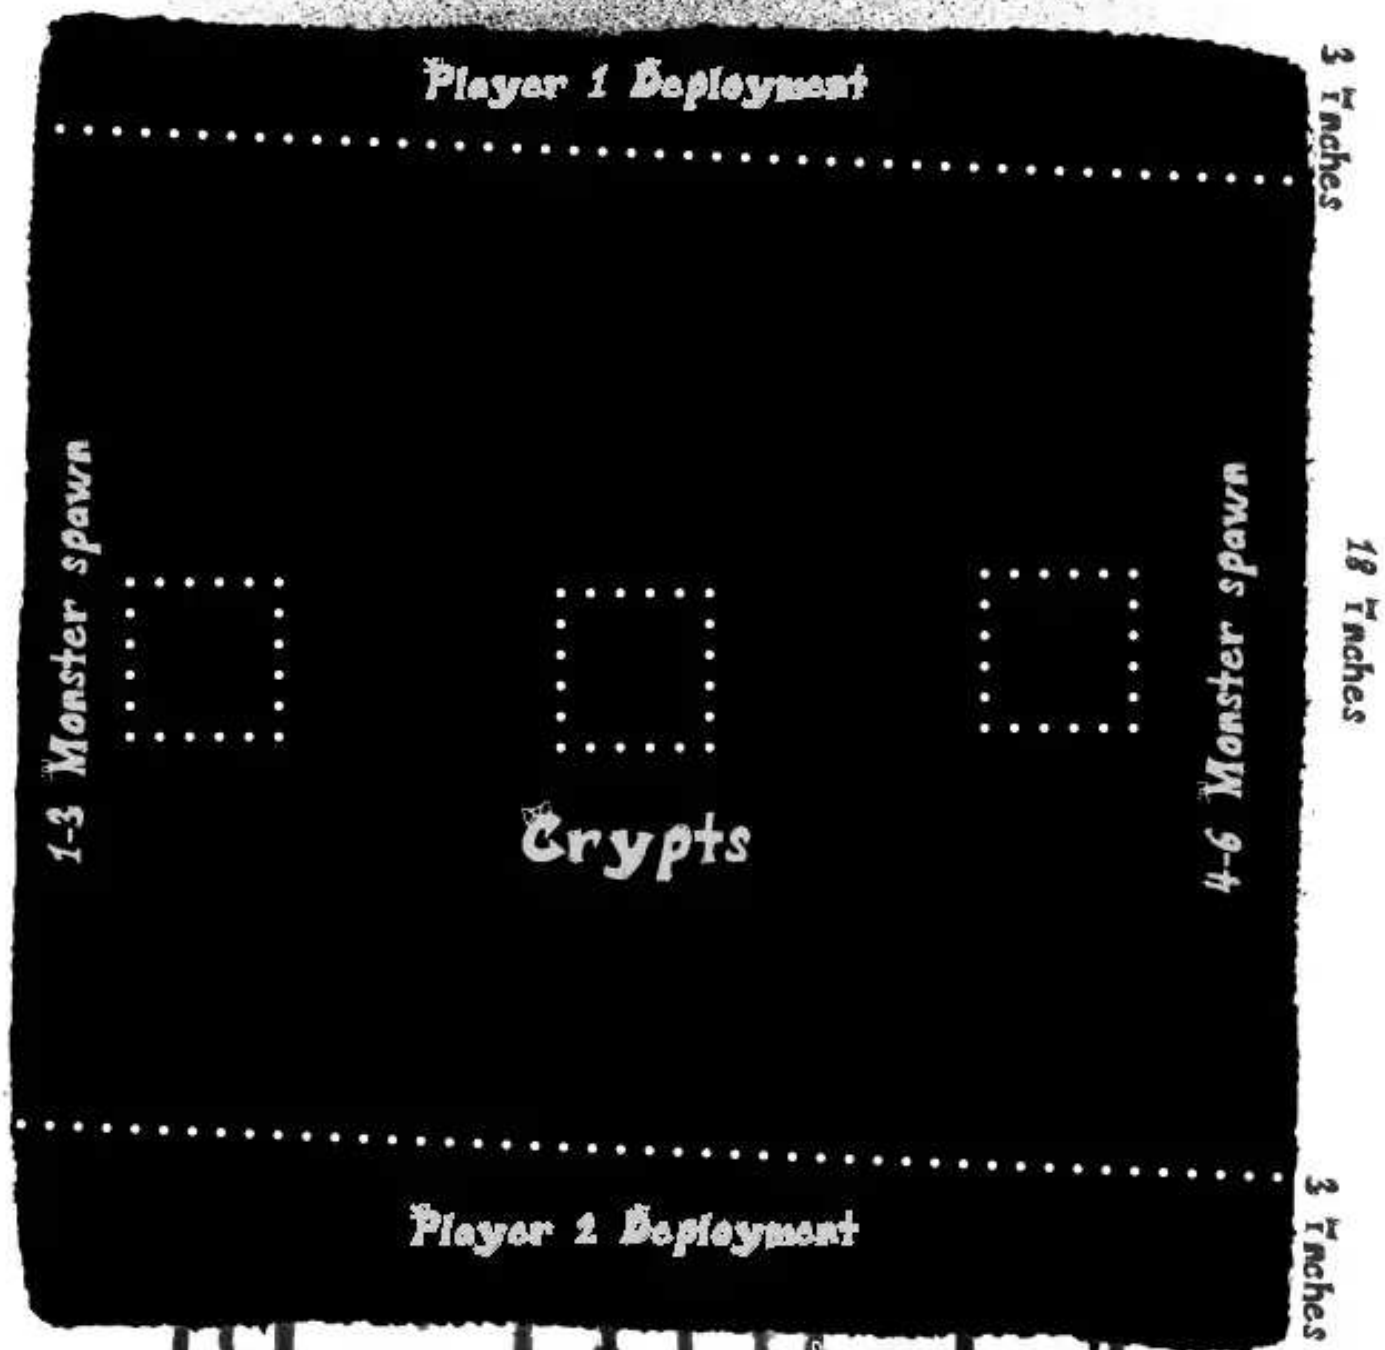

As above but only one crypt contains a Blood Rage Vampire.

COOP

Each crypt has a Blood Rage Vampire.

Game ends after the 7th round. Models left on the board are Dead.

When the PCs arrive read:

You see trails of blood leading to three crypts. This must be where the foul beasts came from. You ready yourselves for what's to come as you approach the grey stone crypts.

PCs can make a DR15 Strength test to open a crypt. There is a 1-in-3 chance each crypt contains a Blood Rage Vampire (pg. 54).

When the PCs kill the last Blood Rage vampire read:

With the deed done you sigh with relief. However, you soon become aware of hands jutting up from the soil around you! It's time to leave!

Have the PCs make an escape from a horde of angry undead!

RPG

7. MORTSAFE

'The dead are revolting,' Vriprix exclaims, 'or at least they are unionising!' Vriprix wants you to make sure the dead stay that way: dead and buried. He provides you with a Mortsafe, a device used to secure a grave, and instructs you to go and secure a grave for him.

Goal

Secure a grave with the Mortsafe and get out alive.

Reward

5 Gold for securing the grave with the Mortsafe and 1 more for each Skeleton you kill.

Setup and Treasure

Set up four small graves per player as shown, 3 inches from the center line of the board and at least 4 inches from each other. At the start of the game number each grave 1-4 and roll to determine, for each player, which of their four graves they must affix the Mortsafe to.

Before the game starts each player gives one model the Mortsafe, taking up one Equipment slot. Models can make a DR12 Strength test to fix the Mortsafe in place.

You can make a Treasure Roll on any grave to search it. On failure they instead contain a Skeleton (pg. 78) which is immediately placed next to the model that failed.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

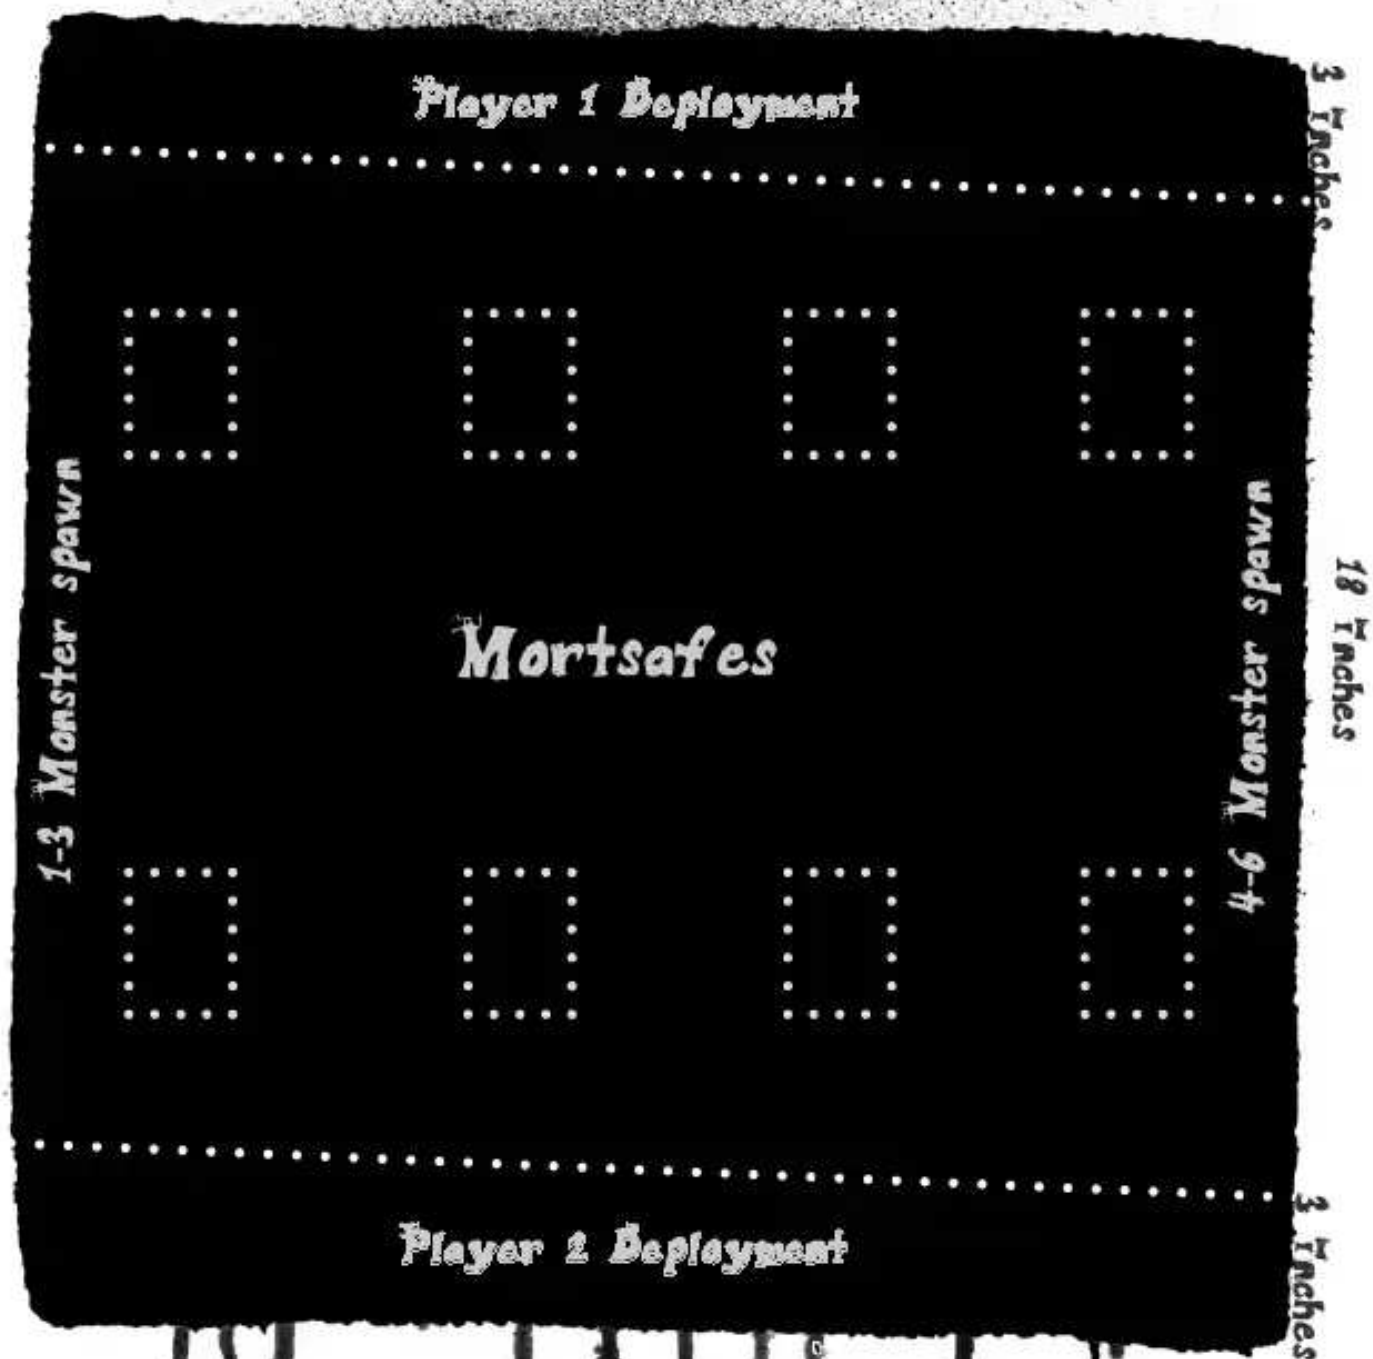

On round 3, or after both Mortsafes have been affixed, a Corpse Collector (pg. 61) spawns at the beginning of the Monster activation phase. The Corpse Collector has a single Relic on its back.

Solo Play

Set up four graves along the centre instead of what is shown in the diagram.

COOP

As Versus but all graves contain Skeletons! Also roll to see if they contain Treasure.

When the PCs arrive read:

The silence of the graveyard offers no comfort for the grim task ahead. In the distance you are sure you see something large moving, but it's too dark and far away. Best get to it, the dead won't stay that way forever.

Have the PCs surprised by a Skeleton (pg. 78) grasping at them from under the soil! Inform them of strange noises in the graveyard. When they are tense enough, have the Corpse Collector appear and attack them.

In front of you stands a behemoth of a creature, at least ten feet tall. Its distended stomach is marked with runes and its strange faceplate can only hide the most hideous of faces. It makes no verbal noise as it stomps towards you, its hands outreaching. You sense it means to add you to the collection of corpses in the wooden basket bolted onto its back!

RPG

8. EATER OF SOCKS

'HA! I caught one of the little buggers. Smelly little thief! Now I know who has MY SOCKS!' Vriprix has found those he claims have been stealing his socks for the last few weeks, and he wants them back. 'Go get the little goblins.'

Goal

Find matching pairs of Socks for Vriprix by killing Goblins!

Reward

Matching pairs are worth 10 Gold.

Setup and Treasure

Set up five Goblin Hole Markers as indicated in the diagram, at least 6 inches from another hole. Each round, at the start of the Monster activation phase, roll a D6 for each Hole. On 4+ a Sock Stealing Goblin (pg. 78) appears.

When you kill a Sock Stealing Goblin roll on the following table.

1. Blue Sock
2. Red Sock
3. Green Sock
4. No Sock
5. Pink Glove
6. Treasure

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

A bunch of Goblins!

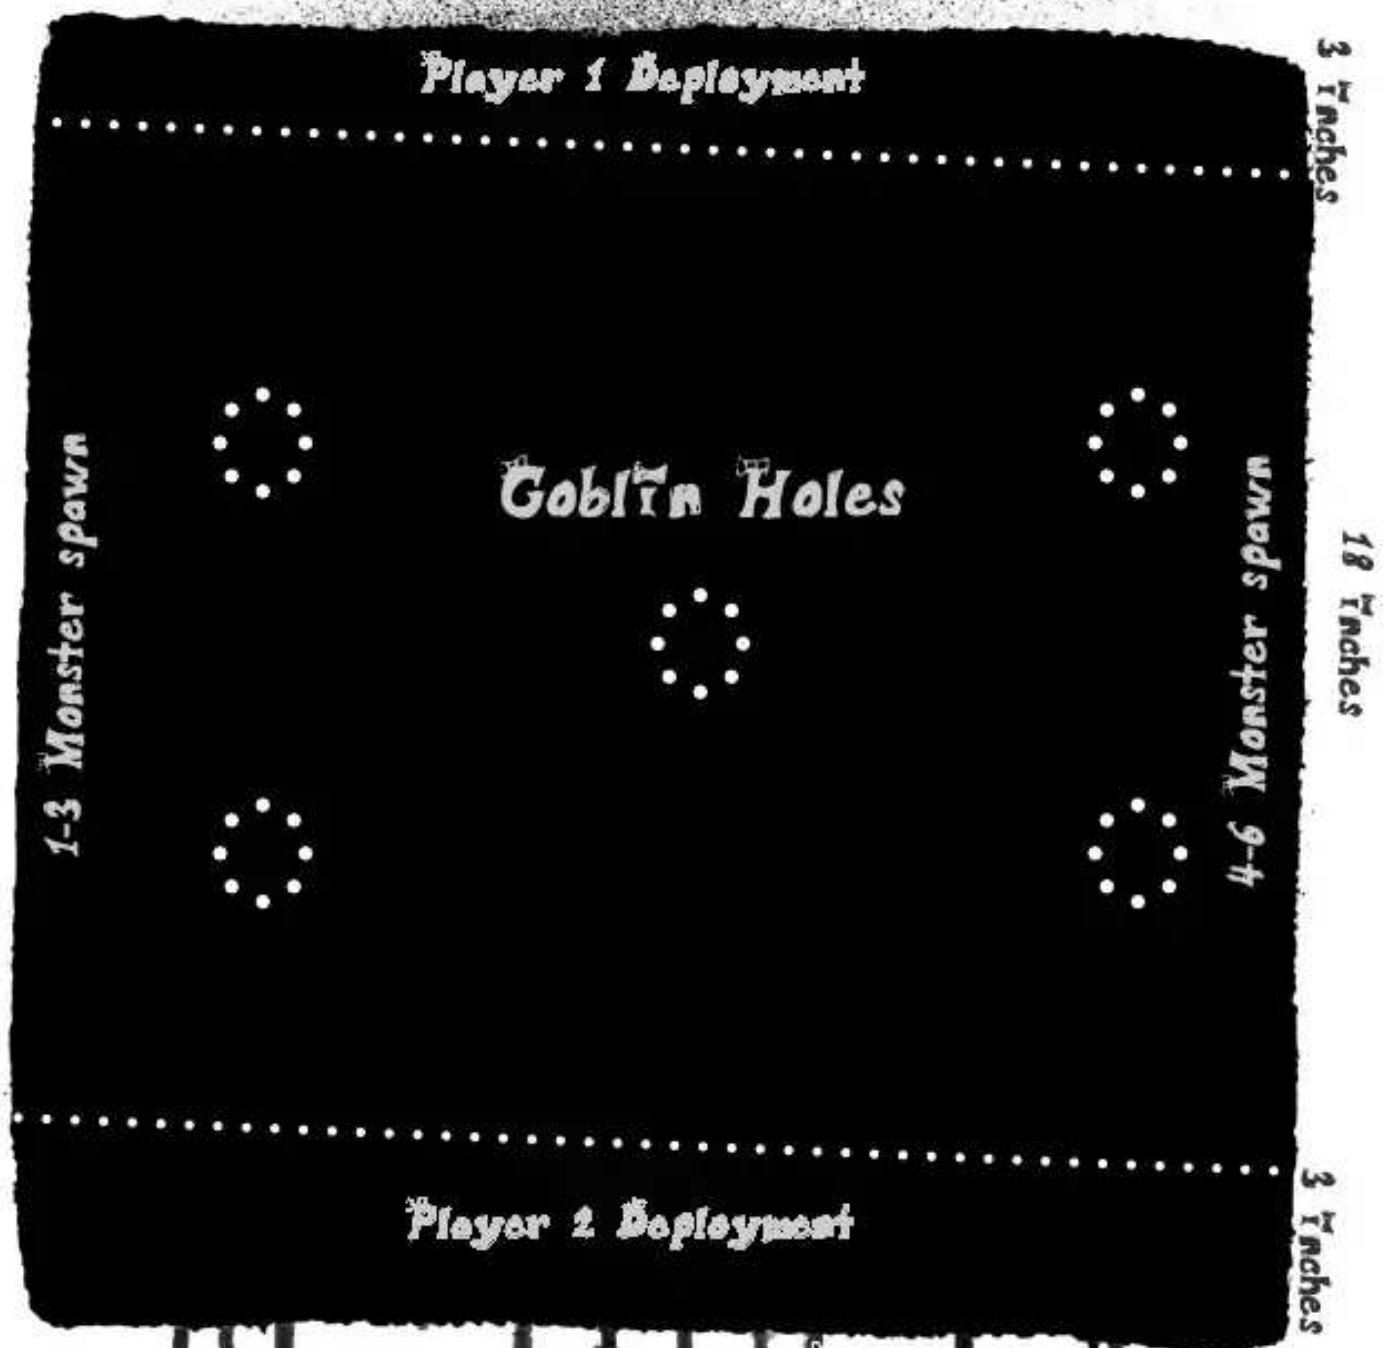

Solo Play

As above but remove the central Hole.

COOP

As above, but every fourth Goblin is accompanied by a Morka-Porka that is friendly to the Goblins.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

You can hear the strange gibbering of goblins up ahead. As you approach you see small holes in the ground. Littered around the holes are half-eaten socks, no longer wearable. As you approach, goblin voices rise out. 'Isss smells fresh SOCKS!'

The warrens below are deep, and there is no end to the goblins that pour forth. PCs can try to collapse a hole with a Strength test.

When the PCs return to Vriprix with a pair of socks read:

Vriprix hastily grabs the socks from you. You hear a burst of glee from the strange wizard as he sings out in joy. You make out the sound of him putting them on. 'Thank you,' he says through tear-filled eyes, 'you have no idea what this means to me.'

9. THE FORBIDDEN PSALM

You visit Vriprix a few times, but he does not answer your knocks or calls. A week passes and you try once more. You hear the familiar footsteps on stone once again and the small slit opens. The single beady eye looks at you. 'I found it, I know where the eighth Psalm of the Nameless Scripture is.' He tells you of its location, but this will be no easy task.

Goal

Kill the guardian of the Forbidden Psalm and bring the text back to Vriprix.

Reward

The promise of 1000 Gold and a chance to retire (There Can Be Only One pg. 116).

Setup and Treasure

Place a Great Maw (pg. 67) in the centre of the board. It has the Forbidden Psalm. Killing the M is the only way to get the Psalm!

Players also place four Treasure Markers in the centre 6 inches of the board, at least 3 inches from each other.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Every round there is a 50% chance (4+ on a D6) a random Monster (pg. 80) appears in the Monster Spawn area.

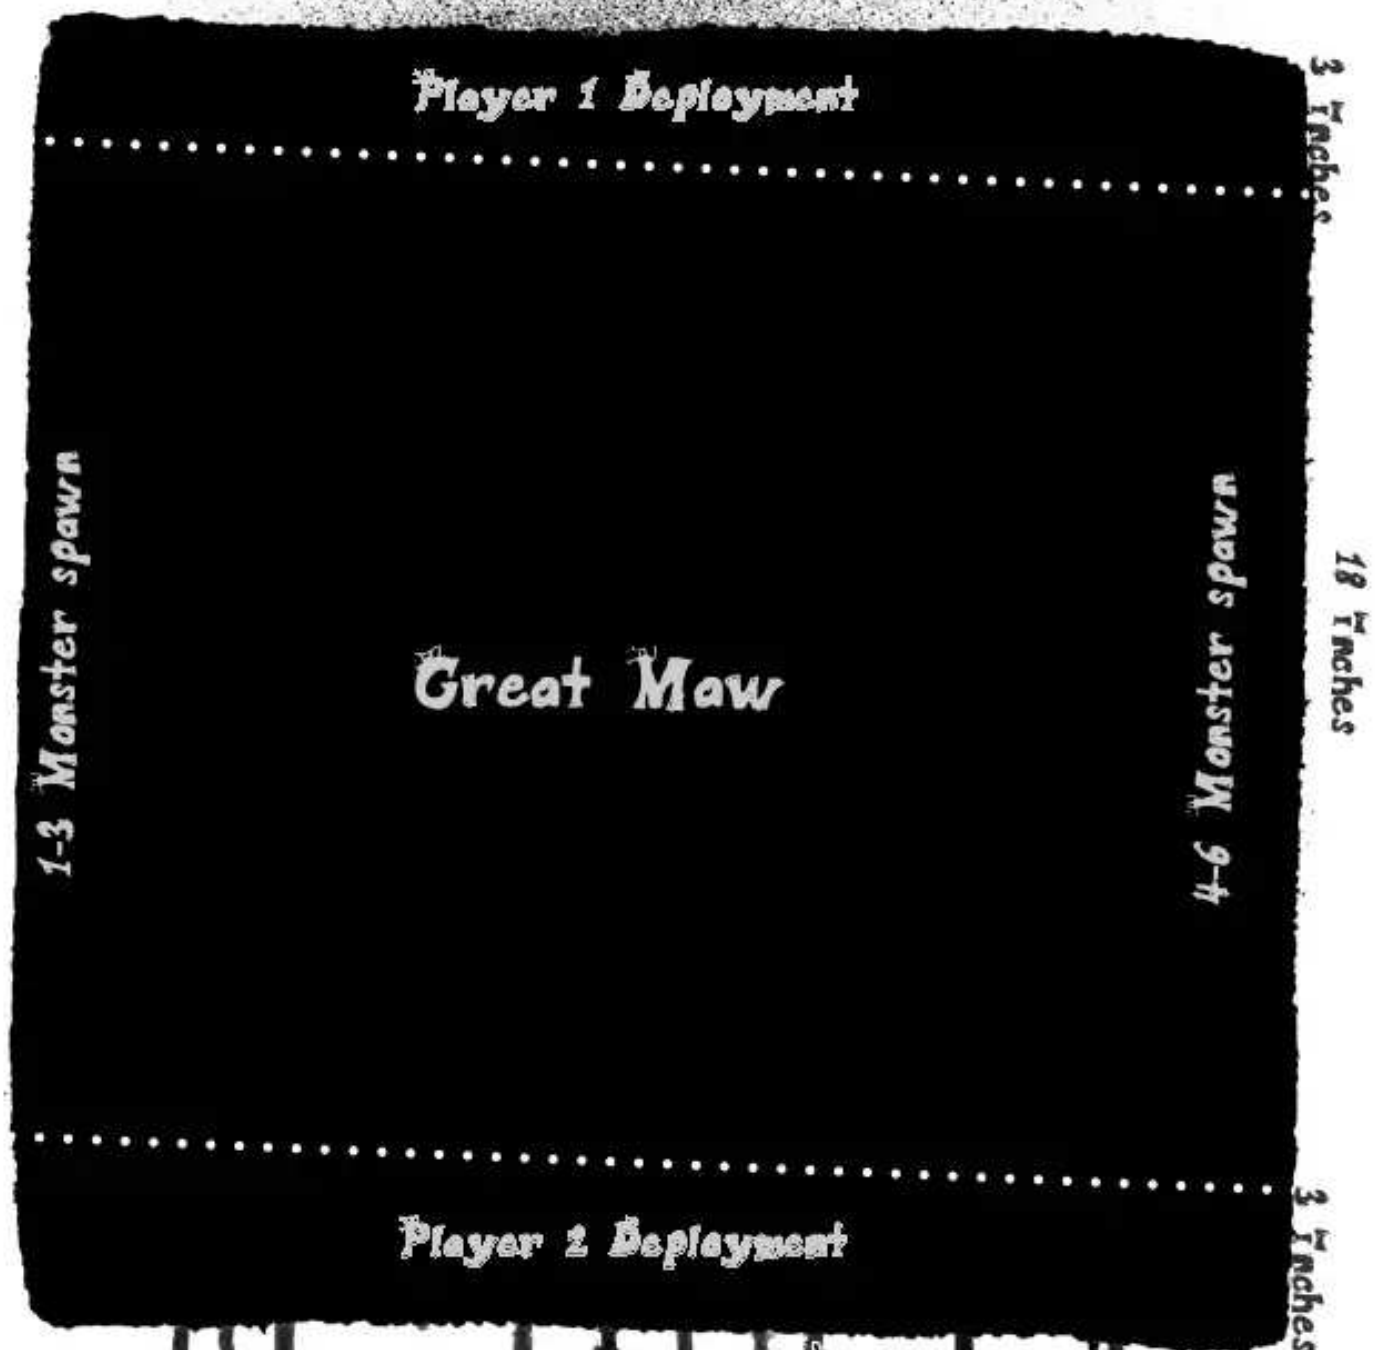

Solo Play

Monster spawns are on 5+.

COOP

Monster spawns are on 3+.

Game ends when one warband gets the Forbidden Psalm off of the board or everyone is Dead!

When the PCs arrive read:

Ahead you can see the creature. A large mouth dominates its centre, and dotted around it are piles of the bones of those who have tried and failed to end its life. Can you succeed where others have failed?

When the PCs get the Forbidden Psalm have them make a DR20 Presence test to read the Scroll! On failure they are Blinded and their socks shoot off of their feet.

On success turn to page 169 and read the Forbidden Psalm aloud (you will need a mirror).

10. THERE CAN BE ONLY ONE

After handing him the Forbidden Psalm, Vriprix tells you he has one last thing for you to do! He will prepare for the reading, a reading that will transcend you past the end of the world! However, he can only take five of you with him into what lies next, and there are rivals out there vying for your place! Go put an end to them and make it back here alive before dawn.

Goal

Kill your rivals.

Reward

Avoid the end of the world!

Setup and Treasure

What Gold remains holds little draw to you, now that a promise of everlasting reward is on the table. Kill your rivals; nothing else matters.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge. Models who flee this combat are lost to the wastes and considered Dead!

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area. Models who flee this combat are lost to the wastes and considered Dead!

Threats

A Púca (pg. 72) stalks these lands and appears at the end of round 1.

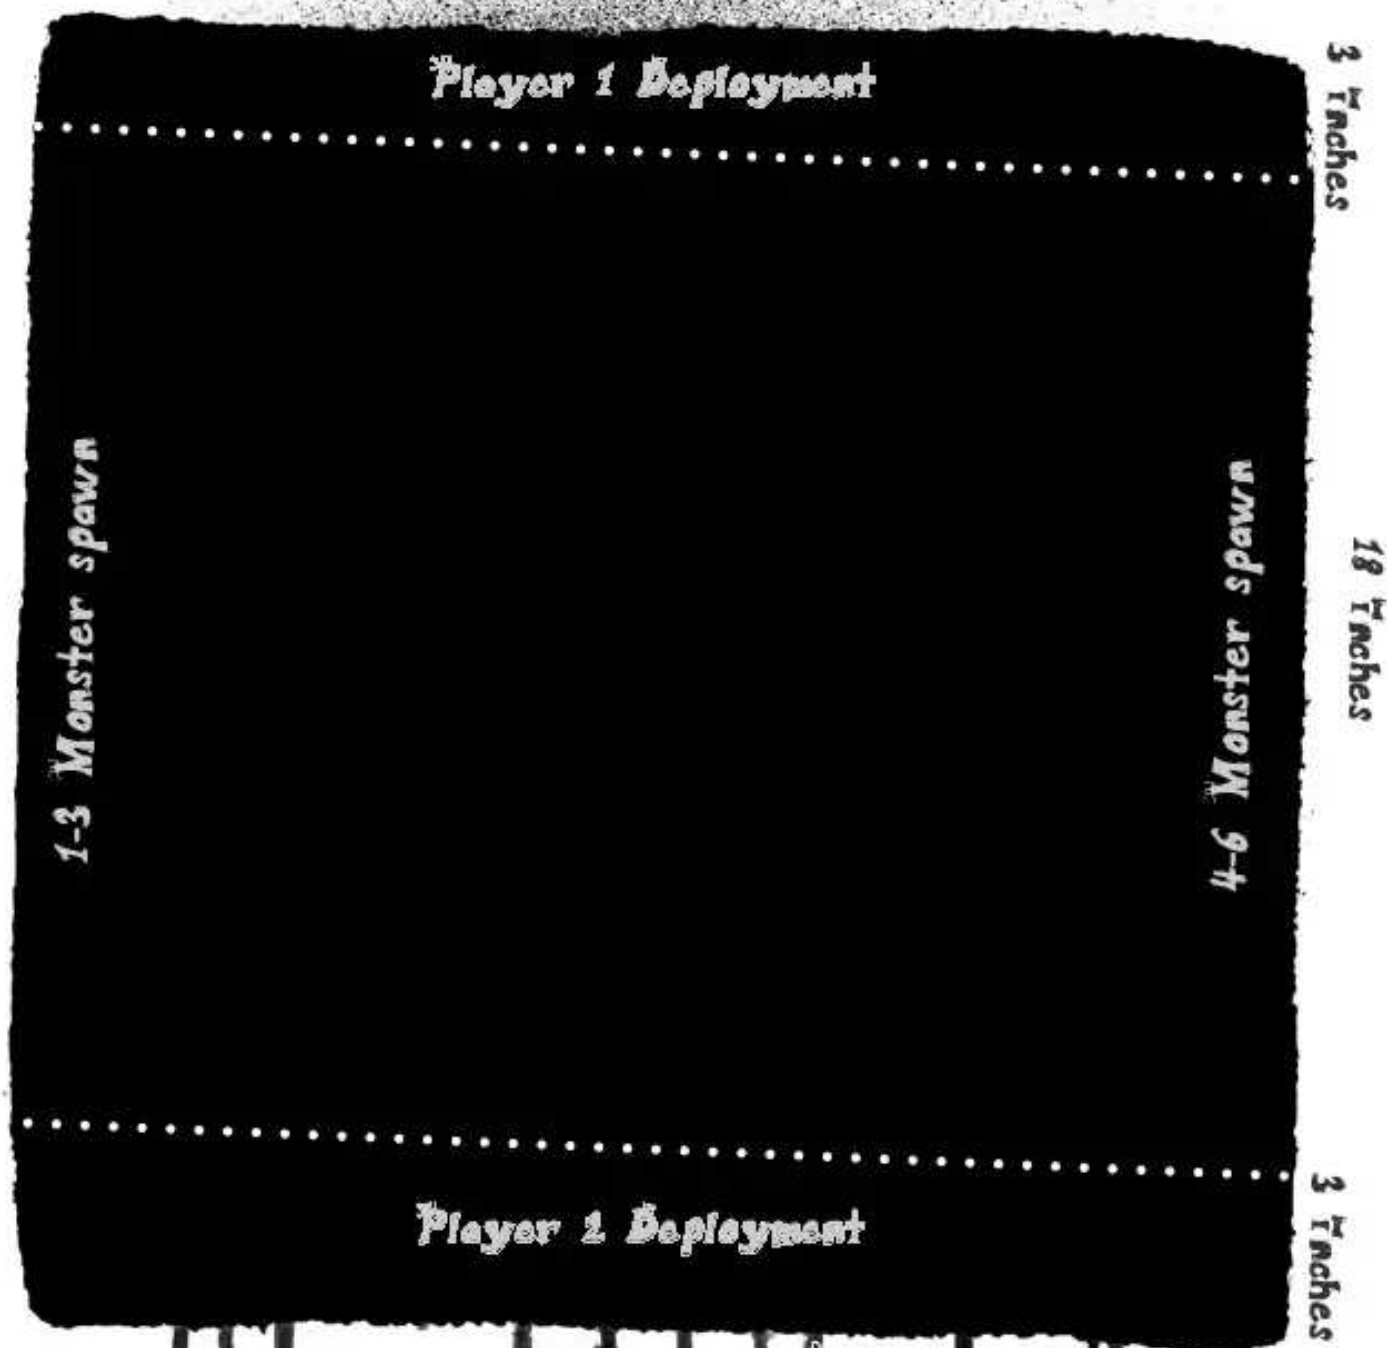

Solo Play

Arriving to fight your rivals, you see they have already been slaughtered by a Púca. Before you can beat your retreat, it sees you. You have to kill it to survive!

COOP

There is nothing left to do but fight! Vriprix told you only five may come with him, so fight until only five of you remain standing! Play as Versus mode.

Game ends when only five models remain standing and the Púca is Dead!

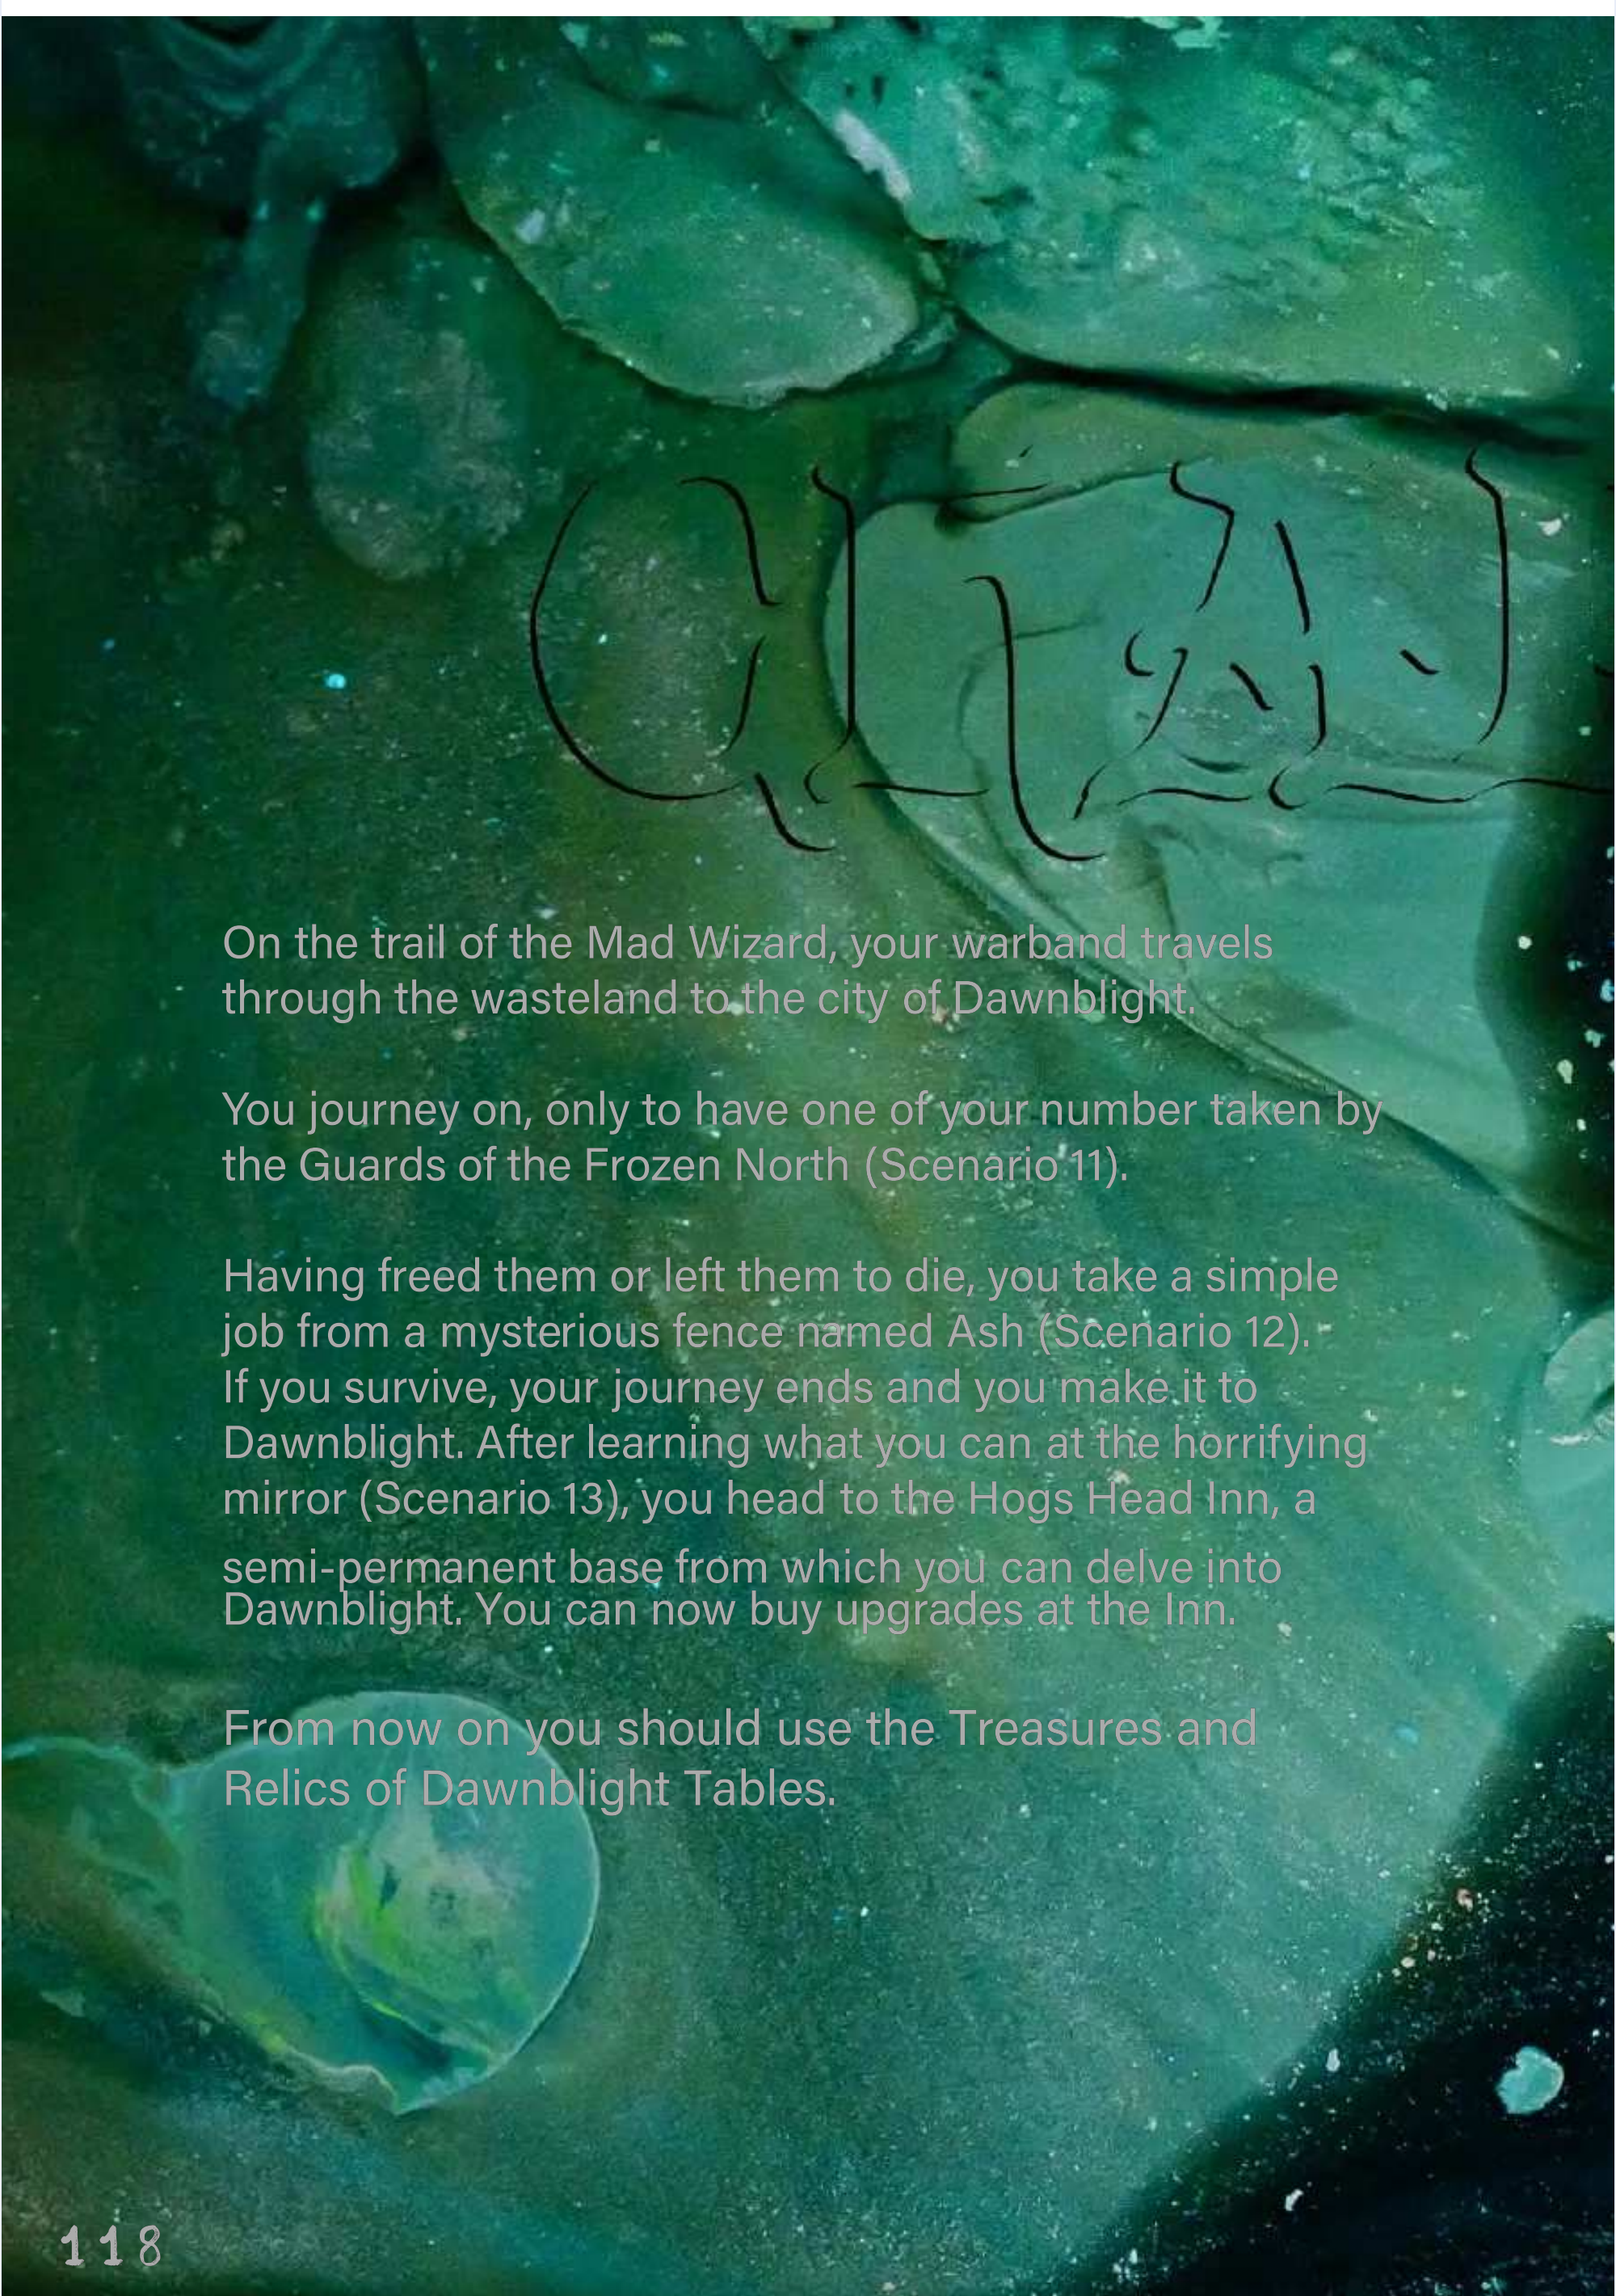

When the PCs arrive read:

The rivals Vriprix sent to fight you made it here before you, much to their bad luck. For, in the clearing where you expected to encounter them is instead a creature of pale skin, blood and gore dripping from its mouth as it stares hungrily at you.

When the PCs return to Vriprix read the following:

You knock heavily and a cold echo greets you. The door creaks loudly as it swings inwards, granting you access inside the castle. Exploring the cold castle, you find the odd sock littering the ground, but no sign of Vriprix! The Mad Wizard has left without you...

RPG

On the trail of the Mad Wizard, your warband travels through the wasteland to the city of Dawnblight.

You journey on, only to have one of your number taken by the Guards of the Frozen North (Scenario 11).

Having freed them or left them to die, you take a simple job from a mysterious fence named Ash (Scenario 12). If you survive, your journey ends and you make it to Dawnblight. After learning what you can at the horrifying mirror (Scenario 13), you head to the Hogs Head Inn, a semi-permanent base from which you can delve into Dawnblight. You can now buy upgrades at the Inn.

From now on you should use the Treasures and Relics of Dawnblight Tables.

Treasures of Daronblight

1. Rusty Nail [1] [Thrown]
[Agility]
2. D4 Gold
3. Skeleton missing its head [can be used as a
One-Handed Makeshift
Weapon]
4. Pet Rock
5. Tincture
6. Antidote
7. Whisky
8. Lantern
9. A Dead Snake [can be sold in the Hogs Head Inn for 5
Gold]
10. Adventure Chapbook by
Rugose Kohn [booklet]
[sold for 10 Gold to Glömm
the Collector]
11. 8 Gold
12. A random Weapon
13. A random set of Armor
14. A random Clean Scroll
15. A random Unclean Scroll
16. 16 Gold
17. Bag o' Rats
18. 1 random Relic
19. 20 Gold
20. Roll twice more and take both results

Treasure Rolls

Scenarios indicate how and when to roll for Treasure.

Treasure Roll are DR10
Presence tests.

On failure the model cuts
their hand on rusty nails
and takes 1 damage

~~that~~ ignores

On success they roll
on the Treasure Table
relevant to the Scenario.

The model then, if they have Equipment slots
free, picks up that Item.
If they do not have slots
free the Item is instead placed on the ground and can be picked up by another model.
Coins do not take up
Equipment slots.

Relics of Dawn

*Only one of each Relic can be found when playing a campaign.
Reroll duplicates.*

1. Timepiece of Regret Bearer gets one reroll per Scenario.
2. Ulaethfaen Stone Bearer is immune to Diseased (pg. 22).
3. Witch Bottle Bearer is only targeted by Monsters if they are the only viable target.
4. Mugwort Sprig Bearer cannot be targeted by spells.
5. Carnwennan Dagger [D6][Agility]. Bearer is immune to Morale, Criticals always make enemies flee.
6. Bow of Lies [4][Ranged] Always hits target without needing to roll.
7. The Sword of the Generous Idiot [D8][Ignores all Armor][Strength]. Sword with a glowing blade. If another model within 1 inch uses an action to request the sword you must hand it over.
8. The Tankard of Questionable Contents Each Scenario roll a D3. 1 Whisky. 2 Potion. 3 Tincture.
9. The Whetstone of Tudwal Instead of Downing enemies, the bearer's targets are instead Dead outright when brought to 0 HP.
10. Mantle of The False King Once per Scenario the wearer may, as an action, make themselves invisible, rendering them immune to all attacks. This effect ends if they perform any action other than move.
11. Circlet of Dawnblight Wearer is considered royalty in the city. May make a Presence test to command one Monster per Scenario to perform a single move and action.
12. Wand of Change Ranged attack that auto-hits, 1 use per Scenario. Target must make a Presence test. Failure turns them into a Chaos Beast Pet (pg. 30) for the rest of the Scenario. Target drops all Equipment and remains part of the warband (Monsters turned this way remain hostile).

11. JUST ICE

A member of your warband has their past catch up to them. They are hauled away to the Ice Prisons of Kergüs by the Guards of the Frozen North, all the while pleading their innocence. No bail is offered them, and in the morning they are sentenced to a quick death. Break them out or mourn them at dawn.

Goal

Rescue your comrade.

Reward

Justice?

Setup and Treasure

Randomly determine which member of your warband is imprisoned. Place them inside the prison, which should be 4 inches by 6 inches, placed in the centre of the board. At each corner of the prison place an Ice Guard (pg. 68).

A model who is not imprisoned and is within 1 inch of the prison can make a Presence test. On success they free their comrade, who can then leave.

Each Ice Guard has an Ice Sword [D8][Agility] and 1 random contraband Item (Treasure). After killing an Ice Guard a model can make a Treasure Roll.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Four Ice Guards as above. Additionally, the ice is slippery, and all models move 1 inch less than normal.

Solo Play

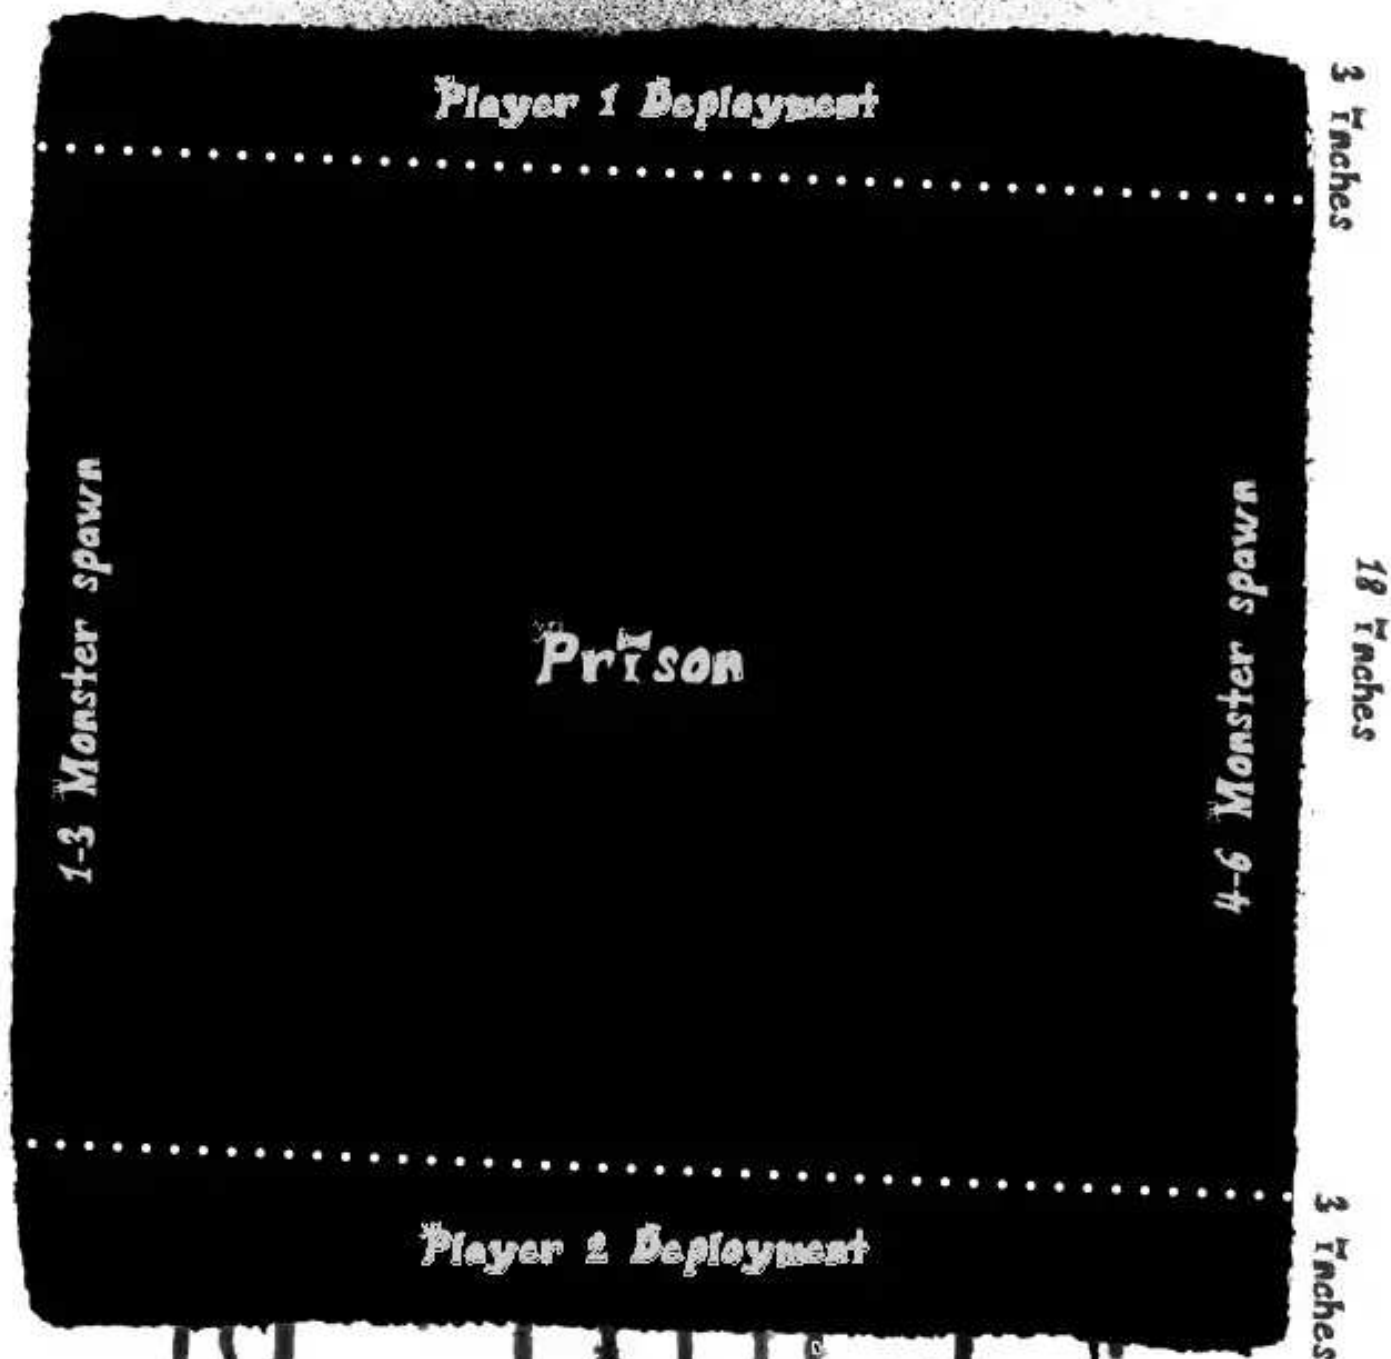

Three Ice Guards are present.

COOP

Six Ice Guards are present.

Game ends after the 5th round.

Models still imprisoned are lost forever!

When the PCs arrive read:

Your breath hangs in the cold air as you approach the stoic Ice Guards. 'Turn back, unless you wish to face the same fate as your friend here.' They draw their weapons, ready to attack.

When the PCs have freed their friend read:

It was hard fought but your friend thanks you for saving them, once again attesting their innocence as you walk back to camp.

This Scenario was created in support of Slug Wizard Spring 2021, an open event inviting all scale modelers to create a slug wizard miniature. Donations made during the event benefited The Bail Project, a

12. A FIRE FOR THE HILLS

Guest Scenario by Ash Barker

The job is done. Burdened with what you could salvage and steal from the tombs you have looted, night is setting in around you. Your fence, the architect of this somewhat suspect bit of work, is supposed to meet you in the hills overlooking the ruined church and its surrounding crypts. A signal fire burns cheerfully ahead as the sun slips behind the lip of this hill and darkness falls. As the gloom grows ever deeper, you begin to realize that the fire appears no closer than it was nearly an hour earlier. In fact, it may actually be getting further away. Worse still, creeping figures appear to be rising behind and on your flanks as the path seems to stretch into forever...

Pick up your feet and let's go.

Goal

Escape the unnatural night and grasping shadows wishing to swallow the tomb-robbers by exiting the opposite board edge.

Reward

Each model is carrying 2 Gold worth of looted valuables from the tombs. Additionally, the players should roll off, the winner randomly determining one model to be carrying a Blood Drop ruby worth 5 Gold. If they survive and exit the board, the fence rewards each model for what they have carried out.

Setup and Treasure

The path into the hills is rough and heavily wooded. Set up 3 to 4 pieces of appropriate height woodlands terrain on the board, at least 6 inches from the player deployment areas. They should be at least 3 inches from each other and 4 inches from any board edge. Scatter one Treasure Marker D6 inches from the center of the board in a random direction.

The looted valuables weigh down the group significantly. They take up an Equipment slot if one is available, and each turn the model must pass a DR12.Strength test at the beginning of their activation or suffer -1 Agility for the remainder of that turn.

Place a Marker representing these valuables next to any Downed model. It may be picked up, but the model carrying it needs an available Equipment slot and their Strength test is DR 14.

Deployment

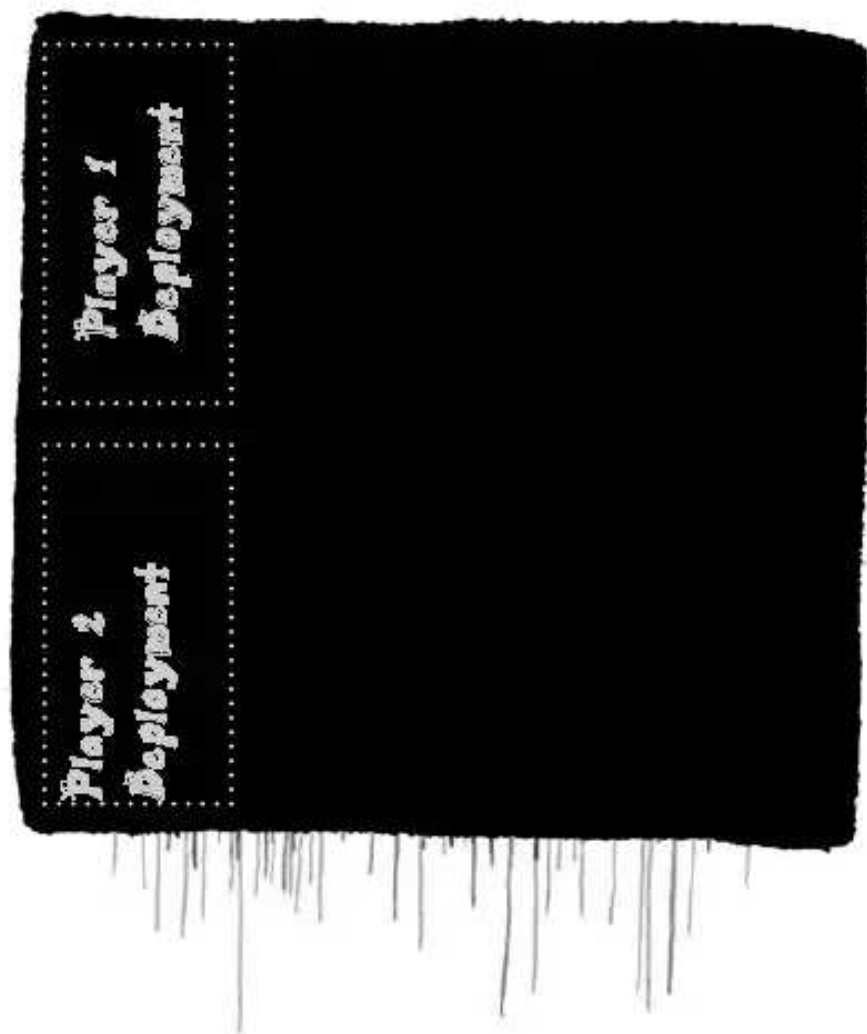

Versus and COOP: players roll off and choose either deployment area. Deployment areas are 2 inches by 9 inches.

Solo Play: you must place as close as possible to half your models in each of the two deployment areas. Place a Reaching Darkness (pg. 126) on both sides of the board during the 2nd round.

Threats

At the end of each round, starting with the model or piece of terrain closest to the deployment edge, move that model or terrain D6 inches directly back towards that edge. Any model hit by terrain in this way suffers 1 damage and is dragged along with it. Any model contacting the deployment edge is immediately taken out of action as the darkness consumes them. Any terrain is removed and reappears immediately at a random point along the opposite board edge, as the dark forces loop the path ahead. Place it in the centre of that edge and roll 2D6. On odds move it that many inches up, on evens move it that many inches down. If it displaces a model that model suffers 1 damage and is placed at the closest border of the terrain.

Models equipped with a Torch or Lantern can ward off this strange power. They may reduce the distance they are drawn back by half of the total rolled, rounding up.

Starting on the 2nd round, place a Reaching Darkness in the middle of a random board edge scatter it 2D6 inches left (evens) or right (odds), stopping if it contacts terrain or another model. Reaching Darkness always move towards the closest player model, ignoring line of sight.

At the beginning of the 4th round, place the Soldier of the Skies (pg. 126) in the centre of the opposite board edge. This vengeful being always moves towards the model with the Blood Drop if possible, or the model closest to where it has fallen if it is no longer carried.

Any models still on the board at the end of the 6th round are automatically taken out of action and must make a Death Save after the Scenario ends.

REACHING DARKNESS

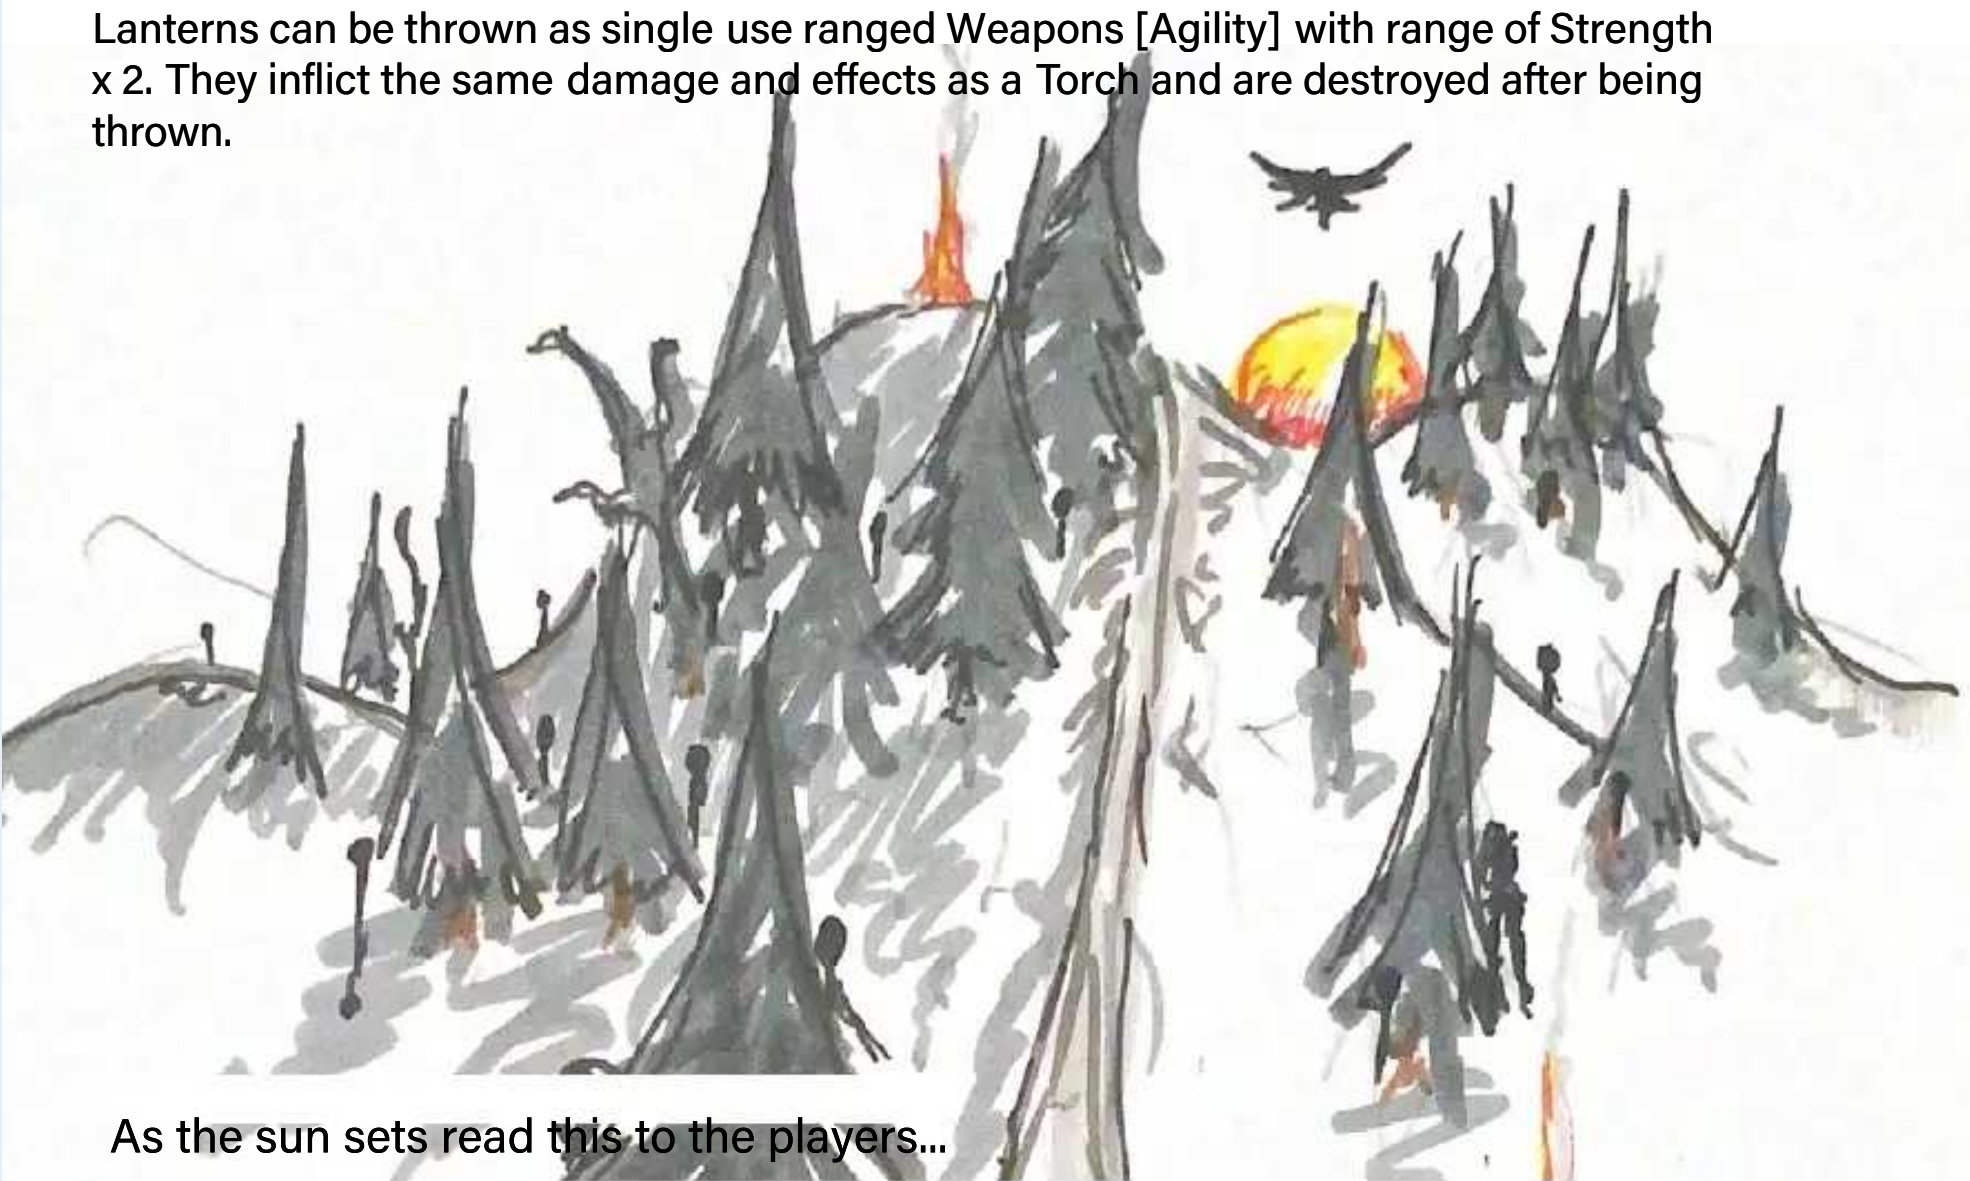

HP:5 Morale:9 Grasping Tendrils:D4 Armor:0*

SOLDIER OF THE SKIES

HP:15 Morale:- Dark Blade:D8 Armor:0*

* Attacks with nonmagical Weapons only ever cause 1 damage to this model. Against magical attacks they are Armor 0. Attacks with a torch do D10 damage, but the leaching darkness causes them to burn for one less round each time they're used (any torch is extinguished at the end of a round in which it causes damage twice). A Reaching Darkness damaged by any torch must make a DR 20 Morale test.

Lanterns can be thrown as single use ranged Weapons [Agility] with range of Strength x 2. They inflict the same damage and effects as a Torch and are destroyed after being thrown.

As the sun sets read this to the players...

With each of you carrying a heavy sack of valuables, you trudge out of the valley, leaving behind the decrepit crypts and ruinous church. You stink of the molding bones and rags you had to sift through for these trinkets, but the fence assured you he had good gold to trade for these bits you had to dirty your hands to find.

The air darkens and becomes more oppressive as you trudge steadily upward. You can't help but feel like some burden is pulling at you, dragging against your feet and bodies as you head away. As the shadows lengthen, this sense becomes even more palpable. The bonfire in the distance seems to draw even further away as you begin to feel the dark actually dragging at your clothing. Run. This place wants back what you have stolen.

13. THROUGH THE LOOKING-GLASS

The Mad Wizard was recently seen entering the perplexing mirror located in Dawnblight's affluent district. The silent howls of those trapped within suggest a fate worse than death. What did the Mad Wizard want with it?

Goal

Investigate the Mirror of Solomon.

Reward

Bring back a shard of the Mirror.
Warbands are paid 20 Gold per shard.

Setup and Treasure

Place an object with a 50mm base in the centre of the board to represent the Mirror of Solomon. Place four Silent (pg. 74-75) around the Mirror at least 3 inches from the Mirror and 3 inches from all other Silent.

A warband member can approach the Mirror from any side. When within 1 inch roll a D20 and add their Presence modifier to the result, then consult the table below.

1. They are drawn into the Mirror. A new face, resembling theirs, can be seen in the fleshy frame.

2-5. They are drawn into the Mirror but spat out at the start of the next round, haunted by what they saw. They lose D4 Presence permanently.

6-10. D10 Gold is spat at their feet.

11-15. They receive a random Weapon (pg. 19).

16-19. They receive a random Relic (pg. 121).

20+. The Caledfwlch Sword [D10][Criticals destroy enemy Weapons][Strength] appears in their hand.

Breaking the Mirror

The Mirror has 20HP and AV 1. A model may make an attack (ranged or melee combat) against it. If they Fumble, the attack's damage is reflected onto them instead. Roll damage and apply it to the model.

If the Mirror is ever destroyed, a model may pick up a shard when within 2 inches of the Mirror. These shards can be sold for 20 Gold each.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Four Silent (pg. 74-75) guard the Mirror, for what purpose no one knows. Should the Mirror ever be broken, the Cath Palug (pg. 58) appears in a random spawn area.

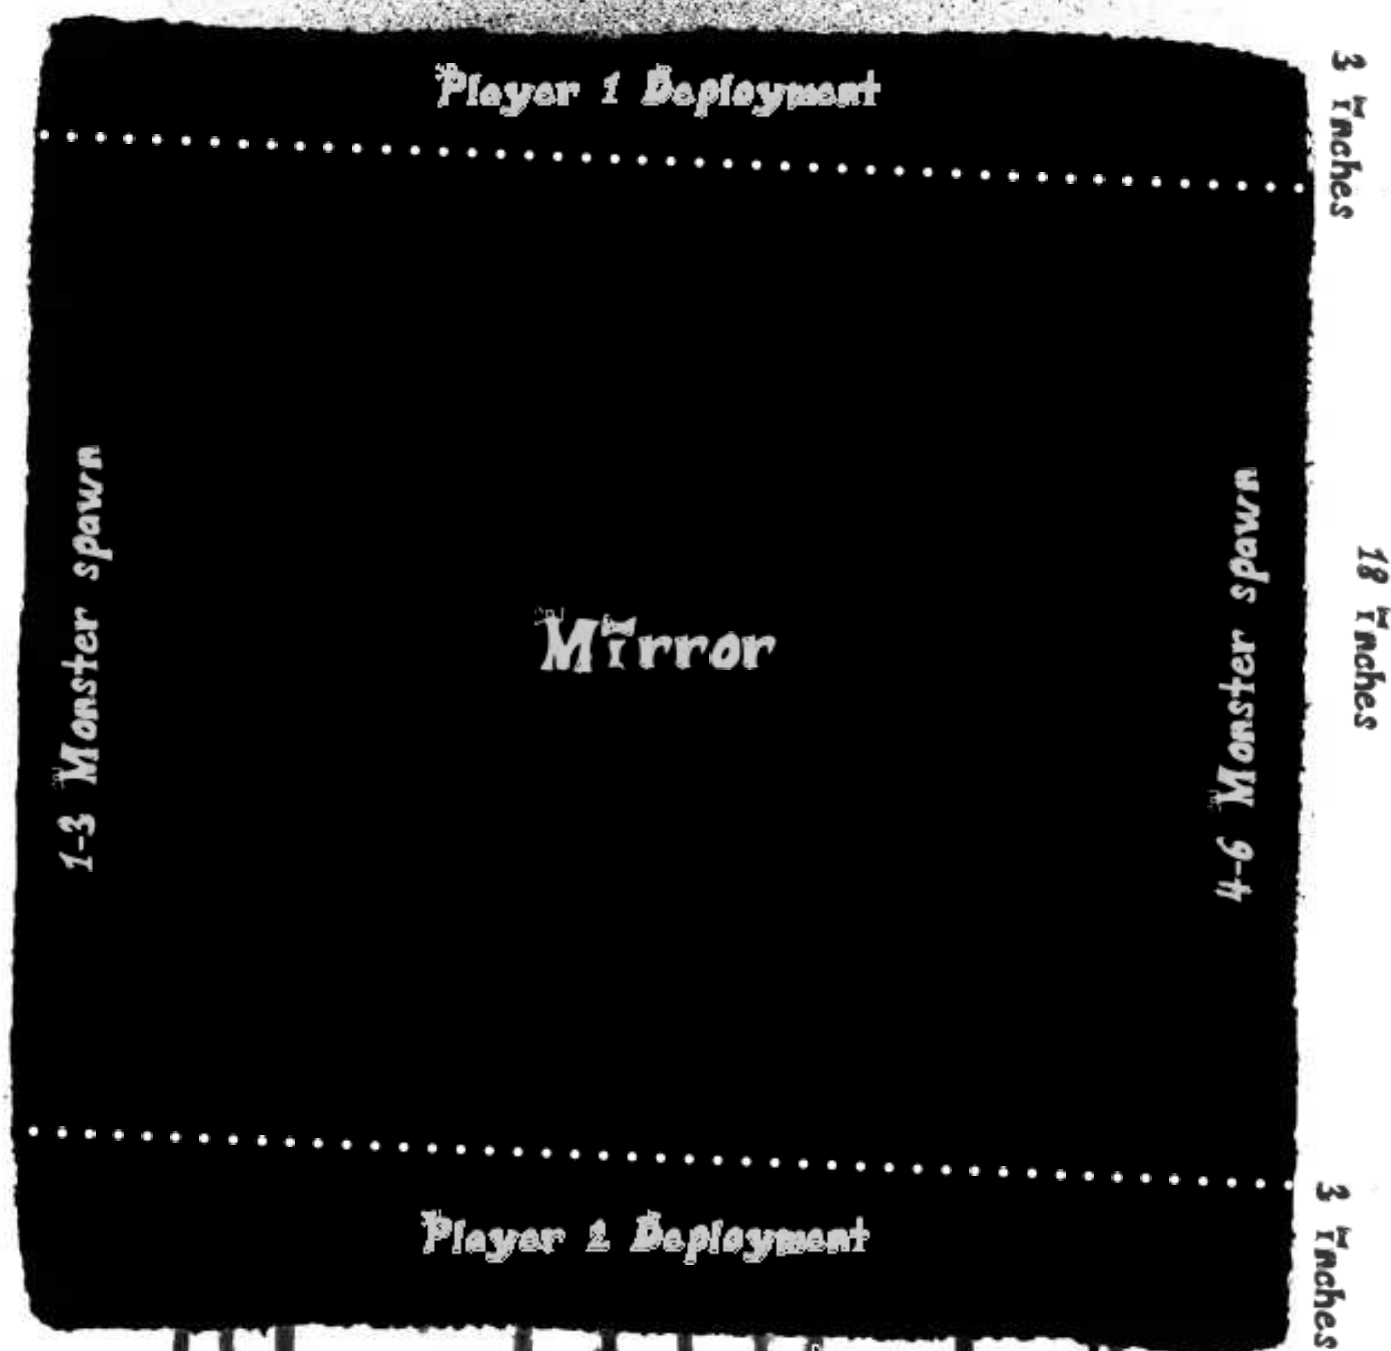

Solo Play

Same as Versus.

COOP

Four Silent guard the Mirror.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

The Mirror of Solomon was created by a long-dead sorcerer. It has found its way to the city of Dawnblight where it undulates, deep within the city, awaiting those foolish enough to approach. The fleshy frame twists as the faces of those entrapped writhe with silent howls of horror.

If the Mirror is broken read:

A distant howl rings out when the Mirror shatters into a thousand pieces. Quick! The Beast, it comes!

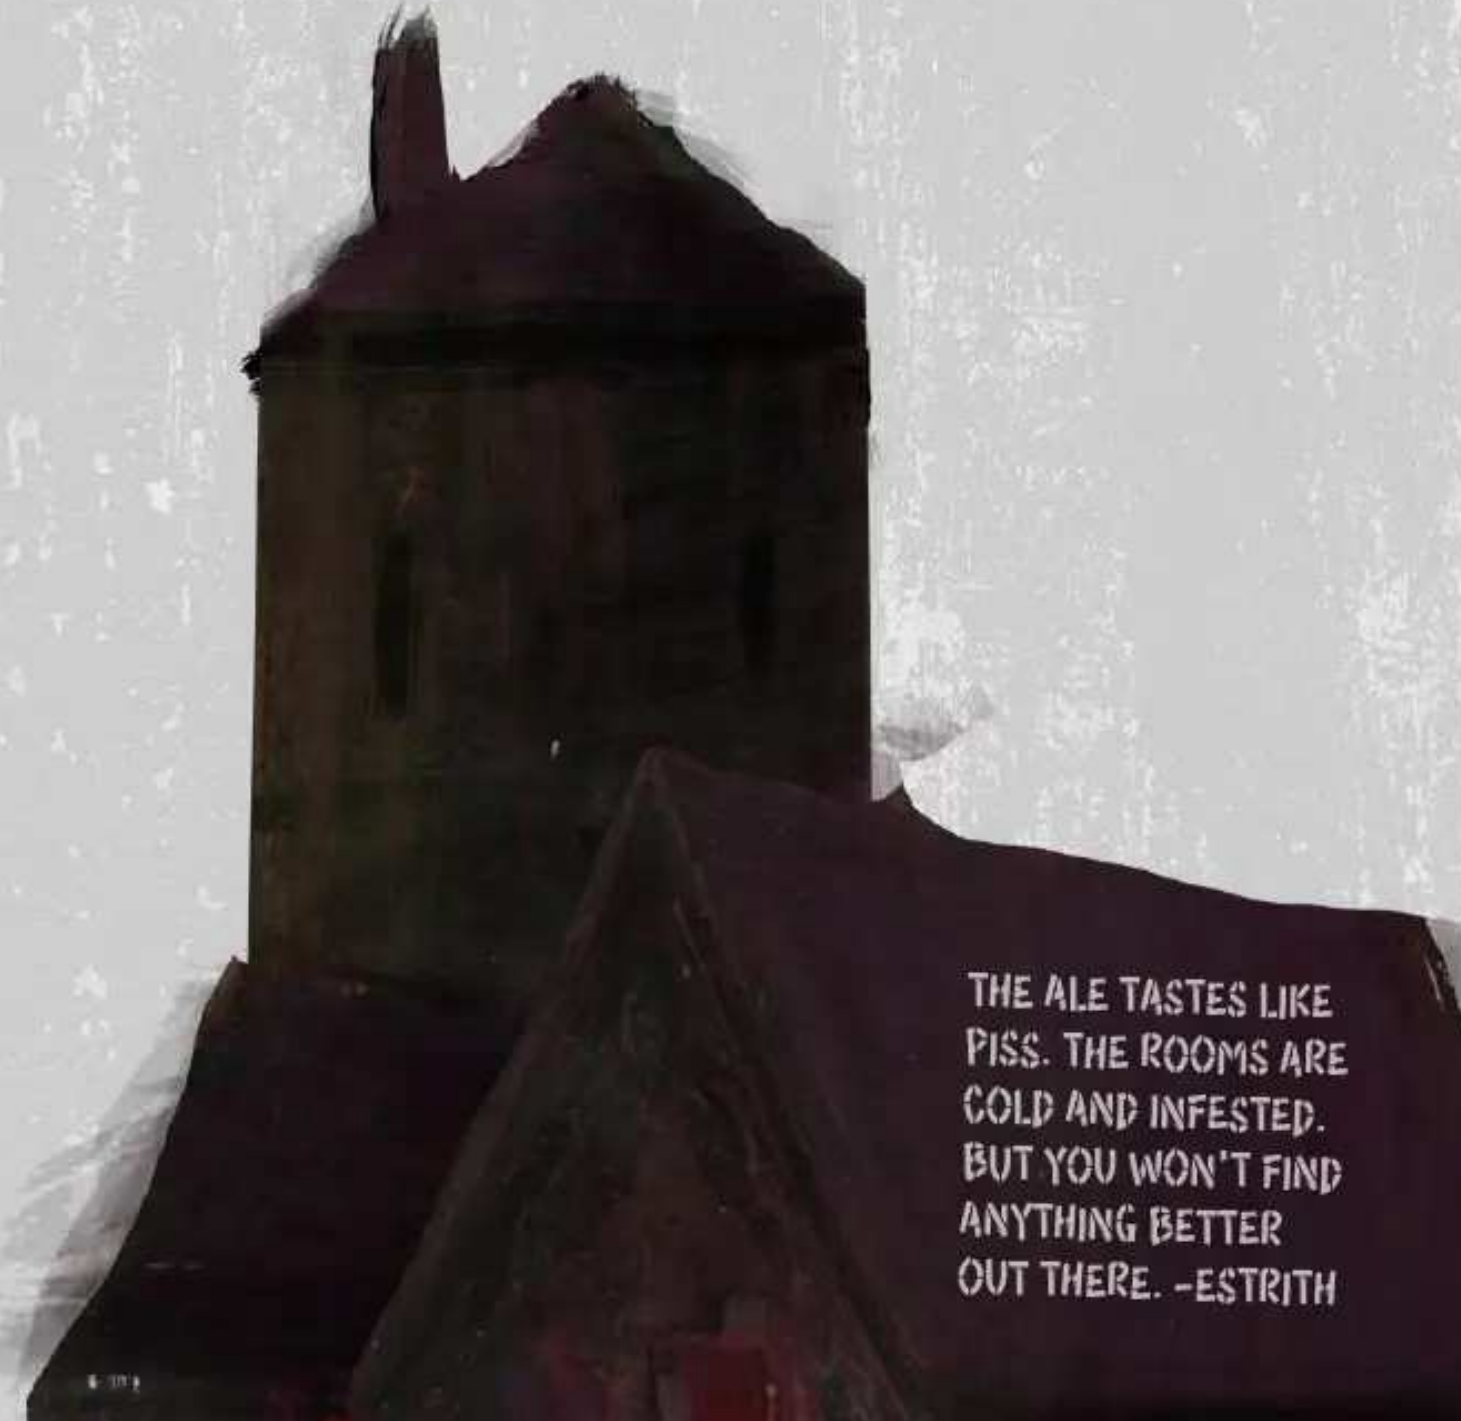

RPG

Hogs Head Inn

The sign of the Hogs Head hangs over a ramshackle assortment of buildings, as if the whole hamlet was desperately knocked together. The tavern's drinking hall spans the ground floors of several former homes, while bunks and bedrooms can be reached by traveling through corridors that snake around and about without reason or rhyme.

Its landlord, Estrith, is as blunt as her inn is crooked. She tolerates no nonsense from her guests, but she pays well for supplies and stories of death and lucky escapes.

Treasure hunters, fellow warbands seeking the Mad Wizard, and one strange snail merchant call the Hogs Head home. Rumours and whispers fill the drinking halls throughout day and night.

THE ALE TASTES LIKE
PISS. THE ROOMS ARE COLD AND INFESTED.
BUT YOU WON'T FIND
ANYTHING BETTER
OUT THERE. -ESTRITH

Upgrading your Room

You can rent a room at the Hogs Head, and can upgrade it to provide support to your warband. After each Scenario you may spend 50 Gold to buy one upgrade for your room, which grants your warband permanent benefits.

Recruitment Poster

When recruiting a new warband member they now come equipped with one random Weapon and Light Armor for free.

Beds

You can expand your warband by one member per bed. You still only take five warband members into each Scenario. You can buy up to five additional beds. Each bed counts as one upgrade and costs 50 Gold.

Better Grub

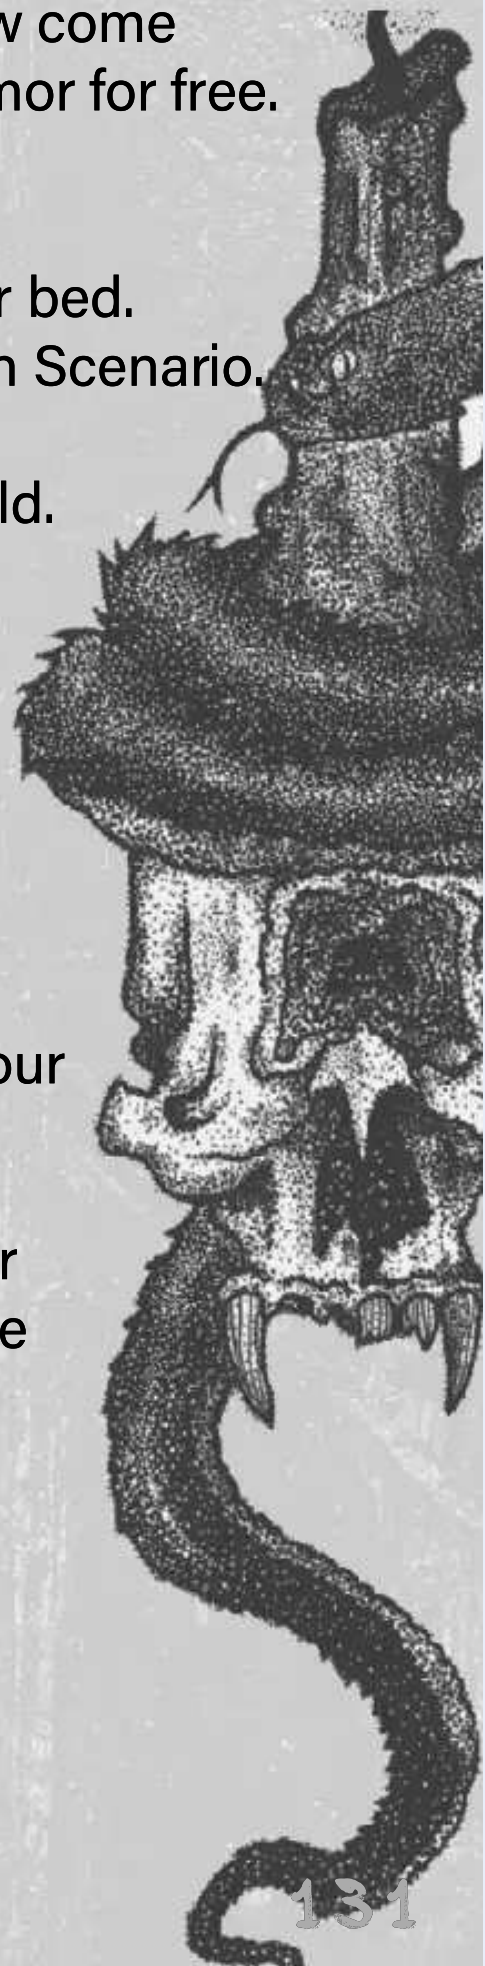

You can give one member of your warband +1HP. This upgrade can be purchased once per warband member.

Ritual Circle

You can attempt to resurrect a Dead member of your warband. Choose a surviving member to perform the ritual. They make a Presence test. On success the resurrected member replaces their Flaw with a new random Flaw. Failed rituals reduce the performing model's Toughness by 1. Fumbling the test kills the performing model.

Whittling Knife

Your warband can make 5 Ammo or 1 Cannon Ball per Scenario.

GLÖMM THE COLLECTOR

In a corner of the Hogs Head Inn a shop has been set up by an odd creature, a humanoid snail who doesn't recall how they came to be here, look the way they do, or who you are from visit to visit. They give their name as Glömm the Collector.

Glömm pays well for trinkets, Relics, and odds and ends. They also sell surplus goods. You can buy and sell any Items, Weapons, and Armor from Glömm between Scenarios. Additionally, Glömm has 1 random Relic on them at any given time, and sells this for 50 Gold.

Glömm can be encountered in the wild, searching the ruins of Dawnblight for Relics and trinkets.

If encountered (by rolling Glömm the Collector on the Weather and Conditions Table), set up Glömm equidistant from each player's deployment area.

A model can approach Glömm, and when within 1 inch, as an action, can purchase one Item from them. When encountered in such a way, Glömm has:

- 1 random Weapon
- 1 random Armor
- 1 random Relic

All Items are sold at half their cost rounded to the nearest Gold. Relics are sold for just 25 Gold.

Anyone attacking Glömm can no longer sell Items to them after Scenarios. For reasons unknown, all Monsters ignore Glömm. If Glömm is ever hurt they move off the board at 12 inches per round at the start of the Monster activation phase.

14. SABBATIC GOAT

Estrith is in desperate need of supplies to keep the hungry treasure hunters fed. You want to earn her trust? Better head to the Sabbatic Goat farm unless you want to eat dirt for dinner. There are said to be several barrels of salted meats going to waste at the farm. Those returning with food for the hungry will be richly rewarded.

Goal

Bring back a Barrel of Salted Meat or a Goat Carcass.

Reward

Any party bringing back at least one Barrel or Goat Carcass gains 1 free room upgrade. Estrith pays 10 Gold per additional Barrel/Goat.

Setup and Treasure

Set up a building in the centre of the board representing the farm house, with four Barrels inside. Barrels may also contain Treasure. At the end of the game roll a D6 for each Barrel rescued, on 3+ they contain Treasure. Treasures in addition to the meat in the Barrels.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Six Goats (pg. 66) guard the farm house. Players take it in turns to place a Goat. Each Goat must be at least 4 inches from other Goats. On round 5, three Mutant Chickens of Kalkoroth (pg. 70) spawn in random Monster spawns.

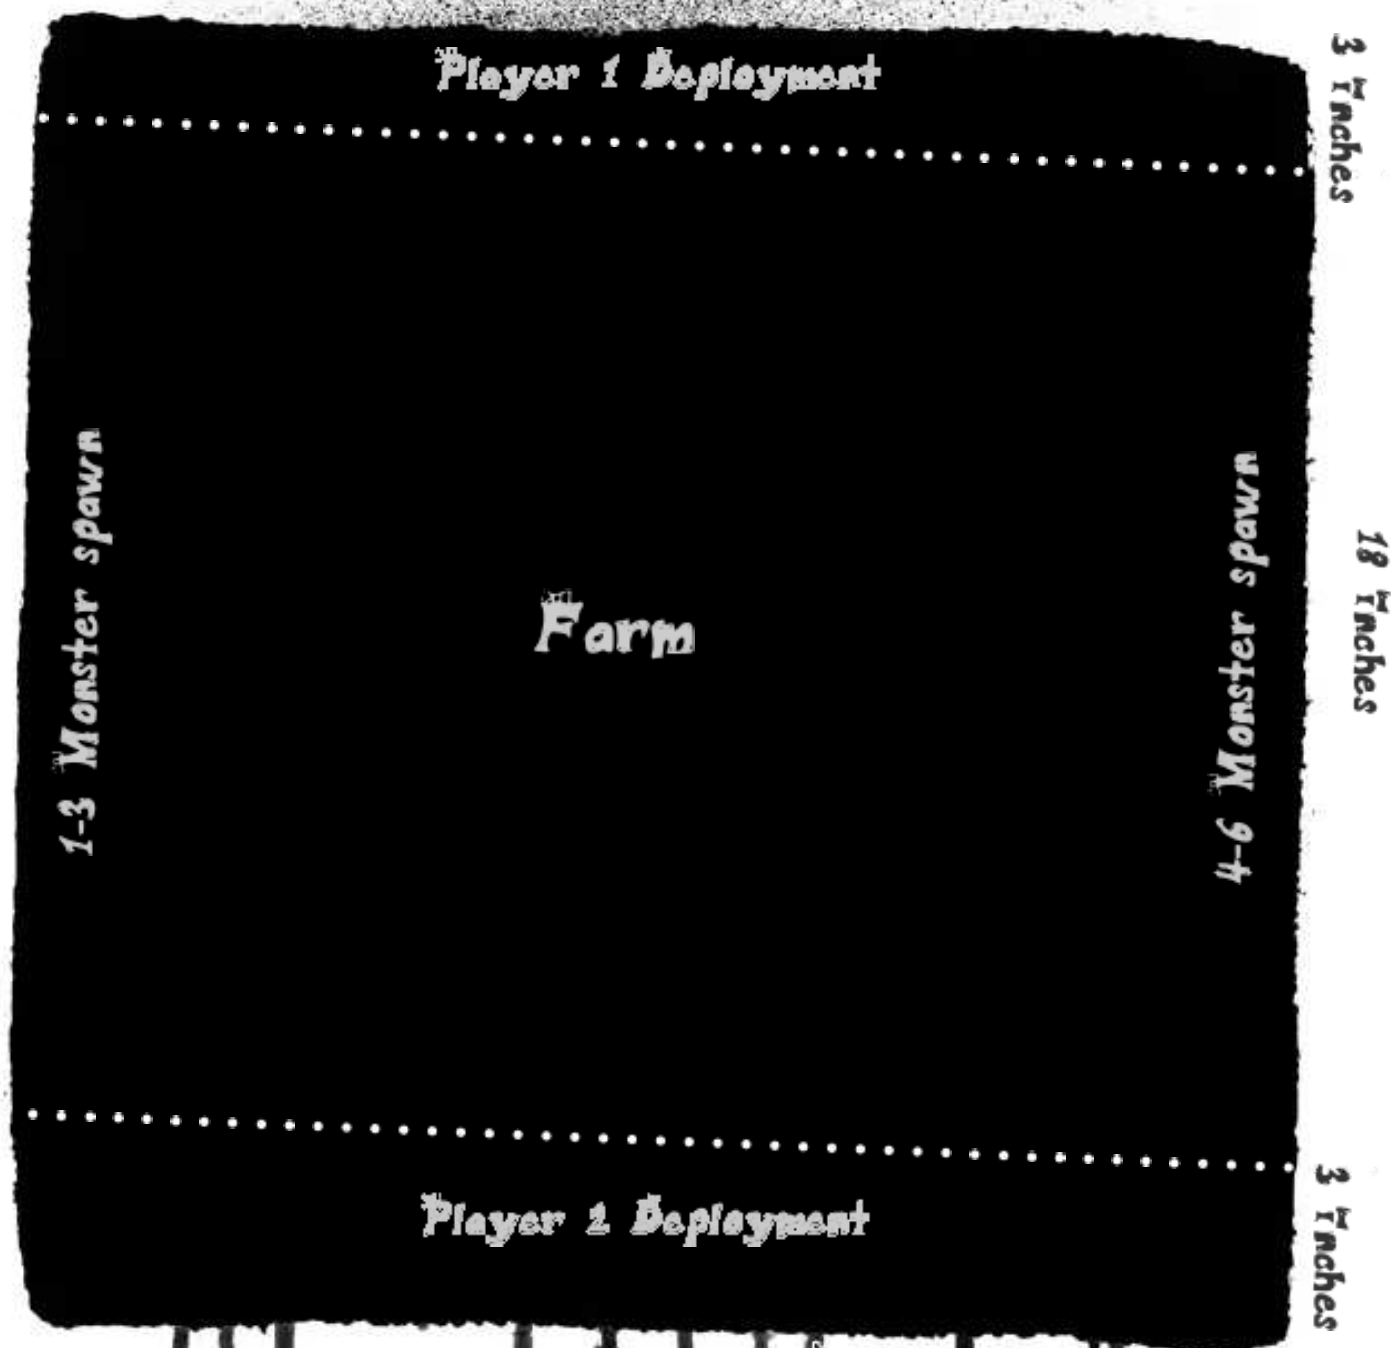

Solo Play

Only four Goats guard the farm house.

COOP

There are eight Goats present.

Game ends after the 7th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

Around the abandoned farmhouse, unholy goats litter the fields, staring at you. Their red eyes glow faintly as you approach. As you cross the broken fence they snort angrily and begin to stamp their feet. If you want the supplies you need to get through them.

When the PCs return to the Inn read:

Estrith's cold demeanour drops as she sees you carrying food. 'Maybe you can stay here after all. But wash that goat stank off first.'

Barrels

Picking up a Barrel or Goat Carcass takes an action. Dropping a Barrel/Goat is a free action. Models carrying a Barrel/Goat cannot attack or use Scrolls.

15. WEAVING WEBS OF SHADOW

Glömm left the Hogs Head over a day ago and has not returned. Estrith asks you to check up on them. They were headed to the Web District in search of an artifact thought lost to the Blind Spider Queen's nest.

Goal

Rescue Glömm the Collector.

Reward

Glömm awards every participating party 30 Gold if they escape. Spider meat is a delicacy, and each morsel brought back to the Hogs Head is worth 10 Gold (Harvesting pg. 81).

Setup and Treasure

Set up the Blind Spider Queen (pg. 53) in the centre of the board and place

Glömm next to her in a 3 inch radius Web. Place four Treasure Markers (the bodies of the Queen's previous meals) at least 6 inches from the Queen and at least 6 inches from other Treasure Markers. In a 3 inch radius around each of these Treasure Markers the terrain is covered in Webs.

If you kill the Queen she drops one random Relic.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

When a model is within 3 inches of a Treasure or Glömm they must make an Agility test. On failure the model becomes stuck in a Web and cannot move until freed. As an action a stuck model, or someone within 1 inch of them, can attempt a Strength test to break free/free them. When Glömm is free they move off the board D6 inches per round.

Don't forget: failing Agility tests alerts the Queen.

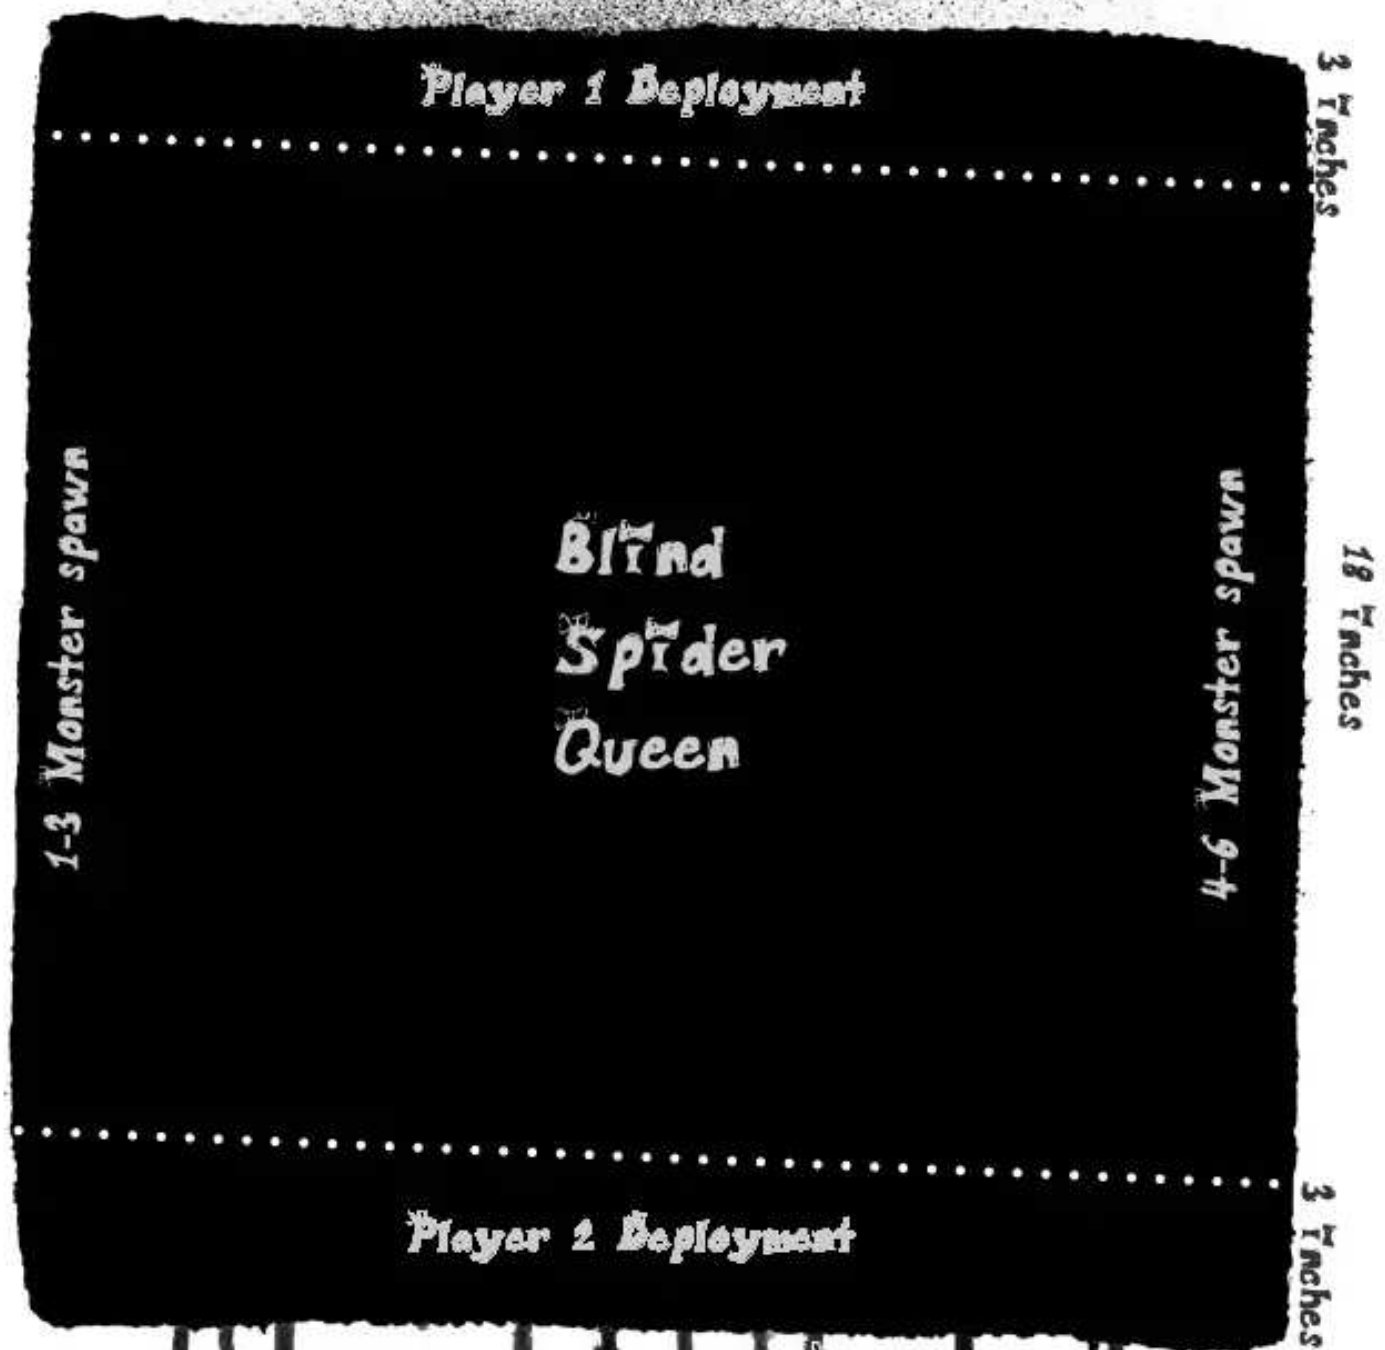

Game Ends: when Glömm the Collector leaves the board and no other living models are stuck in a Web.

Solo Play

Only one Treasure is protected by a Spider Brood.

COOP

Each Treasure is protected by a Spider Brood.

When the PCs arrive read:

Webs cover the floor and walls of this abandoned part of the city. Spiders of different sizes move over bodies cocooned in thick webs. You see Her sitting, fangs glistening in the centre of Her nest, a spider larger than any you have ever seen. She looms over Glömm hanging helplessly in the web next to her. She doesn't appear to notice you arrive and you see her eyes are clouded over.

Once the PCs free Glömm and flee from/kill the Blind Spider Queen read:

You feel like you'll never get the webs out of your hair. Glömm thanks you for saving them. Though the Blind

Spider Queen did not appear to want to eat them, they had become stuck in the web and are grateful for your aid, offering you gold in thanks.

RPG

16. MARKET

Freshly free, Glömm wasted no time returning to the city to open a stall in its deserted market. Unfortunately, they have attracted unsavoury attention from roaming beasts. But out here in the wild, the bargains on offer should not be missed.

Goal

Make great savings at Glömm's market stall.

Reward

Glömm is offering a special discount rate on all goods. All Items and Weapons can be bought for 50% off the listed prices! They are also selling 2 random Relics for 10 Gold each!

Setup and Treasure

Set up Glömm and their stall in the centre of the board. Also set up two deserted stalls as shown in the diagram. These can be searched per Treasure rules. Stalls are 3 inches by 2 inches.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Glömm's shouts of 'Great savings! Buy one get one full price!' attract random Monsters (pg. 80) at the start of each Monster activation phase. Roll for a Monster and randomly determine which board edge they appear on. If you fail a Treasure Roll on a deserted stalls, Satanic Seitan (pg. 73) appears and immediately attacks!

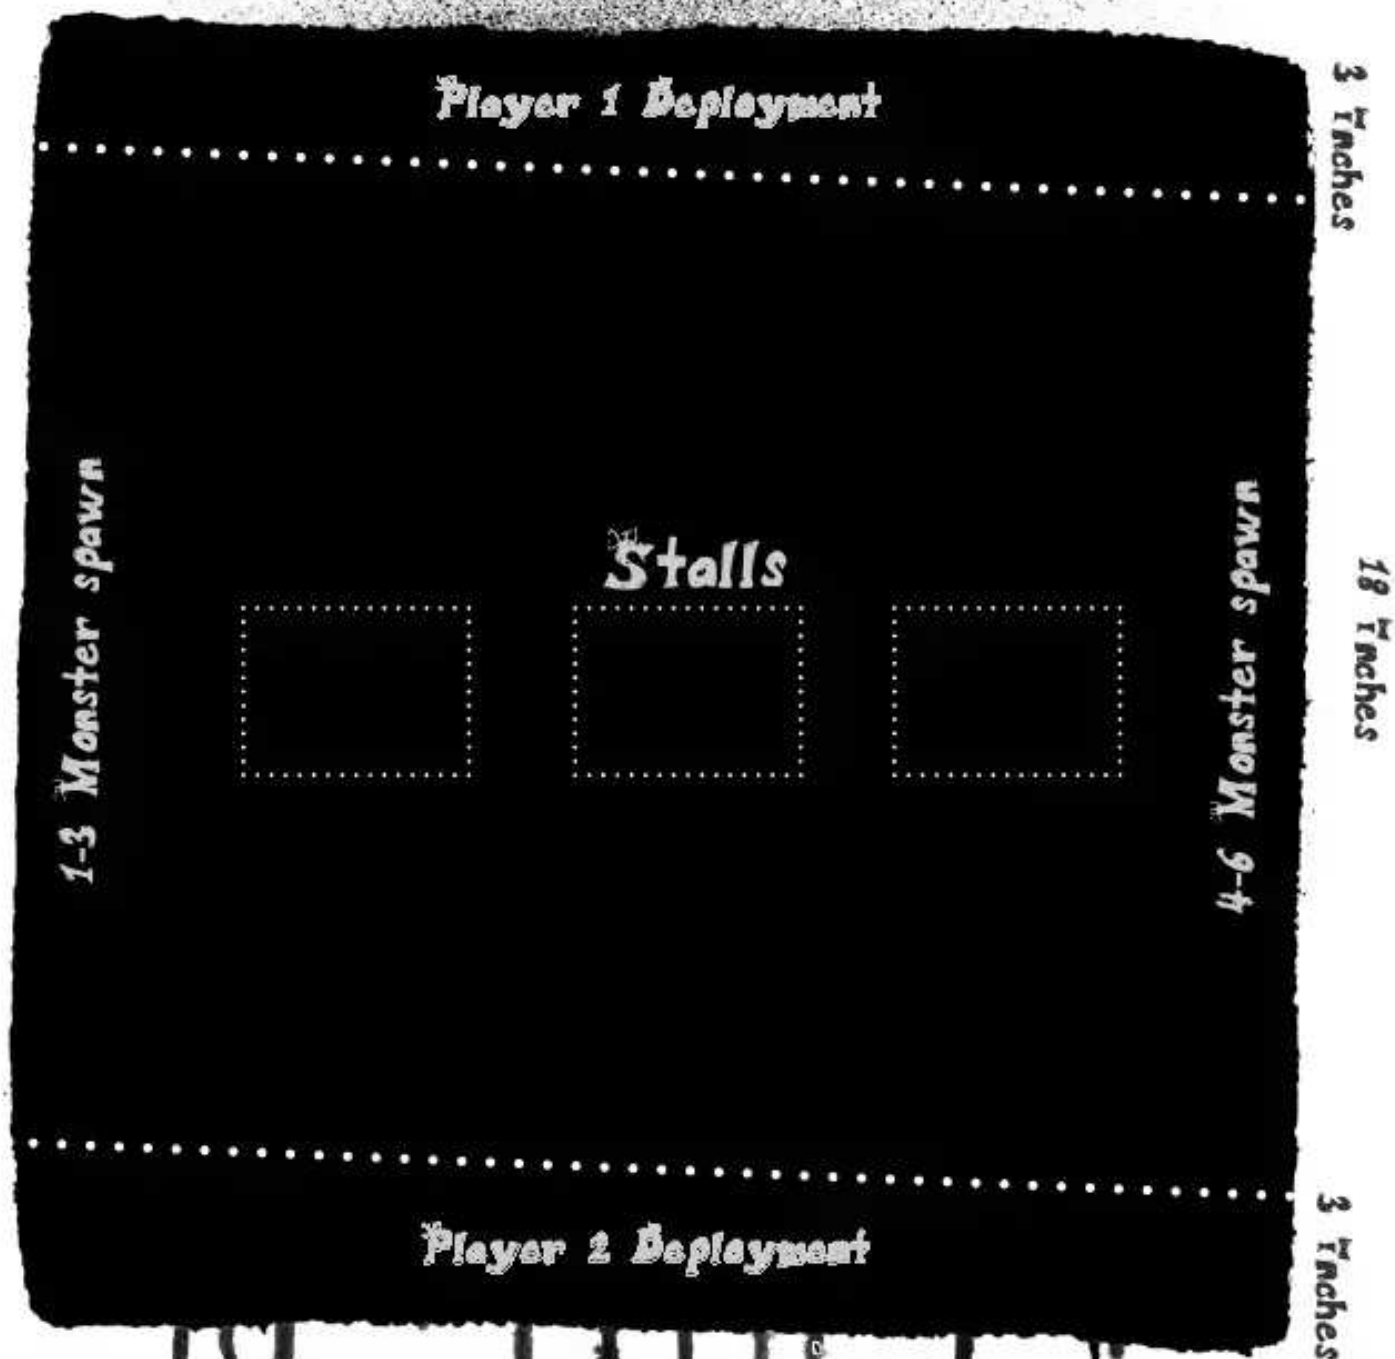

Solo Play

Same as above but use Solo Play Monster spawn rates.

COOP

Same as above but use COOP Monster spawn rates.

Game ends after the 6th round.

Step Right Up

The first model to make it to the stall wins a free Item!
Roll a D6 to determine what they win.

1. Comfy Socks
2. A random Weapon
3. A random piece of Armor
4. A random Item
5. A random Relic
6. Snail Eggs (don't ask)

When the PCs arrive read:

Glömm shouts happily, 'Bargains, come get your bargains today!' As growls approach from nearby alleyways, you wish Glömm would be quieter.

RPG

17. QUAGMIRE

Estrith interrupts your dinner of bread and salted meats, taking you aside to tell how her lover died in Dawnblight's great plague, thrown in the sewage pits with the rest of the plague victims. A party recently returned to the Inn and told Estrith they had seen a Faecal Ghoul resembling her lover Dawn. She asks you to go and end Dawn's misery. Return with the brooch that Dawn once wore and she will reward you handsomely.

Goal

Kill the Faecal Ghoul that was Estrith's lover and bring back the brooch she wears.

Reward

20 Gold for the brooch.

Setup and Treasure

Setup 6 faecal mounds. Each can be searched to reveal a Treasure. Mounds are placed by players taking it in turns, and must be at least 3 inches from another mound. Instead of normal rules, failure on the Treasure Roll triggers a Toughness test for the model. Failing the Toughness test infects them with Filth Rot (pg. 65). A Faecal Ghoul (pg. 65) should be placed next to each mound.

Randomly determine, before you start, one Ghoul to be Dawn. She has the brooch.

A single Aderyn y corph (pg. 50) should be placed in the centre of the board at the start of the game.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Place a Faecal Ghoul next to each mound. These Ghouls ignore movement rules and only attack those who come within 3 inches of their mound. At the start of round 4, three more Faecal Ghouls arrive, drawn by the sounds, and act normally.

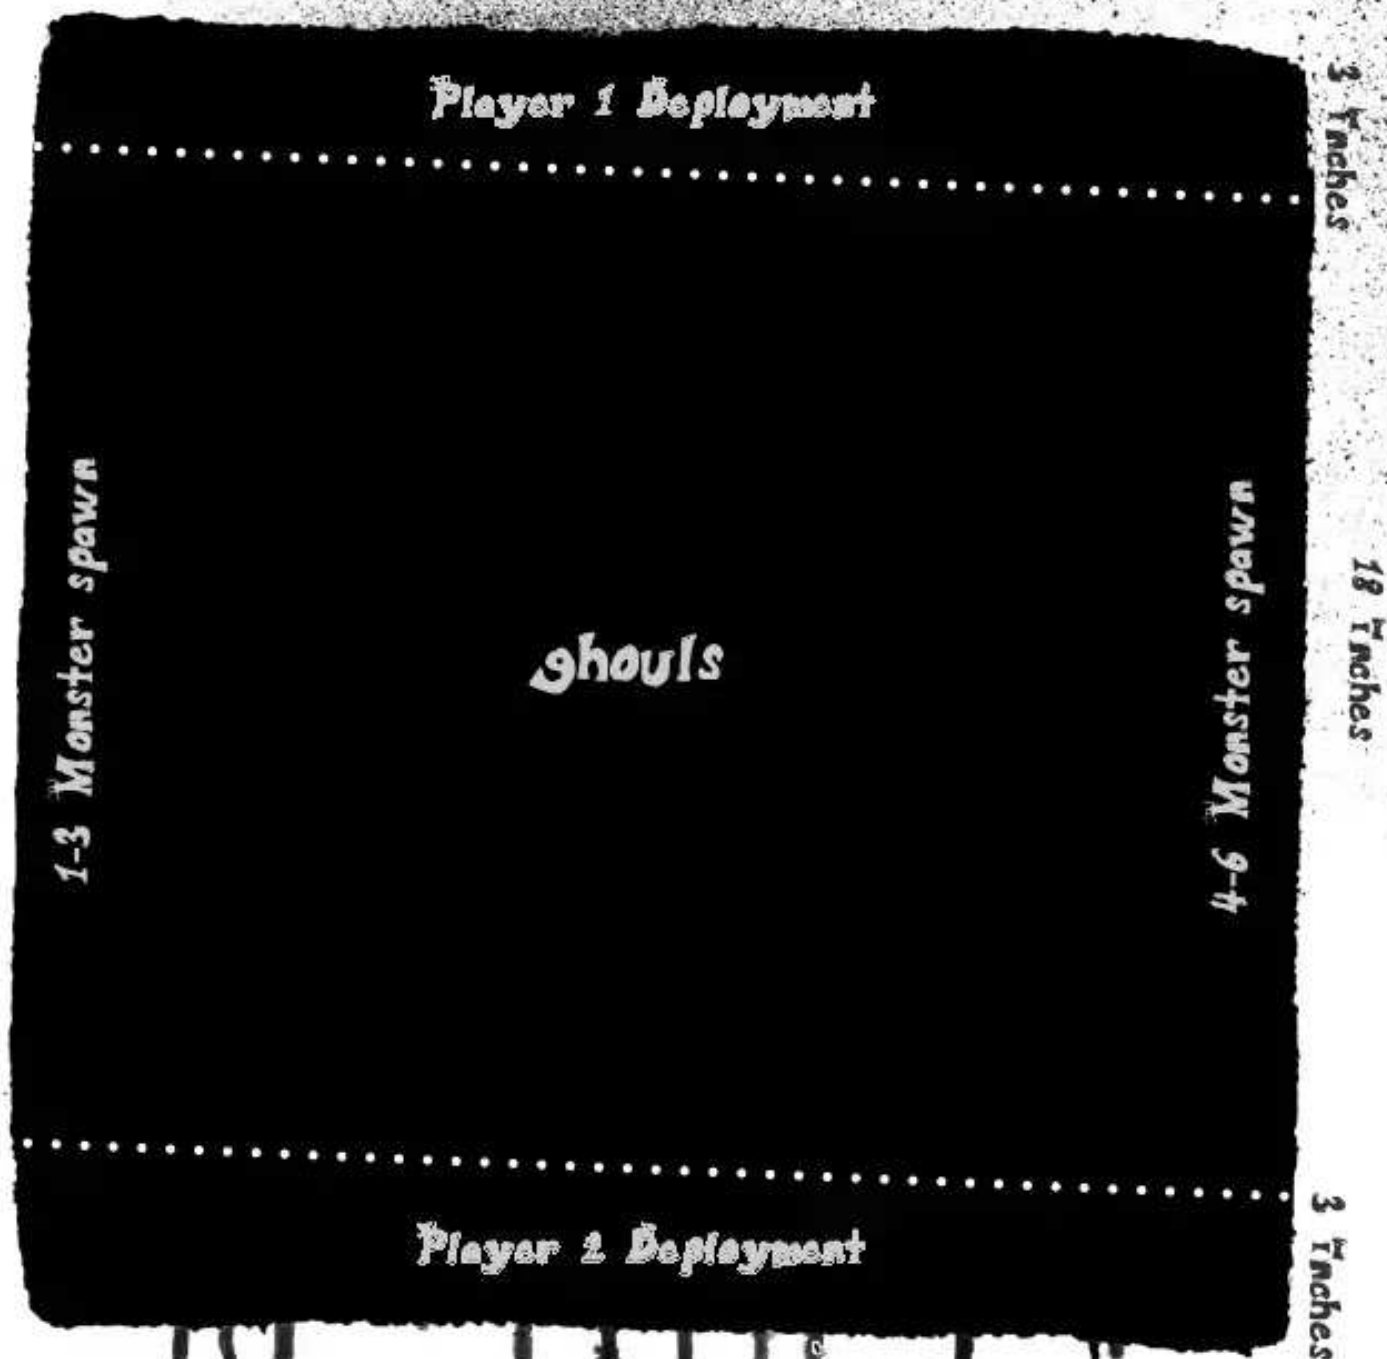

Solo Play

Place only four mounds and four Faecal Ghouls.

COOP

On round 2, two more Faecal Ghouls appear. These are in addition to the three that appear on round 4.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

You smell the place before you even see it. Excrement hangs in the air. As you approach you see those once-human busily rolling mounds of faecal matter together in a bizarre ritual. You can only think to yourself that you are bound to catch something entering such a foetid place as this.

When the PCs return to the Hogs Head Inn read:

At first you are not allowed to enter the Hogs Head, forced to first see to the smell accompanying you. After forever and a day in the river, you enter the Inn and Estrith thanks you for what you have done.

RPG

18. SAVING FACE

Guest Scenario by Dan Palfrey

On returning to the Hog's Head you see Estrith tilt her head towards the corner of the tavern where a hooded figure sits. He introduces himself as an Inquisitor of the Two-Headed Basilisks, and says he has heard of your group's prowess. He would like to hire you for a job too difficult and gruesome for most. A man called Deacon was supposed to provide some crucial information but failed to make the meet, falling victim to the dreaded Facestealer. Find the Monster and remove Deacon's face from it! Perhaps the Inquisitor can still extract the information somehow.

Goal

Kill the Facestealer and retrieve Deacon's face. Once the Facestealer (pg. 144) is dead, slicing off the face is a simple (if revolting) task requiring an action. The face can be removed from the Facestealer while it still lives by landing a Critical with a bladed melee Weapon and passing a DR12 Agility test.

Reward

If a warband escapes with Deacon's face they may choose a reward from the Inquisitor's armory: a Scroll of Sanctify, a vampire-bane Ulfberht Sword, a Musket with 10 rounds, or 50 Gold.

Setup and Treasure

Five large (3-6 inches) buildings should be set up as shown. Use squares of paper if you don't have appropriate terrain. Each building should have D4 doors. Opening a door is a DR8 Strength test, and once opened they remain open. Walls and closed doors are impassable and block line of sight. The rest of the board should be covered in dense ruins.

When a building is entered for the first time, determine its contents using the Random Buildings Table on the next spread. Additionally, roll a D6 if the Facestealer has not yet appeared. On 5+ the Facestealer is placed inside (Facestealer is in final building explored if it has not appeared before this). Each building contains one Treasure in addition to its generated contents.

Deployment

Instead of deploying as normal, during the first round each warband member is placed within 1 inch of their board edge when activated, then moves and takes an action as normal. This applies for Versus, COOP, and Solo Play.

Threats

The Facestealer's soul-churning wails echo throughout this district. Until it is killed, all warband members are affected by the Wailing Aura regardless of actual positions, even if it is not yet on the board.

Solo Play

Only place three buildings, but place a Citizen of Dawnblight (pg. 60) guarding the entrance to each building.

COOP

One Citizen of Dawnblight guards each building.

There is no turn limit and the game ends when one side moves a warband member off the board while carrying Deacon's face or when there are no warband members left on the board.

When the PCs arrive read:

Going off on this wild face chase may be a distraction from your primary mission of finding Vriprix, but staying in the Two-Headed Basilisks' good books is probably wise. Besides, maybe this Inquisitor could help you in return? As a special twist, the Inquisitor could be hunting the Wizard, too, and Deacon's information could have been about his sighting in the Printing Press. If so, do the PCs honour their deal or keep the knowledge to themselves?

RPG

FACESTEALER

HP: 16 Morale: 8

Tentacles: D4

Armor: 1

Special: Wailing Aura - All except the undead have -2 Morale when within 12 inches of a Facestealer.

Facehive: When a Facestealer is placed on the board roll a D20 for each warband member within 12 inches of the Monster. On 1 that model recognises a loved one in the collection of faces and must make a Morale test.

Multi-Attack: Makes two attacks per activation.

Face-Clad: Hitting a Facestealer with a Critical sends shards of broken teeth and sliced cheeks flying. The attacker must test

Morale.

NEW MERCENARY The Witch of Herbeck Fen

Agility: +1 Presence: +4

Strength: -3 Toughness: +0

Equipment: Scrolls: Obey,

One-Eyed King,

Light Armor, Potion,

Flaws: Luddite, Loner

Feats: Barkskin, Alchemist

Special: Claw Attack [D4][Agility]

The Witch can only be hired from Scenario 19 onwards.

If you want to add a bit of flavour and chaos to your games, whenever a model first enters a building (or room, or other distinct region of your board) roll to see what it contains. Some of the contents of these buildings are still intact after the fall of Dawnblight, while some represent new inhabitants repurposing the space.

D44	RESULT	RANDOM BUILDINGS
11	Empty, Magic Calamity	DR 14 Toughness test or gain a random Injury (pg. 88).
12	Crumbling Ceiling	DR 12 Agility test or suffer D10 damage (once per model).
13	Pile of Corpses	Test Morale, otherwise do with them what you will.
14	Dark Whispers	Omens may not be used for rest of game.
21	Drug Den	D4 Citizens of Dawnblight, +2 HP each as high on narcotics.
22	Sock Stash	3d6 Socks, doubles indicate matching pairs (counts as Comfy Socks).
23	Blacksmith	DR 10 Presence test uncovers a random Bane Weapon (see below).
24	Pastry Shop	If this model is named The Prophet of St. Gregory they gain D6 HP by entering this building.
31	Wealthy Residence	Can be looted as an action for 5D10 Gold once by each warband.
32	Gunsmith	DR 14 Presence to find a random Weapon with EXPLODE.
33	Captive	Joins your warband if you take an action to free them (you may replace one member of your warband with them after the Scenario). Has two Feats and one Flaw.
34	Tavern	Action to loot for D6 Gold, if you roll a 6 you also find one Whisky.
41	Witch Hunter's Camp	D3 Torches and one random Bane Weapon (see below).
42	Treasure Map	Scenario winner claims it. Next game they place D3 additional Treasure Markers within 6 inches of the board centre.
43	Sacred Artefact	Room contains The Transcendent Chalice (see below).
44	Monster Lair	Spawn a random Monster (pg. 80).

Bane Weapon

Bane Weapons can take many forms. Randomly select a Weapon (pg. 19) and a Monster (pg. 80). This Weapon deals double damage against that Monster.

The Transcendent Chalice

The bearer can make a DR12 Presence test to capture the soul of a recently departed Monster as the Soul Bind Scroll (pg. 29).

19. THROUGH THE SEWERS

Estrith tells you the Mad Wizard was last seen in the sewers. She gives you directions and you head down into the festering tunnels. Soon you find yourselves trapped, acidic slime creatures cutting off your retreat. The only way is forward. You must escape before the slimes dissolve your flesh in their acidic goo!

Goal

ESCAPE!

Reward

You are not dissolved in acid.

Setup and Treasure

For this Scenario, the board is made up of four 8 inch wide tunnels crossing the center of the board. The areas in the dotted lines are impassable. Warbands must make it to the exit to escape, and may not leave via any other board edge. In the tunnel opposite the exit you should place an Acid Slimeblob (pg. 50). Place three Faecal Ghouls (pg. 65) and three Treasure Markers in the junction. Do not roll for Conditions. The tunnels are in Darkness (pg. 45).

Deployment

Versus and COOP: warbands must be deployed within 1 inch of their tunnel edge.

Solo Play: warband members can be deployed on any tunnel edge that is not the exit.

Threats

Three Faecal Ghouls are placed in the centre of the junction. In the tunnel opposite the exit place one Acid Slimeblob. On round two, at the start of the Monster activation phase, another Acid Slimeblob spawns in each player spawn area. The warbands are being chased!

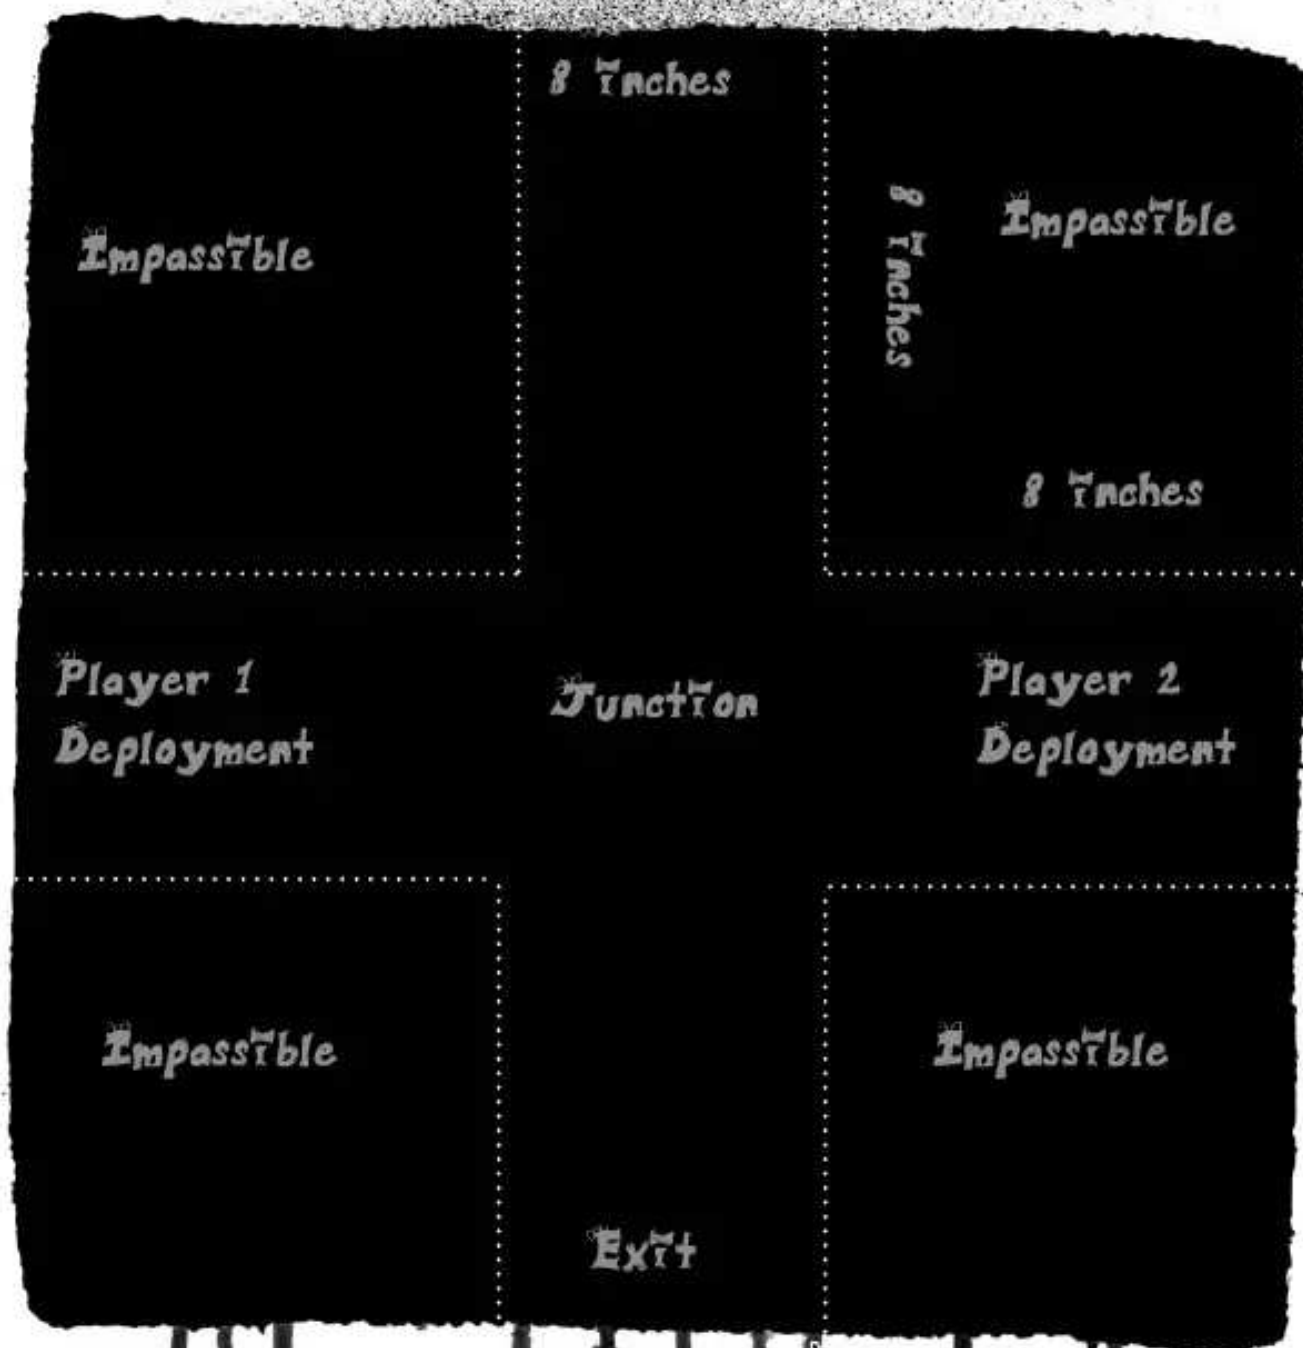

Solo Play

Do not place the starting Acid Slimeblob, a smaller party has a slight head start.

COOP

There are four Faecal Ghouls.

Game ends when all the living warband members escape via the exit or all are dead.

When the PCs arrive read:

You watch unnatural jelly-like creatures move toward you through the tunnels. Your exit is blocked, and the only way is forward. As they pour over bones and excrement, the debris dissolves. You must escape before they reach you!

As the PCs reach the exit read:

You glimpse what passes for daylight and move towards it as quickly as you can.

RPG

20. THE BIG RAT THAT LIVES UNDERGROUND

Having survived the sewers, Estrith says she has found a good source of meat: rats! First she needs you to deal with the King Rat, which was created through accident or sport. Bound together by their tails, their many minds work as one. They have control over other rats, and can even influence the minds of men. One dwells in a basement in Dawnblight. Kill it and you will be rewarded.

Goal

Kill the Rat King.

Reward

1 Gold per Rat killed. 20 Gold for killing the Rat King.

Setup and Treasure

This Scenario takes place in the basement of an abandoned building. Darkness applies (pg. 45). Place the Rat King (pg. 73) in the centre of the board. Players take it in turns to deploy six Plague Rats (three each) within 3 inches of the Rat King. While the Rat King is alive, all Presence tests are made at -3 as its voice whispers telepathically to all present. Players take turns placing two Treasure Markers each within 5 inches of the Rat King.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a 3 inch by 6 inch box to deploy in, as shown in the diagram. This represents a staircase. In this Scenario models may only leave the board via either staircase.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

The Plague Rats are the threat in this Scenario. Do not forget the Rat King summons more Plague Rats each round it is not in combat.

Solo Play

Only three Plague Rats are present at the start of the Scenario.

COOP

There are eight Plague Rats present at the start of the Scenario.

Game ends after the 6th round. If the Rat King is not Dead by the 6th round, one random member of each warband has their mind taken by the Rat King. They are lost forever.

When the PCs arrive read:

You hear a voice in your head saying 'The weak are food'. Verminous stench reaches your nose, and an anger and pain is felt within you. This is unnatural. It must be killed.

When PCs approach the Rat King read:

You feel the Rat King speak in your heads.

'Yes, you see me, in your mist.' The pain in its words hurts your head and brings water to your eyes.

RPG

21. WHAT WE DO IN LIFE ECHOES IN ETERNITY

In your search for the Mad Wizard you enter the old amphitheatre. You are surprised by the roar of a crowd around you. The stands are full of echoes of the people of Dawnblight, cheering events long since ended. The gates drop behind you, trapping you inside. A dull rusty creak fills the arena as side gates open and horrible monstrosities spill out. You must appease the crowd if you wish to escape. Ready yourself for combat, you notice a familiar Wizard sitting in the crowd, eating popcorn.

Goal

Kill the Deadly Cornobols and the Champion of the Amphitheatre.

Reward

The crowd rewards the winners by showering them with Gold. Each model who scores any kills or Downs an enemy model gains 10 Gold for their warband.

Setup and Treasure

The only terrain in the Amphitheatre is the discarded bodies of Monsters and gladiators from long past battles. Players take turns placing three bodies each, which can be searched for a random Weapon as an action.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a 3 inch by 6 inch box as shown in the diagram. This represents the entrance to the Amphitheatre. In this Scenario models may not leave the board until all Monsters are Dead.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Three Cornobols (pg. 62) are present in the centre of the board at the start of the Scenario. On round 3, or if the Cornobols are slain before this, the Champion of the Amphitheatre arrives in a random Monster spawn.

Champion of the Amphitheatre

HP: 12

Morale: -

Gladiator's Sword: 2D8

Armor: 4

Special: models within 1 inch can loot the Champion's Full Plate Armor and/or Gladiator's Sword [2d8] [Strength] once it is Dead.

Solo Play

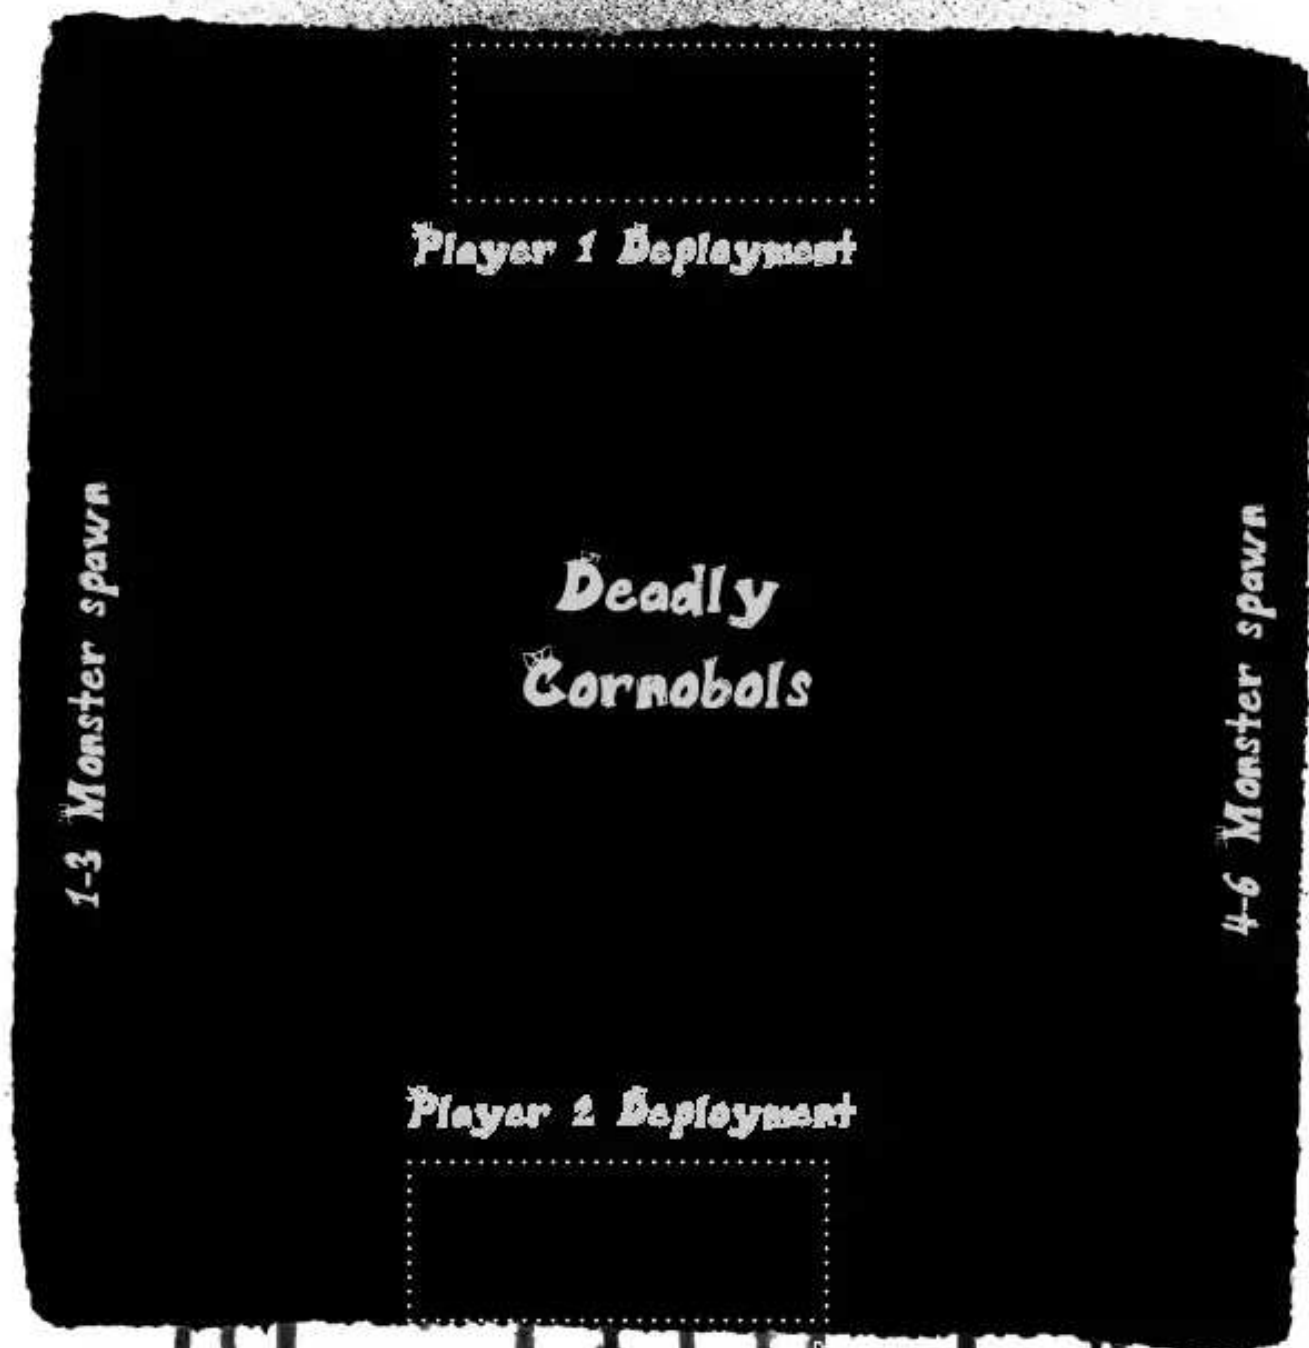

There are two Cornobols present at the start of the Scenario.

COOP

There are four Cornobols present at the start of the Scenario.

Game ends when all Monsters are killed or when no warband member is left alive.

Morale with no escape! Models who fail Morale simply drop prone. They cannot take any action until they pass a Morale test.

When the PCs arrive read:

You hear the roar of the crowd as the gate slams shut behind you. You must fight for your life to escape! Please the crowd or die.

When the PCs slay the Champion read:

The crowd grows silent as you lay the Champion low. You look around and the ghostly crowd begins to dissipate. The gates clank open and you are once again free to chase the Mad Wizard.

RPG

22. BONE PITS

After the city's graves filled, crypts burst and rivers overflowed, great open pits were dug. Into these the city simply began to dump its dead. Open and bleached by the sun. Glömm believes that somewhere in the pits hides a relic of great power, a ring that can aid you in your search for the Mad Wizard.

Goal

Find the Ring of Unlife.

Reward

Each Strange Artefact (below) can be sold to Glömm for 20 Gold.

Setup and Treasure

The field is littered with bones. Eight large bone mounds should be placed, four by each player. They must be placed at least 3 inches outside of the players deployment area and at least 3 inches from other bone mounds.

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

A single Aderyn y corph (pg. 50) should be placed in the centre of the board at the start of the game.

Players can search a bone mound by rolling a D8 and consulting this table:

1. Nothing
- 2-5. A Bone Horror (pg. 56)
- 6-7. A Strange Artefact
8. The Ring of Unlife

When a number is rolled, mark it down and reroll if that number is rolled again, until all numbers between 1-8 are rolled.

Solo Play

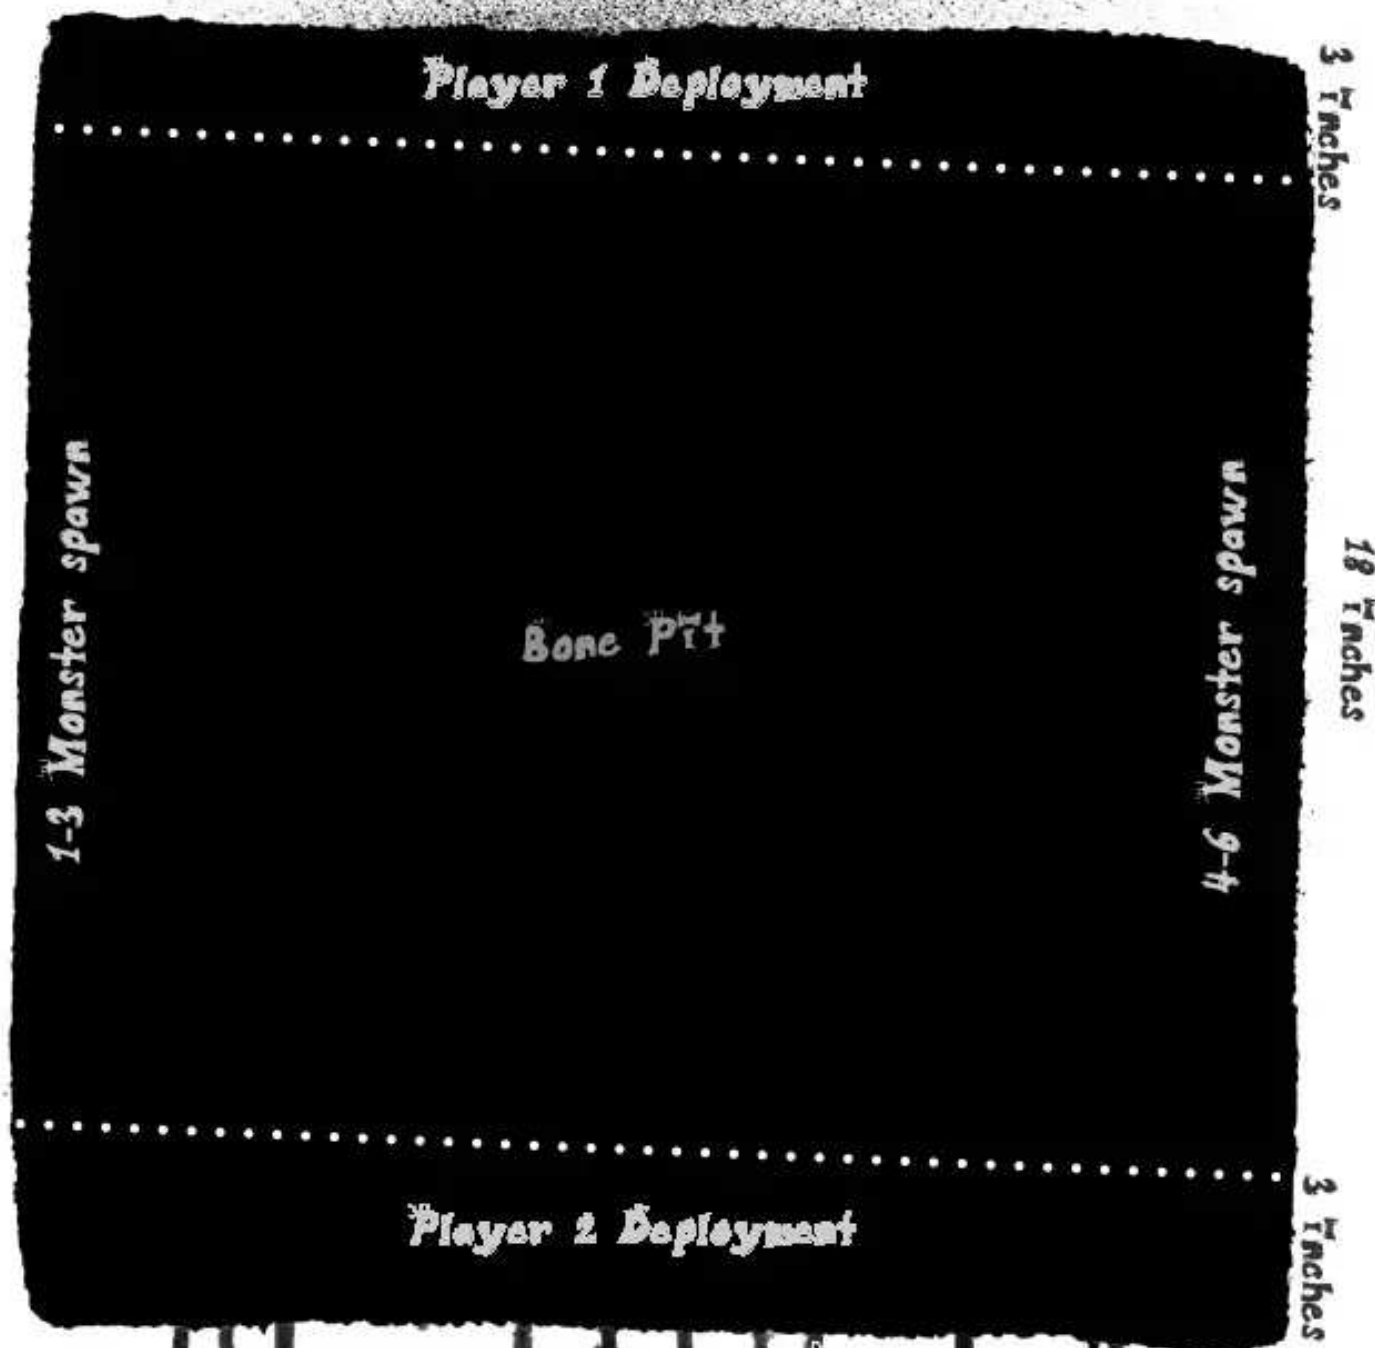

Place only six bone mounds and use a D6 and this table:

1. Nothing
- 2-3. A Bone Horror (pg. 56)
- 4-5. A Strange Artefact
6. The Ring of Unlife

COOP

Each round roll a D6. On 4+ randomly deploy a Skeleton (pg. 78).

Game ends after the 6th round.

RING OF UNLIFE

Skeletons and Ghouls ignore any model wearing this ring.

When the PCs arrive read:

Bones litter the floor from one side of the pit to the other. Towering bone mounds reach to the sky. For a moment you think you see one move, but it must be a trick of the light.

When the PCs find the Ring of Unlife read:

The ring glows green. Placed on your finger, you feel its energy radiate through you, changing you.

RPG

23. WISHING WELL

In the Hogs Head Inn you overhear patrons talking of the Mad Wizard. One claims to have seen them tossing an abnormal helm into the wishing well. Find what they discarded to continue your search.

Goal

Seek the Helm from the wishing well.

Reward

Whatever else you find in the wishing well.

Setup and Treasure

In the center of the board place a piece of terrain at least 3 inches wide to represent the wishing well.

A warband member can, when within 1 inch, make a wish with a DR12 Presence test. How they fare on the test determines how often they roll on the D8 Wishes list.

Success: One roll.

Critical Success: Two rolls.

Failure: A Tapeworm Terror attacks!

Fumble: Model falls into the water and begins to drown. They must pass a Toughness test on their next activation or die!

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Place six Citizens of Dawnblight (pg. 60) around the well, within 6 inches of it and at least 3 inches from other Citizens.

On round 4, Nagl (pg. 71) appears and targets models that have taken Items out of the well. Even in death his greed consumes him.

Solo Play

Place only four Citizens.

COOP

Two Tapeworm Terrors (pg. 79) swim in the well, attacking those who come within 1 inch of it.

Game ends after the 6th round.

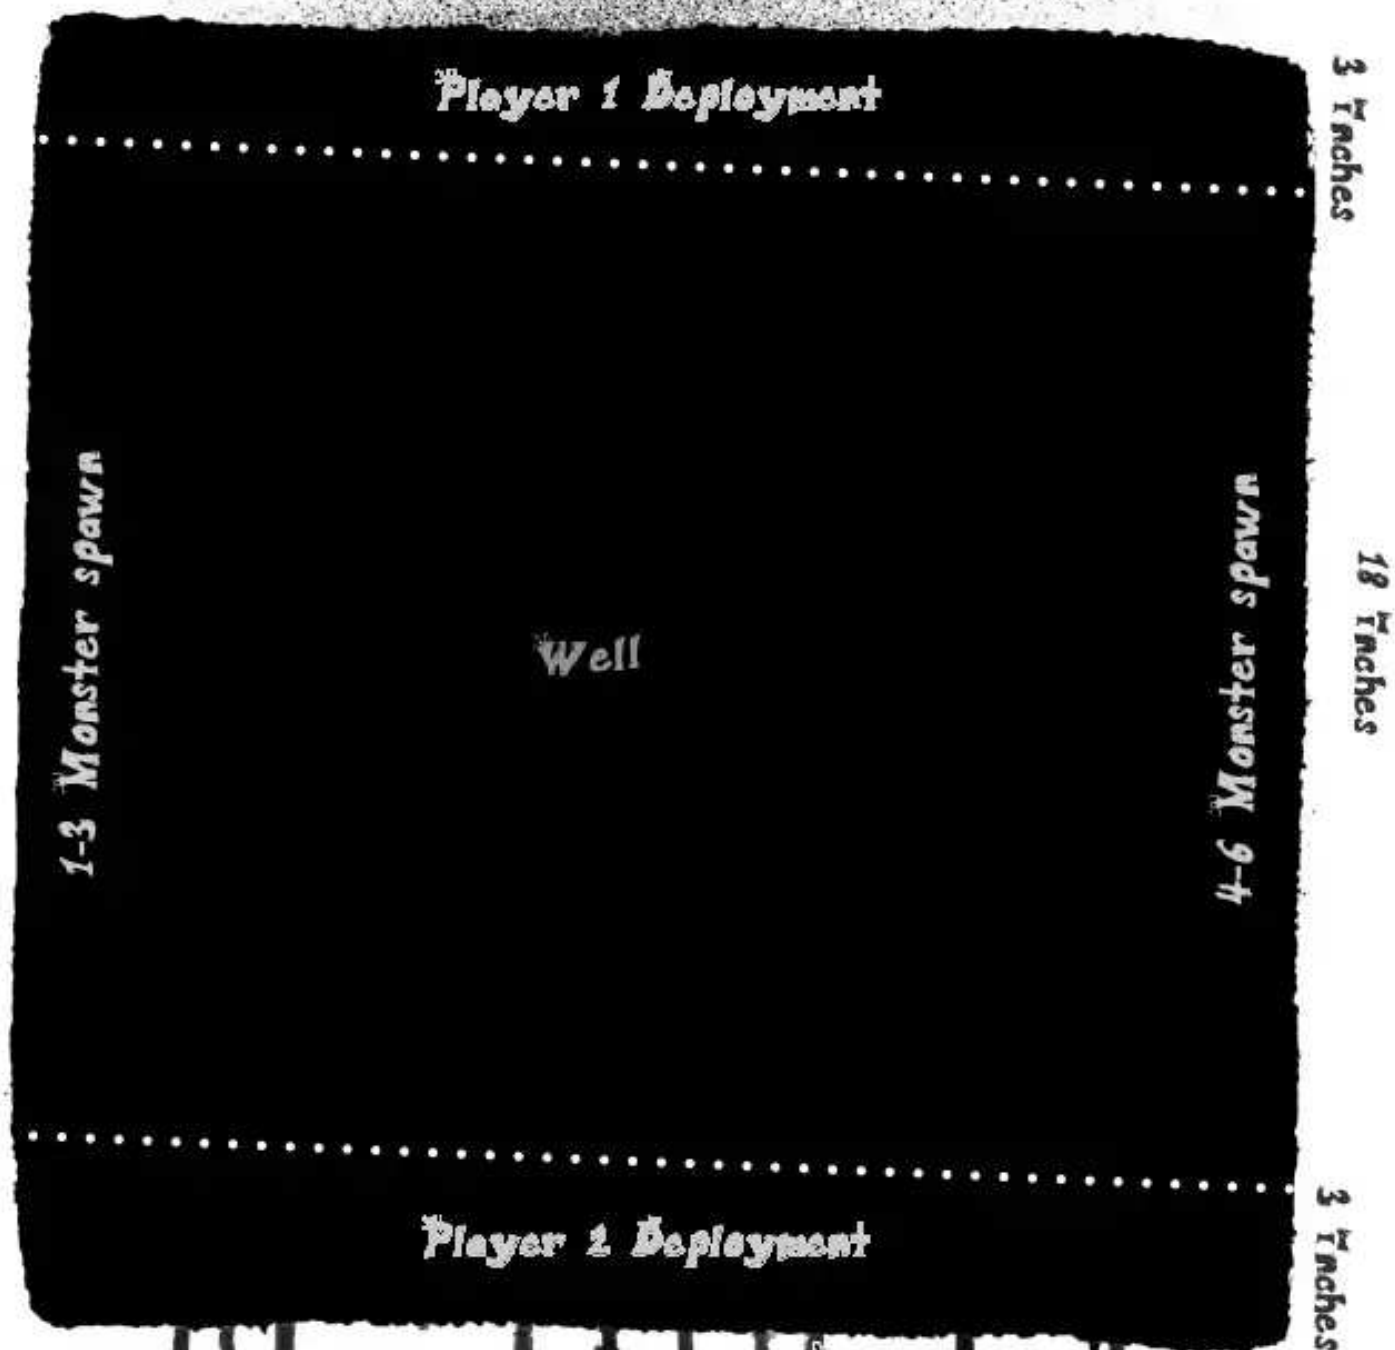

D8 Wishes

1. Tapeworm Terror
2. 1 Gold
3. 3 Gold
4. 4 Gold
5. 10 Gold
6. 1 random Weapon
7. 1 random Relic
8. Helm of the Deathless

Helm of the Deathless

The wearer
auto-passes
Death Saves.

When the PCs arrive read:

Located in the town square is the old wishing well. Once sought out for luck for the year ahead, it now festers and rots. Strange shapes move in its murky waters, and self-mutilated citizens guard its treasures.

If the PCs find the Helm of the Deathless (in the RPG this grants one reprieve from death), read:

You pull the helm from the murky depths of the well, feeling its weight in your hands, an odd thing imbued with life. You place it on your head and are blessed with a second chance should you fall.

24. THE PRINTING PRESS

In your exploration of Dawnblight you have often spotted cryptic booklets littering the streets, featuring titles such as Adventure Chapbook, ARC, and Grave Matters. Whispers in the Hogs Head blame the fall of the city on the creators of these cryptic writings. Shortly before the fall, the city's first and only printing press appeared.

Estrith informs you the Mad Wizard recently visited the printing press. Maybe clues to their location can be found within?

Goal
Deduce the location of Vriprix.

Reward
Glömm pays 10 Gold for each booklet you retrieve.

Setup and Treasure
Place three pieces of terrain across the centre of the board to represent the three printing presses, at least 6 inches from each other. Place two storage boxes as shown in the diagram. Storage boxes can be searched for Treasure. When within 1 inch you may search a printing press as an action. Roll on the table in the next column.

Searching any printing press also provides you Vriprix's address, printed on the delivery label of the booklets.

1. Adventure Chapbook by Rugose Kohn (booklet)
2. 3 Gold (possibly fake)
3. ARC (booklet)
4. 4 Gold
5. Unclean Scroll (pg. 28)
6. Clean Scroll (pg. 26)
7. Grave Matters by Rinaldo Agostini (booklet)
8. Roll twice more and take both results

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

Three Editors (pg. 79) operate the printing presses. Place one within 1 inch of each press. Every round, a Disciple of the Editor (pg. 79) appears on a random board edge at the start of the Monster activation phase.

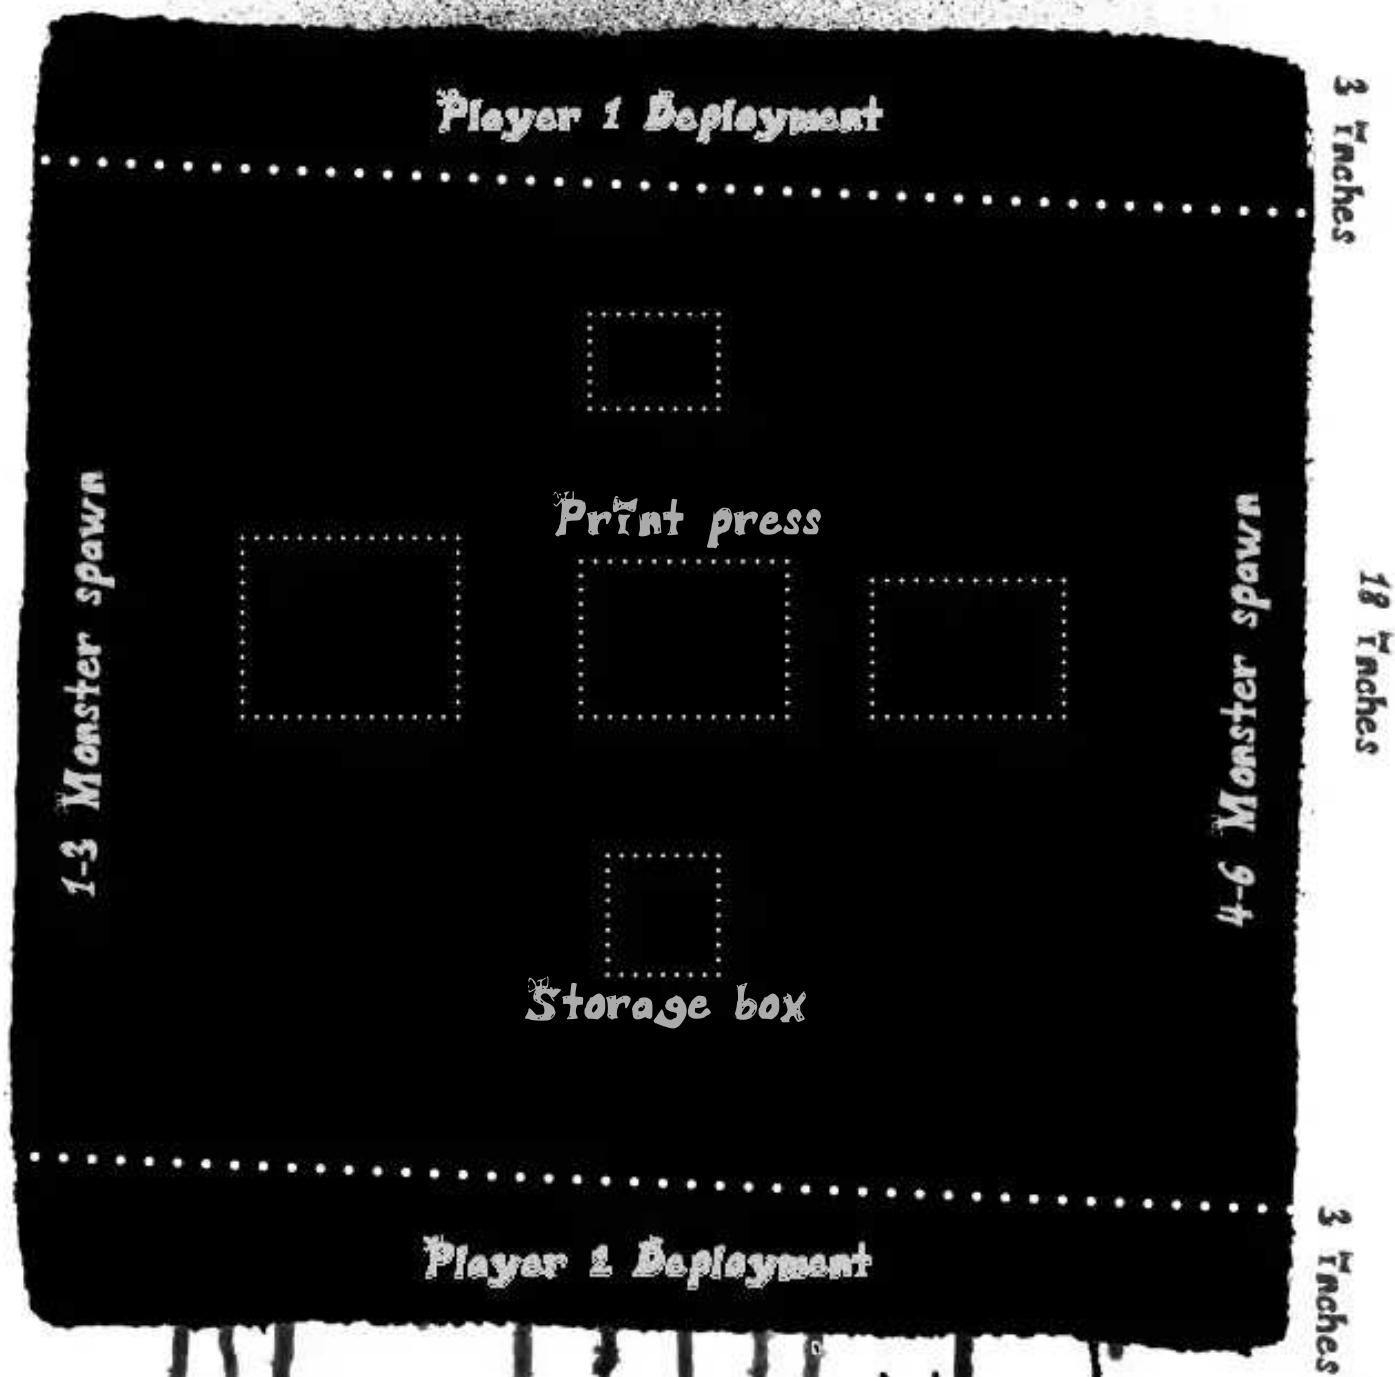

Solo Play

Place two printing presses and two Editors.

COOP

Two Disciples of the Editor appear each round at the start of the Monster activation phase.

Game ends after the 6th round.

When the PCs arrive read:

The sound of the printing presses echoes through the city, white noise getting louder as you approach. The strange beings known as the Editors stand over the printers, working to fill orders placed long ago.

When the PCs return to the Hogs Head Inn read:

*Temptation to read the booklets fills your soul.
Giving in would lead you down a rabbit hole
you may wish to avoid. (Reading them drives you mad).*

RPG

25. THE WIZARD'S TOWER

Having finally found the Mad Wizard's tower, you enter seeking vengeance. As you step over the threshold you are teleported into a non-Euclidean room. A Monster roars at you from its centre: you must fight your way to Vriprix!

Goal

Fight your way through four rooms to find the Mad Wizard.

Reward

Revenge.

Setup and Treasure

Instead of setting up a normal board you need two 12 inch x 12 inch boards. These represent rooms you must navigate and fight through to reach the Mad Wizard. Before placing models, roll on the table below. If two warbands roll the same room they both spawn on the same board and interact as normal.

D6

1-4. Monster Room

Warbands must fight and kill all Monsters to progress. Roll a random Monster (pg. 80) per type of game (Versus, COOP, or Solo) and when they slay the last Monster your warband is teleported to a new room at the start of the next round.

5. Treasure Room

A random Relic (pg. 121) is on a pedestal here. A warband member within 1 inch can pick up the Relic, triggering a trap. Avoiding the trap requires an Agility test to swap the Relic with an Item they have. Once they have the Relic your warband teleports to a new room at the start of the next round. If they trigger the trap, arrows shoot from the walls, dealing D4 damage to all models not currently Downed.

6. Ritual Room

A ritual circle is drawn in the centre of the room. Select one of your warband members (this can include pets). This model must be sacrificed to progress. They don't go willingly, and become hostile to the rest of the warband. When Downed they are placed in the centre of the room and killed. Your warband teleports to another room at the start of the next round.

Downed models are also teleported to new rooms.

Once your warband has completed any four rooms they are taken to Vriprix! Set up a new room with Vriprix in the centre. When one warband successfully reaches Vriprix, all other warbands are evicted from the tower.

Deployment

Instead of normal deployment see setup rules. In each room you set up warbands along one edge of the room as shown here. In Solo Play you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

See setup for Monsters.

Solo Play

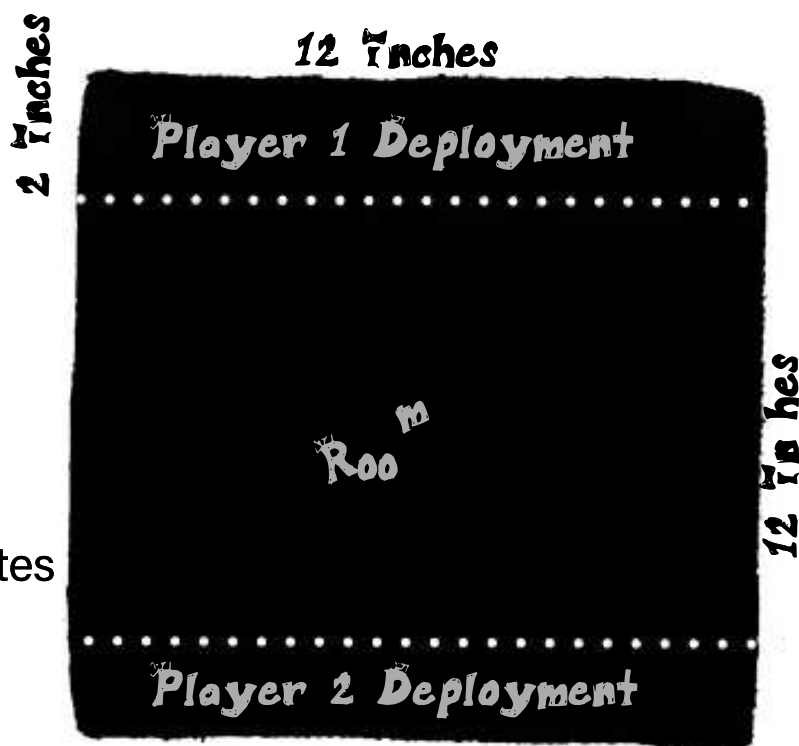

Make sure to use Solo Play spawn rates for Monsters.

COOP

Do not roll for each warband, instead both are taken to the same room.

Game ends when Vriprix is Downed.

If a fleeing model reaches a board edge in this Scenario they are teleported to another room and lost forever.

VRIPRIX THE MAD WIZARD
HP:1 Morale:1 Attacks:- Armor:0

When the PCs arrive read:

You step into the tower and with a flash of blue light you are taken to a random room of the tower. What? Did you think you could just walk into Vriprix's home?

When the PCs Down Vriprix read:

'Wait!' cries the Mad Wizard, coughing blood onto the ground. 'I know a way you can escape this doomed place. I swear on my Socks this is the truth!'

Do the party listen to the Mad Wizard or deal a killing blow?

RPG

26. LEAP OF FAITH

Having finally tracked down Vriprix, they explain how they got bored and read the Forbidden Psalm. The Mad

Wizard felt reality tear as the Psalm was read. Drawn to Dawnblight in search of the tear, they found a portal guarded by a beast like none they had seen before. Vriprix believes this portal will take anyone brave enough to enter to another world, one that might not be ending.

Vriprix offers you all their gold to kill the beast, or just kill it and jump through the portal yourself.

Goal

Kill the chaotic beast protecting the portal. Take a leap of faith or return for the Wizard's gold. 1000 Gold to the party who kills the beast.

Reward

1000 Gold or, perhaps, a second chance.

Setup and Treasure

Set up a portal at least 3 inches across in the middle of the board.

This is protected by an Endless

Horror! Roll on the tables (pg. 166) to determine its appearance, HP, Morale, Armor, Attacks, and Special.

When a model enters the portal it is removed from play. Only one model can enter the portal per round. If more than one enter simultaneously, both are killed and another Endless Horror is summoned. Where have those entering gone? Well, that's another story...

Deployment

Versus and COOP: players select a deployment area based on Initiative and place models within 6 inches of their board edge.

Solo Play: you may place models in either deployment area.

Threats

In addition to the Endless Horror, the following Monsters appear on the noted round.

Round 2: Random Monster (pg. 80).

Round 3: The Laughing Man (pg. 69).

Round 4: Two Editors (pg. 79).

Round 5: The Calt Pains (pg. 58).

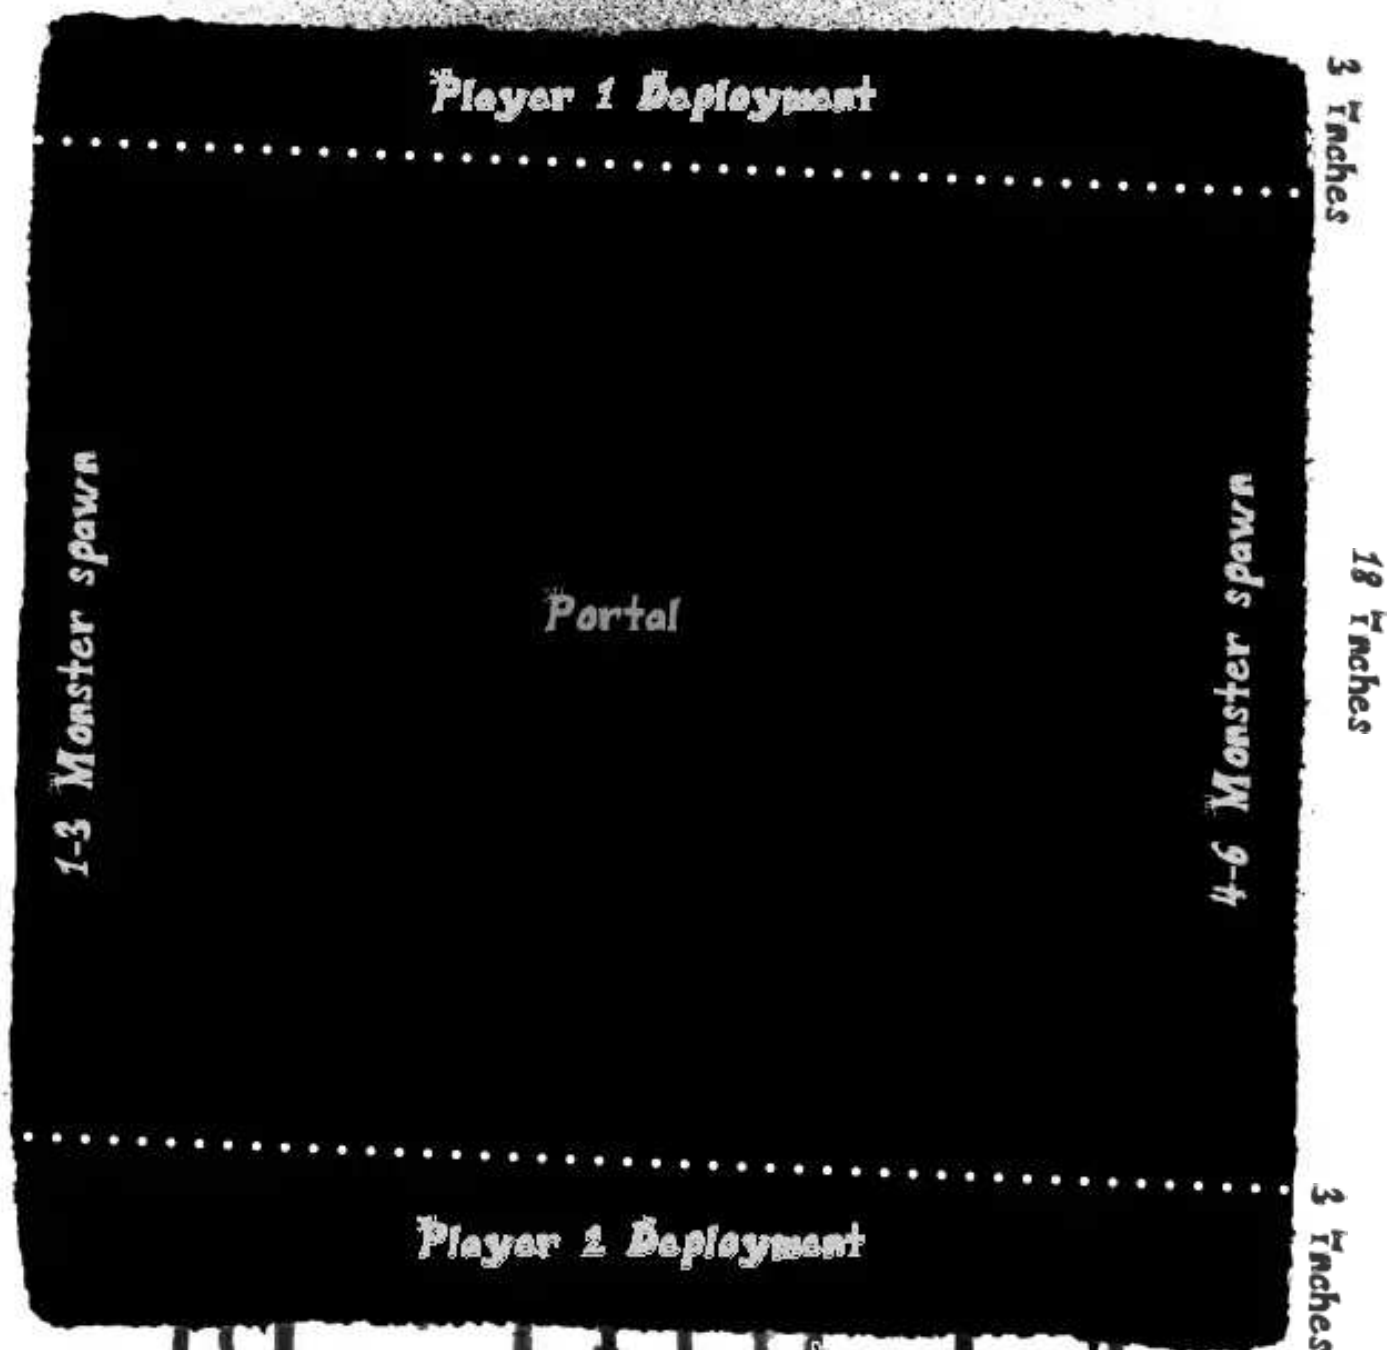

Solo Play

No Monsters appear in round 2 or round 4.

COOP

There are two Endless Horrors. Roll each Monster separately.

Game ends when all models have died, entered the portal, or fled.

When the PCs arrive read:

The swirling portal's colours draw your eye, but you do not know if it holds your salvation or destruction. Whether you decide to take the leap of faith or not, you first need to kill the creature guarding it.

When the PCs jump into the portal read:

*The colours! The last thing they hear is an eerie voice singing 'There's no earthly way of knowing... which direction we are going.'
What happens next is open to interpretation and may be revisited in the next campaign for Forbidden Psalm!*
